THE SALMON QUESTION.

The fishermen of the lower river are very much opposed to any plan for catching salmon except that used by it unlawful to eatch a salmon in any manner except by gill nets. If the fishermen at the mouth of the river had the situation reversed, if there the swift water occurred, and there the fish wheels could be operated, and nets could not be, then they would soon discover that fish wheels were the proper machines for capturing salmon. The fact is that the interests of the gill-net fishermen instead of the fish is the power behind this movement. We do not blame our Astoria friends for desiring to make the most of the business, for that is the natural and common desire that governs humanity; but we have the same complaint, and of course object to them being allowed privileges that we are not.

We may be quietly slumbering, but don't put on gloves to go for skunks. When we want it we will seek satisfaction in a manner that may jostle the livers of some wretches.'

A BAD BILL.

Senator McGinn of Multnomah has introduced a bill to create an official county newspaper in each county. The newspapers of the state are now in sharp competition with each other, and there is but few of the country papers that are more than paying expenses. This bill of McGinn's would bring such papers into sharper competition in the end would them. They want a law passed making benefit no one, and would force the country press in self protection to bid for the work at rates below the cost of setting the type. It is unfair to the press and more than that unjust, for the increase of the fish. They make the law steps in and by making one paper the official paper assists in giving it patronage at the expense of all of its

It is a lengthy, complicated bill, very carefully prepared, and is designed to bring the responsibility in the matter of taxation and public business as close as possible to the thority-the people.

CONCERNING SALMON.

EDITOR CHRONICLE:-In your issue of the 30th inst. I notice your mentioning that the gill net fishermen on the lower river want all other methods of catching salmon abolished but theirs. For the past twelve years, or since fish wheels were introduced on the upper Columbia, the cry of the Fishermen's Union of Astoria has been the same, viz: "We want the whole river, and must have it, as we have it in our voting power to send senators and representatives to the legislature who are pledged to have such laws enacted.

It is a well-known fact that fish wheels can only be placed close up to river bank, with a catching capacity of six or seven feet wide, at most, while a single gill net is about 1,800 feet long and about 40 feet deep. With about 2,000 of those nets on the bar, it seems impossible that a salmon can work through and reach the upper river at all, and it is a well-known fact that the gill net fishermen would rather a thousand fish would be kept outside the bar than allow one to get in and pass them, which is seldom done when they are all out together, only in the wake of a passing vessel. The fifty-fathom gill nets, used some twelve years ago by the fishermen on the lower river, are called nocket handkerchiefs now, so intent are they to prevent a single fish escaping them. Yes, if fish wheels could be used on the lower river there would be no other appliance thought of, as it is the cheapest, as well as the most humane mode of fishing ever invented; but there are only a few localities where fish wheels can be operated, even on the Columbia river, which is about the only one in the United States where salmon aun and wheels can be used for fishing

There is another thing, Mr. Editor, I would call your attention to, viz, the close and open season for salmon fishing. Since the distance from Astoria, where no fishing should be allowed below, is about 200 miles from The Dalles, and it takes salmon at least two months to come that distance, wouldn't it be only justice for our Eastern Oregon representatives to introduce a bill giving six months open and six months close season? This certainly will give salmon a chance to get to their spawning grounds unmolested; besides giving every part of the river an equal chance to get some fish in the fishing season, instead of the lower river fishing the whole year, except from March 1st to April 10th and August 10th to September 10th, or, in other words, about two months in the year close to them, while it is well known that no salmon can be caught above the mouth of the Willamette after November each year, and very few after Octorber 1st.

I see notices occasionally in the Portland Oregonian where the Hon. Marshal McDonald, U. S. fish commissioner, says that unless the legislatures of Oregon and Washington do something to protect the salmon in the Columbia, that he will not advocate any United States aid in the way of hatcheries, etc., etc. Since Mr. McDonald seems to take so much interest in the welfare of this river and the fishing industry generally, excepting the method of catching fish with fish wheels, by whose authority were carp and catfish placed in this river about five or six years ago? and if he knew at the time, as well as everybody interested in fishing, that carp and catfish are the greatest scavengers known to the finny tribe? They will destroy more young fish than a thousand hatcheries could possibly turn out; besides they are useless as a food fish. Whoever introduced those fish scavengers into our river, whether through ignorance, or for the purpose of appearing to do something, to hold down a sinecure office, ought to be held under water until the last cat and carp is gotten out. Then, with no fishing allowed below Astoria, and the open season to commence on May 1st and end on October cure offices (which means drawing their breath and salary) expend all such funds in killing off the seals and seasalmon as the carp and catfish do the than all the canneries and all others in time, but no earthly-power can de-

IN A TIGHT PLACE.

Ten Minutes of Terror Under Stampeded Cattle.

The Providential Escape of Four Men from Reing Trampled to Death by a Madly Rushing Herd.

"Yes, we have an adventure now and then out in our country," said Judge Thompson, of Wyoming. come out and see us I'll refer you to five or six men whose hairbreadth escapes would fill a book. As for me, I bayen't had but one close call worth relating.

"That's the very one I'm after," said the Detroit Free Press interviewer.

"Well, it didn't amount to much as an adventure, I'm afraid, though I'm free to say I was never more frightened for ten minutes. Between what is called the Granite ridges and Bad Water creek, in central Wyoming, is a fine cattle range. I was out with a small party last summer prospecting for cer-tain minerals, and had to cross this valley at about the center. There were four of us on horseback, with our outfit packed on the three lead mules, and at about two o'clock in the afternoon we sighted something to make the hair lift our hats right off our heads."

