Clubbing List.

The CHRONICLE, which gives the news twice a week, has made arrangements to club with the following publications, and offers two papers one year for little more than the price of one:

Table with columns for publication name, regular price, and clubbing price. Includes Chronicle and N. Y. Tribune, Chronicle and Weekly Oregonian, etc.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Wednesday's Daily.

The fruitgrowers of the Northwest met in convention at Portland this morning. We are requested to state that the Union Dancing club will give a dance tonight, as usual, and that the notice yesterday was a mistake.

An assault and battery case commenced before Justice Davis yesterday, was dismissed this morning, the prosecuting witness paying the costs.

J. S. Jayne of 8-Mile cut his left thumb nearly off while splitting wood yesterday. Dr. Hollister sewed it back in place and has some hopes of saving it.

The weather is simply perfect, but is unreasonable. If continued any length of time the fruit buds would start and be almost certain of getting nipped by the cold weather later.

Notices of dances, meetings of societies, or of the change of dates of meeting thereof, or any other notices of that kind, must be in writing and signed by some responsible party to insure their publication in this paper. Don't forget it.

The annual meeting of the East End Hose Company will be held at their building this evening, at 7:30 o'clock. As the officers for the ensuing year will be elected, and there is other important business, it is desired that every member attend.

Perry Watkins, jr., died at his home in Moro, at midnight Monday. He was about 38 years of age and leaves a widow and two children. The funeral will take place from the Christian church in this city tomorrow (Thursday) at 11 o'clock a. m.

We are requested to state that there will be a farmers' meeting at 8-Mile next Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, for the purpose of discussing methods of getting rid of the thistles. An invitation is extended to all interested in the matter to attend the meeting.

The situation at Salem remains unchanged, and the deadlock is growing apparently firmer. The vote today was Dolph 39, Hermann 13, Williams 9, Hare 10, Lord 3, Lowell 3, Weatherford 7. Paired Carter and Cogswell, Myers and Rinearson, Scott and Templeton.

The Chinese wedding which took place here last Saturday, and finally wound up by the newly married couple being popped into jail shortly after midnight, has evidently proved too binding for the highbinders to break. The complaint against them was dismissed this morning, the complaining witness paying the costs.

We published a notice Monday to the effect that Mrs. Foss of Hood River had died the day before. Our informant made a mistake and we misunderstood him. We are pleased, indeed, to know that Mrs. Foss is still very much alive. It was Mrs. Frost who died and not Mrs. Foss.

Mr. Wickham came in from Fairview, which is located on the ridge between 5-Mile and Mill creek, eleven miles southwest of town, this morning. He tells us there were 4 1/2 feet of snow there this winter, and for a while it was pretty hard work breaking roads, etc., but that now the snow is about 16 inches but going off rapidly.

"Frou Frou" was presented to one of the largest audiences last night that ever gathered in The Dalles. The Tittell Sisters may put it down on the tablets of their memories that they have a host of warm admirers here, and that whenever they conclude to again visit us, they will find the house packed with an audience already determined to be pleased with whatever these talented ladies may present them. And right on top of this we wish to add that the efforts of the Orchestra Union to give us some first class entertainments are thoroughly appreciated.

Thursday's Daily

Mrs. M. E. Briggs has purchased the millinery store of Anna Peter & Co. There was quite a heavy frost last night, but the lilac buds seem to be swelling regardless of cold or anything else.

Circuit court meets Monday. The docket is not a very large one, and the term will not last long, most of the cases being such as to permit speedy settlement.

At the annual meeting of the East End Hose Co., held last night, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: H. L. Kuck, president; J. L. Davis, secretary; F. Kramer, treasurer; J. H. St. Arnold, foreman; J. S. Schooling, 1st assistant foreman; R. E. Saltmarsh, 2d assistant foreman; H. L. Kuck, L. S. Davis and W. H. Lochhead delegates to the fire board. This company appears to be in a flourishing condition. County Judge Mariner and Sheriff Wilson, both of Gilliam county, have been in the city during the week. Judge Mariner is still here and is running through the list of property situated in his county for which receiver's receipts have been issued.

Friday's Daily.

Justice Davis' court has been trying small civil case today.

School Superintendent Shelley will hold a special teachers' examination Wednesday, Feb. 13th.

Just watch our advertising column tomorrow and see what Mr. F. Fortin has to say in a business way.

This session of the legislature can last but 14 days more, unless the members desire to serve awhile without pay.

The literary society will hold their meeting in the audience room of the Congregational church this evening at 8 o'clock.

The following deed was filed for record today: J. D. Lee and wife to D. M. and J. W. French, 65 acres adjoining the John A. Simms donation land claim in tp 1 n, r 13 e; consideration, $2,000.

