LOCAL BREVITIES.

Wednesday's Daily.

The weather bureau reported this morning, occasional showers for today, and tomorrow fair and cooler.

Huskey, the boy tried for shooting a dog belonging to Mrs. Bachelor, was found guilty and fined $40 and costs.

Next Sunday being Easter, several children will make their first communion at the Catholic church at 7 o'clock mass.

The wind yesterday afternoon was not so powerful here, but on the river below and the high ground back of the city it was a regular scorcher.

Castle Haworth, which stands on the bluff overlooking the site suggested for the branch insane asylum, shows up from town as the largest thing in that direction, except Mount Hood.

The directors of the D. P. & A. N. Co. met soon after their election and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: S. L. Brooks, president, Orion Kinerly, vice president, M. T. Nolan, secretary, J. S. Schenck, treasurer.

The Regulator came in last night a little late on account of the heavy wind that made her hug the shore. With two men at the wheel it was all that could be done to keep her steady, it being one of the worst storms experienced in a long time on the middle Columbia. She brought fifty-two passengers.

Easter Sunday, the 14th. All the churches are preparing for appropriate services on the day, and they will all be crowded. There is something about the Easter services that overcome even the non-church-going proclivities of those who do not usually attend the churches during the balance of the year, and cause them to wend their way on that day to the house of prayer.

The Woodmen had a very pleasant entertainment last night. Fraternity hall was well filled and from the hearty applause given the different numbers all enjoyed the affair thoroughly. The program consisted of recitations and music, followed by a broom drill by a class of young ladies that was heartily applauded. At its conclusion refreshments were served and after that dancing was indulged in until midnight.

The fishing season began at 12 o'clock last night. The low stage of the river will prevent much of a catch at the start as the water is not up to most of the wheels. Some net fishing will be done, but until the river rises the catch as well as the run will be light. The Seufert Bros. have two wheels at Celilo that will take in the fish at the present stage of water, provided there are any to take in. Fishermen say there are a few chinooks running, but that is about all.

Benton county farmers are paying some attention to the new stock food, vetches. Last season Miles Starr and several neighbors grew the crop with marked success, and have re-sown this season with excellent crop prospect. In an experiment of a month each, recently, in which the milk was accurately measured, C. D. Thompson, farmer at the O. A. C., made a feeding test to milch cows with vetches and clover and found no difference in their value as milk-producing food.

Thursday's Daily

The Wasco warehouse received a load of wool from Klickitat county this afternoon, fifteen sacks.

The river today is 8 feet, 4 inches above low water mark, a fall of two inches since the first of the week.

We are told there is to be a wedding soon, in which the bride and groom, are both well-known young people of The Dalles.

There will be no services at the First Baptist church Sunday, owing to the absence of the pastor, Rev. O. D. Taylor, who is in California.

One of the prettiest drives imaginable at this time is up Mill creek. It is a mass of bloom for miles and the air is sweet with the perfume of orchard blossoms.

The Dalles City today towed the little steamer, Water Witch, from Portland to the Cascades. She will be hauled over to the middle Columbia and used by the Day Bros. in visiting their quarries.

Owing to the probable absence of Pastor Taylor, the First Baptist church at its service last Sunday voted to postpone the April business meeting for one month, unless sooner called by the advisory committee.

Mr. A. Bettingen, Sr., in a recent letter, gives a description of his travels. He was at the time of his writing in Rome, having just returned from a trip to Jerusalem and through the Holy Land. He stated that he would visit Berlin, and then spend some time in Paris, where he has numerous friends, so that he will probably not return to The Dalles until fall.

The show window at Martin Donnell's drugstore is prettily decorated with a display of Easter eggs, colored in handsome designs. There are some very cute human faces painted on some of them, the handiwork of Mrs. Barrett. Besides this Martin has nificated in that same window, and put seven red egg in it.