"Indians or grizzly bears?" queried

"Pish! The Indians were all right and grizzly bears don't wander down into the valleys by daylight. What we ighted was a herd of about four thouand cattle coming our way, and they were coming as if every critter was carrying one hundred pounds of steam. Two or three herds got mixed, and in trying to separate them the boys had started a general stampede. old days the buffaloes used to be some on the mad rush, but let me tell you that the wild cattle of the west can run a third faster, and when they once get started they will charge a flaming mountain. The front of the herd wasn't over a mile away when we sighted it, and it was no use to run before it, turn back, or ride ahead. Our horses were scrub stock and had no

"And there was no convenient grov or rock to shelter you?"

"Not a tree nor a rock for five miles around, but just where we pulled up was a natural ditch about fifty feet long cut out by the rains. It wasn't over two feet wide by twenty inches deep, but it was our only hope. We slipped off our horses, gave them a slap, and piled into that ditch face down.'

"And the herd passed over you?" I hadn't drawn three long breaths when the front of the herd was at hand. Let me just tell you that I was never so scared in all my born days. Every critter was bellowing, horns clashing, hoofs digging up the soil, and as each one jumped the ditch he caved the dirt in on me. I felt fifty different hoofs scuff my back, and every instant expected to be stepped on. It took the herd only about ten minutes to pass, but the time seemed hours long to me. When the last one had come and gone I was regularly covered in and had to be dug out. Two of the stepped on and badly hurt. Two of the party were

'And your horses and mules?" "Picked up on the horns of the cattle and tossed about and stepped on till they were reduced to pulp. Just cleaned us out as slick as a whistle. If we'd been in our saddles nobody would have recognized us as having once been human beings.

"Seemed like the hand of providence, didn't it?"

"Of course. That's what we look for and depend upon out in our country. Come out some time and see how the old thing works when we are going to have an avalanche three miles long by a few thousand feet wide."

Not a Pleasant People.

An almost unknown race-or one rarely visited by Europeans-is described by Mr. G. S. Robertson. These people live in the sub-Himalayan region and are called Kafiristans. In many respects they are not a pleasant people. Their worst mental peculiarities are cuoldity, jealousy, and intertribal hatred. on the other hand they have c strong family affection and are capable of acts of heroism when at war. For killing one of their fellow tribesmen banish ment is the penalty. They have their cities of refuge. They have medicine men. Mr. Robertson intimates that there is a secret valley in Kafiristan where an unknown tongue is spoken the sound of which is like "a soft musical mewing."

A Curious Incident.

A train was recently stopped in France, on the line between Bellegarde and Geneva, under the following curi ous circumstances: A freight train had in one of its cars some cod liver oil, which began to leak away from the containing vessel. By chance, the escaping stream struck exactly in the middle of the rail. The train that bore the oil was not affected, but the track was thus well greased for the passen-ger train that followed, which came to a standstill when it reached the oily rails. Nearly three-quarters of an hour were consumed in running the two and a half miles to the next station. and this rate was only attained by diligent sanding of the track.

Chinese Boats Have "Eyes." Chinese junks and boats have eves earved or painted on the bows, which are usually supposed to be a mere fanciful form of ornamentation. But they have a real meaning, as a recent travel ler found. In going up one of the rivers from Ningpo he was startled one day by seeing a boatman seize his broad hat and clap it over one of the 'eyes" of the boat, while other boats on the stream were similarly blinded. Looking about for an explanation he saw a dead body floating past and he was told by the boatman that if the boat had been allowed to "see" it, some disaster [would surely have happened either to passengers or crew before the voyage ended.

Social of Fern Lodge, Degree of Honor.

"Social by name, but not by nature' certainly could not be applied to the social given by the gentlemen members of D. of H. lodge at Fraternity hall, last Wednesday night. After the transaction of the usual order of business, the doors of the hall were thrown open to about one hundred guests. The committee had announced their arrangements for the evening something like this: "Singing and literary exercises, with refreshments, whist and whirling. The first number on the program was an instrumental solo by Mrs. Eshelman. Then the audience were very pleasantly told by Mr. D. C. Herrin, in an original essay, the various meanings of the word "charity." A solo by Dr. O. D. Doane was listened to in the silence that denotes appreciation. Mrs. Herrin next recited a poem by Sam Simpson, and the beauties of our state acquired additional interest by her happy manner of relating them. The quartet composed of Messrs. Crandall, Johnson, Donne and Magee responded to an enthusiastic encore, one of that kind that would not be silenced, until the opening notes of the second number were heard. Miss Jennie Russell closed the program by reciting in a most excellent manner "The Green Mountain Justice." The young lady's representation was so realistic that the listeners could see as well as hear the sorry plight in which the justice and his wife were placed. The committee had gotten along finely until this moment, now they step aside, and to the ladies Lelongs the credit of the delicious luncheon next served the guests. The spirit of fun seemed to prevail, and when the tables were cleared, a merry crowd were clamoring for the "whirling" to commence. Whist tables were prepared for those who did not dance, and surely everybody had a good time. It was

TAKE STEPS in time, if you are a suf-ferer from that scourge of humanity known as consumption, and you can be cured. There is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that, in the fact that, in all its early stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but a large percentage of cases, and we believe, fully 98 per cent. are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed so far as to induce repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.

Do you doubt that hundreds of such cases reported to us as cured by "Golden Medical Discovery" were genuine cases of that dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so prot and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest whatever in mis-representing them, and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in curative power over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Nasty codliver oil and its filthy "emulsions" and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to benefit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Extract of malt, whiskey, and various preparations of the hypophosphites had also been faithfully tried in vair.

The photographs of a large number of those cured of consumption, bronchitis, lingering coughs, astima, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies, have been skillfully reproduced in a book of 160 pages which will be mailed to you, on receipt of address and six cents in stamps. You can then write to those who have been cured and profit by their experience.