It is estimated that about 1,000,000 pounds of hogs have been shipped from the Elgin yards this season. As these were all 4-cent hogs, it would bring in $40,000. It is figured that not one-half of Wallowa county hogs have been marketed.

Congressman Champ Clark says he is never going to send his boy to school until he has taught him all he himself knows. The boy is now 8 years old and will probably start to school next year. That is, of course, if Mr. Clark may be considered up to the congressional average.

The new telephone company is pushing its line along very fast. Some very large poles have been received and are being placed in position in the business portion of the city. About 75 miles of wire for the line has also been received, and it will be put in place just as quickly as possible.

The putting up of the new telephone line is giving employment to a large number of people. There is quite a number employed in dressing the big poles down to a proper smoothness, and another large number are engaged in mortising holes in the earth in which the poles will be placed.

S. A. Clarke had quite a spat with some of his fellow members of the horticultural society at Portland yesterday. The chief feature of the occasion was Mr. Clarke's rivalry of the great George Washington. He said "he was 68 years old, and never told a lie," and then he read an original poem written in the key of G.

The situation at Salem is the same as yesterday, Dolph holds his 42, but Hermann is now out of the fight to stay. The larger portion of the vote made free by Hermann's withdrawal went to Lowell. The vote in detail was as follows: Dolph 41, Williams 11, Hare 10, Lord 8, Weatherford 8, Lowell 10. Paired Thompson and Scott.

At the regular annual meeting of Columbia Hose Company, No. 2, the following officers were elected: Foreman, F. W. Bayley; 1st assistant foreman, Geo. Gibbons; 2d assistant foreman, Hugh Chrisman; president, H. J. Maier; secretary, C. C. Cooper; treasurer, E. C. Pease. Member of the board of delegates, J. S. Fish, Joe Worsley, H. J. Maier.

The horticulturists, railroad men and commission merchants of the East are having a love feast in Portland. We note the name of S. A. Clarke as one of the leading fruit pests of the assembly and that he tells what he knows about prunes in 1894, which should not have taken him long. The apple exhibit is said to be very good.

A movement is on foot to build a bicycle road from Oregon City to Eugene, plank six feet wide, it right of way can be secured. The object is to build it along the side of county roads by most direct route. Road to be tolled for bicyclists, but free to school children and pedestrians. All crossings to be kept in repair at the expense of the company.

Gus Schroder was down from Silver Lake last week. He reports that everybody is getting along as well as possible, but some are in a horrible condition. George Payne, the man who upset the death-laden lamp, was so badly burned that the flesh has fallen off his back, leaving part of his backbone and three ribs exposed. Several others are in pretty bad shape.—Lakeview Examiner.

It is time to quit kicking one another about our legislators violating their pledges. The platform of each political party demanded the abolishing of the railroad commission, yet most of the legislators are candidates for the place, or have some friend whom they desire to give it to. Just mark our words that there are a whole lot of pledges, democratic and populist as well as republican, that will be lost sight of the next two weeks by the representatives of all of those parties at Salem.

Jos. T. Peters & Co. have cord wood, which is desirable in all respects, and respectfully solicit your orders.

A Proper Bill.

The following resolution was introduced in the Washington legislature, and it should not only pass that body, but should be indorsed by our own.

WHEREAS, The low price of farm products necessitates their delivery at points of exchange or sale, at the lowest possible price for freight charges; and WHEREAS, The Columbia river, if unobstructed, would furnish a cheap and effective means of transportation to a large portion of the state of Washington, which is now at the mercy of railroad transportation lines; and

Resolved by the house of representatives of the state of Washington, the senate concurring, That the senators and representatives of the state of Washington, in the congress of the United States, use every means in their power to secure the placing of the construction of such improvements under contract; and be it further

Resolved, That the secretary of state of the state of Washington be and is hereby instructed to furnish a copy of this resolution to each of the United States senators and representatives of said state.

THE DALLES, OR., Jan. 26, '95. Whereas, by the ratification of the committee decision by the First Christian church, at its meeting held on the night of the 25th instant, all offices were abandoned, this is to give notice that we the undersigned will not be held responsible as trustees of said church society in any shape or manner after said date, and if the said office of trustees was not legally done away with at said meeting, we hereby respectfully tender our resignation, to take effect at once.

First National of East Portland is Held Up.

A most desperate attempt to rob the First National bank of East Portland, on the corner of Union avenue and East Washington street, was made yesterday afternoon by Rev. J. C. Reed, formerly a Baptist minister on the East Side.

At 12:30 o'clock Teller E. T. Holgate was alone in the bank, when a man disguised with false whiskers, entered. Holgate recognized him as being Reed. The teller stepped from a desk where he had been writing in a book, to the counter, when Reed drew a bottle from his pocket containing a white substance, and said:

"This is nitro glycerine and there's enough of it to blow you and me to hell!"

