"STILL THE WONDER GREW."

Sydney Dell asserts that the goldbugs are buying all the newspapers advertising the free coinage of silver, for the sole and express purpose of preventing his, the said Sydney Dell's, dissertations on finance in general, and silver in particular, from getting into print. Being refused space in the larger papers. Sydney advises the country press to pass the "sieve" around, and re-print his letter to the president, from which the following is a clipping:

"Sir, suppose Japan in her thirst for conquest and lust for gold should levy a billion dollars upon this Pacific slope, it would shake this nation from ocean to Five million armed Yankee property holders and laborers would spring forth and efface that nation from the maps of the earth. You, however, aid the Rothschilds, at the head of a syndicate owning 100,000,000,000 in gold bonds, to annihilate fifty per cent of all the values in the union in twelve months, 30,000,000,000 of which is confiscation pure and simple! Yet not a stir is made; not a bugle call! Why? Because of ignorance! The people night Friday, we have been asked to slumber in fancied security upon the gold coinage standard because they know not their trusted sentries-the "leading press" are manacled by you and the Rothschilds. The country press and small dailies are the only "free press" left to the people. Poor dumb slaves! Poor dumb mouths! Were there one leading unfettered daily it could shake this nation from ocean to "Gold rose four cents all over the world on your last bond issue, as reducing the per capita of gold. The Rochschilds will now force China to the gold standard. Serfdom and starvation are upon us, Mr. President. From where I write at this moment are seen eight bright, strong American mechanics struggling for the job of cutting a cord of wood to save their families from starvation.

"Caesar had his Brutus, Charles the Second his Cromwell," and Grover Cleveland should profit by their example.

It will be seen that Sydney thinks a levy of one billion of dollars on this coast by the Japanese, and "one leading unfettered daily," could each "shake this nation from ocean to ocean." And alas! poor Sydney; from his observatory in Astoria he casts his starboard eve across the Pacific, and he sees China reduced to a gold standard by the Rothcnilds, and starvation following it, while his port orb sees in his neighbor's back yard eight Astoria carpenters struggling for a job of sawing wood.

The great trouble with Sydney is, that ever since he discovered in the democratic convention of 1886 that Pennoyer was a man, his hat has pinched him, and his megacephalous condition prevents his understanding that his articles are retused space in the newspapers because of their inanity. His mental vaporings are as sudoriferous as a steam bath, and as weakening.

"Caesar had his Brutus, Charles the Cleveland his Sydney Dell. From Charles had a snap as compared to the legal fraternity will get a small swipe

FREDERICK DOUGLASS

Frederick Douglass, the well-known colored orator, died suddenly of heart disease at his residence in Anacostia, opposite Washington, at 7 o'clock last

Mr. Douglass had just completed his 78th year. After his many vicissitudes he died in seemingly excellent health, not many miles distant from the county on the eastern shore of Maryland, where he was born a slave in February, 1817. His death was entirely unexpected, as States, and chatted with Susan B. Anthony and others of the leading members, with whom he had been on intimate terms for many years. When he returned home he said that he had nothing indicating any feeling of illness, although he appeared to be a little ex-hausted from the climb up the steep flight of steps leading from the street to the house, which is on a high terrace.

He sat down and chatted with his wife about the women at the convention, telling various things that had been said and done. Suddenly he gasped, clapped moned and arrived within a very few moments, but the efforts to revive Fred Douglass were fruitless from the first. Within 20 minutes after the attack, the faint motion of his heart ceased entirely and the great ex-slave and statesman was dead.

Douglass leaves two sons and daughter, children of his first wife. His second wife, who was a white woman, survives him.

OUR GOVERNORS.

A statement in THE CHRONICLE Tuesday that Lane was the first territorial governor of Oregon, brings from a reader the further statement just for the information of those who don't know, which is all who have not looked it up, that Abernethy was the first governor under the provisional government. He Portland, March 2, 1849. In company with Lieut. Winchell he hired a canoe and went to Oregon City, the seat of government at that time, and on March 3d issued his proclamation as governor. He was succeeded in the governor's office by Gaines, in Taylor's administration. Gaines was followed by Davis, but the local democracy who were just as lusty kickers then as now, objected to an resigned, and Curry, who was territorial secretary, became acting governor.