The Snipes-Kinerly Drug Co. have a window appropriately arranged for Easter. The bottom is covered with sod and in this is set a large pan filled with water, and the whole is devoted to the use of a large white hen and a family of young ducklings. There is a crowd at the window all the time watching the antics of the ducklings.

Harry Liebe is the saddest man in town this morning. At the giving away of the bicycles last night he, by a wonderful stroke of bad luck, was awarded both of them, hence his sorrow. It is a touching sight to see him standing between the two wheels, while his eyes have a far-away look, and his lips murmur that old refrain, "How happy could I be with either, were t'other dear charmer away." What is it makes Harry sad? Because he isn't twins.

The water commission has ordered what is known as the old Pentland reservoir on the bluff on Court street, emptied and the work has been going on for several days. There is no means of letting the water out only through the overflow gates, and as soon as the water is reduced to this level, the ditch is made deeper, and the water again allowed to run. As the reservoir is twelve feet deep it will take several days before the water is all out of it. This reservoir has not been used for a long time, and we understand the intention of the water commission is to sell the ground.

The O. R. & N. has made a rate from Portland to Spokane, of 50 per cent. of the rate charged from St. Paul to the same point. This will open up quite a trade to the Portland jobber, but as it cuts into Spokane's business that city is not at all pleased with the rate. The traffic managers of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific were in consultation with General Freight Agent Campbell at Portland yesterday, for several hours, but that gentleman insisted upon maintaining the cut.

The authorities of the East Oregon normal school have sent in for a large slice of their appropriation, but Secretary of State Kincaid thinks they are not entitled to it that way. He thinks the only way sanctioned by the constitution for the payment of money is upon bills properly audited by him. The understanding of the institutions getting appropriations has been that they could draw it quarterly and spend it as they pleased, but Mr. Kincaid says it is intended for certain purposes and the vouchers therefor must be filed and audited in his office.

Dr. E. J. Thomas, who formerly resided at Hood River, but who recently was stationed at the Spokane Indian agency, in his professional capacity, visited Hood River, Monday, on his way to Monmouth, where he has purchased a drugstore. He was one of the charter members of Waucoma lodge, K. of P. of Hood River, and his brother knights gave him a reception in the shape of a banquet and an evening spent in social enjoyment. The doctor, by the way, was one of those who were on the ferry boat that broke loose a few weeks ago at the Spokane agency and came near taking its load down over the rapids.

Friday's Daily.

Mr. Stone captured the Rambler bicycle at Mays & Crowe's last night.

Rambler bicycles will be given away at Nolan's store on and after this date.

Quite a number of Chinese have arrived and will go to work in the cannery.

Mr. Herrick expects to employ white labor in his cannery if it is possible to get it. This mooted question will soon be decided.

The recorder's court interviewed one solitary drunk today. When arrested last night he let a series of yells out, that awakened everybody this side of Mill creek.

Orders left at either music store for piano tuning will receive prompt attention by W. S. Geary, the well-known tuner and repairer.

A letter received from Rev. J. H. Wood, states that his little daughter is much better. He expects to return to The Dalles tomorrow.

The King's Daughters, at their last meeting, passed a vote of thanks to The Dalles Dramatic club, for the donation given them from the proceeds of the play, Nevada.

One deed was filed for record today. It was from D. W. Edwards and wife to Joseph T. Peters, for lot 4, block 9, Laughlin's addition to Dalles City; consideration, $1200.

The trial of Preacher J. O. Reed who undertook to rob the First National bank at East Portland some time ago, has begun in Portland. The defense will be made on the theory that Reed was insane.

No salmon have been caught here yet. The very low water is the cause, first, because the salmon will not run and second because the water is not up to the wheels, so that the few stragglers can be reached.

The man arrested last night, whom we mention elsewhere, put up this morning and was released. By noon, however, he had another jag and was back in the cooler. He did nothing all afternoon but sing and whistle.