Holgate being startled at the man's conduct, stepped back of the counter a few steps, upon which the robber pulled a revolver, which seemed of very large caliber to the teller at that moment, exclaiming:

"Hold up your hands, or I'll blow your brains out! Place your hands behind your back!"

The young teller obeyed the order, and Reed, passing through the directors' room, walked behind the counter, where he secured Holgate's hands with a heavy whip cord, and he blindfolded and gagged him, compelling him to crouch underneath the counter. Then the robber barred the Union avenue entrance with an iron bar, and began helping himself to the coin.

Holgate says:

"He had a sack with him, and just as he dropped the first stack of $20 pieces into it Teller D. C. Southworth came along with a shotgun which he shoved through the glass door and shouted to Reed to hold up his hands. Reed cried out to him not to shoot, as he was unarmed, and was ready to surrender. The fellow had in the meantime taken off his false whiskers and disposed of his pistol, which looked much smaller to me subsequently than it originally did when it was shoved under my nose. A few minutes after Mr. Southworth came to my rescue. Reed was arrested and taken to the West Side police station."

Reed was seen at the central police station at 1 o'clock. He did not appear much agitated over his adventure. The police were having him in charge all the afternoon, so no story could be obtained from him.

MR. SOUTHWORTH'S STORY.

Holgate's rescuer, Teller D. C. Southworth, of the Citizen's bank, says that his attention first was attracted to the robber by his peculiar make-up, as he was walking down East Washington street toward the First National. He saw him stop in front of the bank, hesitating a moment or two and enter. He believed him to be a fakir, and for a few seconds thought no more of the man. He continued:

"The next time I looked over to the First National, I saw Holgate with his back to the counter and his hands crossed on it. Even then I supposed the stranger teaching Holgate a trick, but subsequently, when I observed the supposed fakir blindfold Holgate and shove him under the counter, I surmised that there was something wrong. I called our messenger, Ed Miller, into the bank from an adjoining room, put on my hat and, taking a shotgun out of the vault, I went across the street. I first looked into the south window of the bank and saw the robber piling gold into a sack. As soon as he observed me, he fell behind the counter on his hands. I cried to him to hold up his hands and stand quiet or I would fire at him. The fellow supplicated me not to shoot, claiming to be unarmed. There was a stranger standing in front of the bank, who must have seen all that was passing within. I asked him to hurry for an officer, but the fellow remained there a few moments longer with an idiotic leer, but disappeared as the crowd gathered.

"I jumped to the front door, and, being unable to gain an entrance, I shoved my gun through the glass, keeping my man covered with it. In the crowd that had assembled at this time was M. D. George, whom I requested to get an officer, and in a short time thereafter we had Mr. Reed where he could do no more harm."

A Barberous Story.

Hoot Soot, a Umatilla Indian, has sued the court of Indian offenses, a duly organized court under the United States laws, and Ed Brisbow, an Indian policeman, in the justice court at Pendleton, and recovered judgment against them for $200. It seems that Hoot Soot filled up on tangleleg, and in trying to hoot tooot himself managed to let his hooter, which is from Hootersville, annoy the public to such an extent that he was arrested, his hlr-soot (the gender is slightly mixed) covering being curtailed on his head, so that his Indian friends dropped the latter portion of his name and simply Hooted him. In other words, the court had his hair cut, and his friends gave him what is called in the aboriginal American tongue, the "horse laugh."

Hoot Soot, having, by being allotted lands in severally, and also by having been solemnly treated with the same as a foreign potentate, became by the peculiar action of law a citizen of the republic, with all the rights and privileges of a corporation—that is, to have his affairs looked after and protected by the government, as well as the rights of a citizen; that is to take in a jag and get chucked in the cooler, yanked before the base minions of the white man's law next morning, and hear the sapient remark, "$10 or five days"—felt that his person was sacred, and that the hairs of his head could no more be cut off by a primitive and savage court than the heirs of his body could from their rights in the reversion, remainder, rents, issues and profits of his segregated land by a deed in fee simple, under his sign manual—the sign of the cross—duly attested, sealed and acknowledged. So feeling, he probably for the first time in his life, sought the law instead of defying it, and was no doubt as much astonished as gratified to find that it was more profitable to raise a crop of hair on his own head than from that of his enemy.

The court of Indian offenses will probably cease to court, for at $200 a hair cut, the execution of the courts favorite sentence is too much like shaving a pig for wool—shear nonsense. The case will be appealed, and Hoot Soot will have a yet more profound veneration for his white brothers' laws, and also another fine crop of hair, before the case is finally decided—and the costs paid. It will take another crop of hair, at least, to pay up the expenses for harvesting the last one.

Don't neglect that cough, it leads to consumption. One Minute Cough Cure possesses a double virtue. It cures and cures quickly. Snipes-Kinersly Drug Co.