John Whittaker was elected at the time the constitution was adopted and was the first governor of the state, Gibbs followed in 1862; Woods in 1866; Grover in 1870, being re-elected in 1874, but being elected senator Chadwick became governor, Thayer was elected in 1878. Moody in 1882, Pennoyer in 1886 and Lord in 1894.

AT MIDNIGHT FRIDAY.

As nearly all the papers in the state give Saturday as the time fixed for the adjournment of the legislature, while a few fix the end of the session at midstate the correct time. The law provides that the legislature shall meet on the second Monday in January, and may set forty days, drawing pay for that time. It may continue twenty days longer without pay. The session beginning on the 14th would have eighteen days in January, and would therefore close at midnight of the 22d of Feb-

The 22d day of February is a legal holiday, but is not a non-judicial day, so that, without bringing in the question of the legislature's right otherwise to hold a session on that day, it would be legal for it to do so under the provisions of the law. The session will, therefore, terminate at midnight day-after-tomorrow, Friday. It is quite probable that the adjournment will not take place until some time Saturday, in order that bills may be signed and the business of the session properly wound up.

Mr. Brooks calls our attention to the history of the first legislature of this state, just by way of comparison with the present one. It met May 1st, lasted three days and enacted laws enough to amply provide for carrying on the business of the country. The members voted themselves $1.25 per day and board, and the entire expense of the session was $67.50.

The financial question is on top just now, because a number of circumstances have combined to drain the treasury, and these circumstances are being taken advantage of by capitalists to lout the treasury and make a shuttlecock of the nation's money for speculative purposes. This will soon pass away, and that other question, of more importance than finance, of greater import than the tariff, will come irresistably to the ply nominal. front, and it will stay to the front until it is answered, and answered right. The question of the rights of labor, the duties of capital, and the control of corporations is one to which the wisest statesman may devote all his energies, and find a task that may baffle his utmost skill. It is a question the answerwas succeeded by Lane, who arrived at ing of which will affect, not only the prosperity of the government, but its existence; and to arrive at a correct answer will require, not only good statesmanship, but a largely developed patriotism on the part of every citizen of the republic. Heretofore the question has been debated by two bitter partisans, the laborer on one side, the capitalists on the other, and each has tried to convince the pub-Eastern man being appointed and made lic and themselves that they were right. it so uncomfortable for Davis that he The matter does not want to be approached from either of these standpoints. It must be settled on the basis of the greatest good to the entire people. The interests of capital and labor are the same; neither can do much without the other, for granted that labor creates capital, and that labor can create new capital if the present stock were all taken away, yet when it has created it it is capital still.

The relative position of these two commodities has changed wonderfully within the past fifty years, is changing rapidly still, and this change is driving the two forces, that must be friends for either to prosper, yet wider apart. Vast aggregations of wealth are necessary to carry on the business of modern times, especially in the matter of railroads. These vast sums, or the roads that represent them, are simply legitimate money-making machines, built for the purpose of returning to the owners a proper return on their money. This at least was their condition at first, but of late years the speculator, the railroad wrecker, and the money-kings have used these roads as playthings. Instead of being run for the purpose of earning a fair return on the money invested, and which is their right, the actual values of the roads and rolling stock are well "watered," so that where $5,000,000 are invested, the stock issued and the false capitalization shows the adjournment will not take place until some time Saturday, in order that bills may be signed and the business of the session properly wound up.

It is really to be hoped that this deministration of the money invested, but on the fictitious values given. The result is that an unnecessary tax is levied upon the producer, to get his crops to market, and the thumb-screws are put on the Swgr and SEq. 9

Golden Medical Discovery. It works wonders. By restoring the normal action of the deranged organs and functions, it builds the flesh up to a safe and healthy standard—promptly, pleasantly and naturally. The weak, emaciated, thin, pale and puny are made emaciated, thin, pale and puny are made strong, plump, round and rosy. Nothing so effective as a strength restorer and flesh maker is known to medical science; this puts on healthy flesh not the fat of cod liver oil and its filthy compounds. It rouses every organ of the body to activity, purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood so that the body feels refreshed and strengthened. If you are too thin, too weak, too nervous, it may be that the food assimilation is at fault. A certain amount of bile is necessary for the reception of the fat foods in the blood. Too often the liver holds back this element which would help digestion. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery stimulates, tones up and invigorates the liver, nourishes the blood, and the muscles, stomach and nerves get the the muscles, stomach and nerves get the rich blood they require.
