A DEAD DUDE.

Ward McAllister is dead and buried. It is more than sixty years since the time when his little pink toes, as a reminder of his Simian ancestry, shut themselves down towards the soles of the baby feet, in the instinctive effort to grasp in quadrumanian style some imaginary branch or limb. It is sixty years, and more, since his toothless little mouth drew from his mother's breast the genuine Holstein or Jersey lacteal that nourished his patrician body. And what a sixty years they were--for him. For the greater part of the time his brainlet has devoted the entire time to the fitting of garments, the measuring of that great human family, of which he was only second cousin, by the accidents of their birth, the size of their bank accounts, and their relationships with certain American aristocrats whose immediate ances tors were plebes from Plebeville. The Astors, whose grandfather was a very good trader, the Vanderbilts, whose were sized up by him as being by their wealth fit associates for the Stuyvesants, the Van Rensselears, the descendants of the wooden legged governor of New Amsterdam, and the Knickerbockers.

While the idea of an American aristocracy is amusing, McAllister's queer himself honored by being allowed to step, that Mr. Reed went to the oppo- historical 19th of April, 1775. assist as a pall bearer, and across the site extreme. coffin a representative of the Vanderbilts assisted in carrying to the hearse all that was either mortal or immortal Mr. Reed as a knave. And yet he died. Death loves a shining mark; also a mining shark, and gave him a swipe, just for his glitter, for in the world he was no use, and it is hard to understand what use he could be put to in the next. When the last day comes and Gabriel's trumpet sounds, then the weary bones of the great Ward will stir, and a faint voice will be heard querulously inquiring for his lavender pantalettes and kid gloves, and he will never fall in line without them.

THE TRUE ANARCHISTS.

There is no explaining why both the United States courts and congress manage always to find some way in which to give the public domain to corporations. Oregon & California Railway Company had earned 300,000 acres of land near cases. The United States contended that | the courts. the grant was to aid in the construction of a road from Portland via McMinnville roads, one to McMinnville from Portland, the other to Astoria, and that the grant was to the latter. The courts decided that there was one continuous road from Portland to Astoria and McMinnville, and that the construction of the road to McMinnville entitled the road to the lands, as far as that point. The case looks like a cold steal, but it is in keeping with the custom of courts and congress, for neither were ever known to render a decision or perform an act favorable to the people as against the claims of a corporation.

The anarchists of this country who will eventually cause a terrible upheaval thing is the prevention of any new ones are not the Johann Mosts, the Fieldings, the Spies, the Linngs. They are the Huntingtons, the Crockers, the congress and the United States courts. With these and such as these lurks the danger to our institutions.

Senator Smith of Wasco and Sherman counties has introduced a sensible bill, which would settle the question of making the Columbia river available as a means of getting the products of the eastern portion of the state to market. It is short and to the point, simply providing that when switches are put in at Celilo and The Dalles, the O. R. & N. shall furnish cars and haul them beprices. If the bill could be passed and enfored it would be a great thing, but as the courts would have to construe the law, it would be many years before any settlement of the question could be reached.

NOT TO BE SNUBBED.

When Rev. J. C. Reed, who attempt-Wednesday, was safely lodged in jail, he tion of the state militia. was asked what motive he had for the crime, and said:

"They snubbed me; would not allow City Baptist church when that church was in need of a pastor, and in every since my return from the East. I have spent almost my last cent, and worried to desperation I attempted the robberv of the First National bank." To the average mind the facts stated

DEBS COULD CATCH HIM. Mr. Pullman, the proprietor, or principal stockholder at least, of the Pullman car works and car system, is a very large man. He has fattened off the public until he hath grown so great that petty United States courts and small state governments can peep beneath his huge legs and admire his giant form, but only to realize that he is above their reach. Yesterday in Chicago a deputy United States marshal was seeking him for the purpose of serving a subpoena on him requiring him to appear before Judge Grosscup to give testimony in the conspiracy cases of Debs and others. The officer of the court was sent from one room to the other, ordered about by Pullman clerks, put on false trails after his czarship, Pullman, and after an entire day spent in this manner, was told Pullman had gone to New York. If the United States court is not large enough The recent action of the court of appeals or powerful enough to bring Mr. Pullat San Francisco, in deciding that the man to taw and compel him to testify, we suggest that Mr. Debs and those indicted with him, be turned loose, and Forest Grove, modestly estimated to be that when next Mr. Pullman applies to worth $1,000,000, but probably worth the law for protection, he be treated $5,000,000, is one of these inexplainable with the same respect that he shows for

We are firmly of the opinion that if the courts will not interfere, Mr. Debs to Astoria or rather that there were two and his old associates can soon chase Pullman into the very presence of the United States courts, and make him long for a sight of that same deputy marshal. At any rate, the experiment might be worth trying should the occasion again require, and the lesson might be worth something to Pullman.

> It is now claimed that the anti-Dolph legislators are going to attempt to block all legislation. As it seems quite probable that the railroad commission and its fellows are to be continued, it is perhaps the most creditable thing that faction has yet done. If there can be no repeal

THE STATE MILITIA.

There being some talk of reducing or doing away with the state militia, by the present legislature, Captain John W. Lewis, recently of the land office here, and an old soldier who saw service both during the late war and on the frontier, tween the points named for stated and who is by reason thereof thoroughly competent to measure the value of a state militia, has written a letter in defense of the system as follows:

THE DALLES, Or., Feb. 4, '95. Hon. W. W. Steiwer, State Senator, Salem. DEAR SIE:-Obedient to the demand of the people for retrenchment in the expenses of the state government, I note that several bills have been introduced ed to rob the East Portland bank in the assembly touching the organiza-

When the first call was made in 1861 for 75,000 men, one Massach isetts regiment of militia resolved to go in a body, and 1,400 of that organization offered their services to the government. The famous Seventh regiment of the New York National Guard-then as now the 'crack' militia regiment of that state, went in a body at the first call to arms to the defence of the nation's capital, and during the civil war its members won distinction in every battle for the union from the first "Bull Run" to Appomattox. Some of the most able and efficient members of our own National Guard of Oregon were formerly members of that organization, and should occasion arise, our own guard would be as prompt in response to lawful demand, and as faithful and efficient in discharge of their duty, whether to repel a foreign foe or to put down rebellion, as their ancestors have been in former wars.

The freedom of our state from the troubles that obtained in other sections of the union, incident to the many strikes of the labor organizations last summer, was largely due to the efficient organization, the drill and discipline of the guard, and the prevalent feeling among the people at large that the officers and men composing it could be depended upon in any emergency to do their duty in support of law and order. The yearly cost to the state of the present militia establishment is about $30 .-000, which is surely a cheap insurance against anarchy; a day or two of the latter rule would cost more than the whole year's expense of the militia or-

Much of the success of the rebels in the early part of the civil war was due to the vastly superior drill and discipline of the militis of the southern states, which was generally reorganized a few years before the war with the distinct end in view of it being used as a nucleus for an army to oppose the national government should the republican party or "the north," succeed in electing their candidate for president, while the organizations in the north, with a few notable exceptions, had degenerated into "corn stalk militia." One of the best drilled and most strictly disciplined organizations that ever came everything, but it will cure piles. under my observation was a battalion of the state guard, under command of Col. river), encamped at Lexington, Kentucky, in the latter part of 1860. "A" company, known as the "Rifles," was a "crack" company, and was commanded by Capt. John H. Morgan (during the civil war known as the great cavalry raider.) This company furnished some 112 to 1i5 commissioned officers to the rebel army during the war. A rival company, the "Chasseurs," was commanded by Captain S. D. Bruce (afterwards colonel of Twentieth Kentucky Union Regiment.) This company also furnished more than 100 commissioned officers, but to the Union army.

No such use of armed forces is anticipated for generations to come, and we hope never; but the same efficiency which told so plainly in the civil war would surely be worth much more in the defence of home and fireside from a foreign foe.

The O. N. G. should not be shorn of its efficiency.

A resolution was introduced by Senator Patterson Wednesday, proposing an amendment to the constitution giving women the right to vote. The resolution passed both houses by a handsome vote, and unless some legal objection can be found to it the matter will be submitted in three years from now to the people. We have always believed that women should be granted the right belief that the presence of women at the polls and their taking an active part in politics would go a long ways towards purifying elections. We see no reason why a woman should not vote just as intelligently as a man, and just as conscientiously. If this amendment comes before the people it should carry, and we believe it will.

On motion of Mr. Rowland, seconded by Mr. Huntington, it was ordered that a committee be appointed by the chairman to devise ways and means for having a pamphlet printed setting forth the resources of this section of country in general and The Dalles in particular. The chair appointed Mr. J. M. Huntington and M. Whealdon as such committee.

On motion of Mr. Hudson, seconded by Mr. Rowland, it was ordered that the name of the association be called the "Real Estate Exchange of The Dalles, Oregon."

On motion of Mr. Hudson, it was ordered that the meeting adjourn subject to call of chairman. There appearing no further business before the meeting, on motion ordered adjourned.

After adjournment it was informally assented to by all present that the constitute themselves as a committee of the whole to invite other real estate dealers to attend.

The Senatorial Vote.

The situation at Salem is unchanged. The vote today was Dolph 41, Hermann 13. Williams 9, Hare 10, Weatherford 8, Lowell 3, Lord 4. Paired Carter and Scott.

There was a rumor in circulation here this morning that some arrangement had been made that would show a decided change in the vote, and probably result in the settling of the matter. Not much credence was given the report especially by those who know anything of the grounds upon which the opposition to Dolph is based, and of the men who are opposing him. We believe that the situation will not be changed until Dolph's name is withdrawn and as this is not likely to happen, it is probable that Oregon will be represented by but one senator for the next two years.