Some miners prospecting on the head of Forest creek, about nine miles from Jacksonville, uncovered two ledges this week, from which they obtained very flattering prospects. The ledges are about 700 feet apart and will average 18 inches in width, with free milling ore. They lie between walls of slate and porphyry, which is considered a good indication. Actual tests of the ore taken out show that it will mill $50 per ton.

This afternoon Marshal Blakeney was telephoned for from the depot, to come up and arrest a man, who was stoning the section men, and throwing rocks at the cars. When Blakeney arrived on the grounds he found that a man named Richardson was the one doing the mischief and at once arrested him. Mrs. Richardson came to her husband's rescue armed with a butcher knife, and the result is that both are locked up.

Mr. John Lamb, commissioner of labor at Seattle, has issued a notice warning laboring men not to come to Seattle with the expectation of securing work on the Lake Washington canal. He says the enterprise is emphatically a Seattle affair, that Seattle men, especially men with families will be given the work, that there are plenty of men now in the city to do all the work, and that if any come, they will meet with disappointment and expense if not actual suffering.

The city recorder was not in the most joyous frame of mind when our reporter called at his justice shop this morning. He was holding an inquest on his bicycle, which he had loaned yesterday, in the full vigor of its strength, but which this morning might be classed as drunk and disorderly. Six spokes were gone from the front wheel, and the others were limp and relaxed, so that the wheel was hardly self-sustaining. As we left, the recorder, sitting as a corner's jury on the remains, was in some doubt as to whether the wreck was caused by falling over the bluff, or being run over by a whole freight train. The verdict will probably agree with the latter theory.

Everybody Satisfied.

County Judge Blakeley and Commissioners Darnelle and Blowers went out to 8-Mile this morning for the purpose of looking at the road and examining some bridges. They returned by what is known as the Benson road. Near Mr. Benson's place they heard a grinding noise in one of the wheels, and Mr. Darnelle got out to investigate. When he put his fingers on the nut that holds one of the hind wheels on, he took them off again without being told, for it was decidedly warm. The party proceeded to Benson's, where they took the wheel off, leaving the boxing shrunk firmly around the spindle. After pouring a barrel or two of water on the spindle, the boxing was gotten loose, and then Mr. Darnelle rose to the occasion and proceeded to doctor the wheel. He borrowed Benson's overalls, and wrapping the boxing drove it backward into the wheel, repairing all damages in about five minutes. The party had a nice experience, Ward, Kerns & Robinson have a buggy wheel as good as new, and Benson has a lien on the buggy for the price of a new pair of overalls.

A Terminal Point.

At a recent meeting of representatives of trans-continental lines, held in San Francisco, the question of making The Dalles a terminal point was discussed. We are told that the Northern Pacific took the ground that The Dalles, Portland & Astoria Navigation Company must be considered as a factor, and that the other roads in fixing their rates would so consider it, and could therefore compete for its trade. Just what the final agreement was we have not been able to learn, but that this view of the matter will eventually be adopted is almost certain. Last year this point was given terminal rates on wool, thus making a saving of $10 per ton, amounting on the entire product to almost $50,000. Should the terminal rates be given it would make The Dalles the supply town for a large section of country.

The Herrick Cannery.

A visit to Mr. Herrick's cannery this morning showed that everything is in readiness there to handle all the fish that can be procured this year. The building is a spacious one, and as Mr. Herrick has been in the business for years, he has put in every modern improvement. The boiler is of unlimited capacity, and the arrangements for canning are perfect, nearly all the work, even to the soldering of the cans, being done by machinery. The lower floor will be used for cleaning the fish, and a track has been built from the railroad so that fish arriving on the cars, or those hauled in wagons, can be unloaded from the street.

Some Handsome Work.

Ever since the high water of last June French & Co. have wanted to have the interior of their bank repapered and painted, but owing to the dampness in the walls this could not be done until this spring. David Vause, the artistic decorator, took the contract and has certainly succeeded in beautifying the big room wonderfully. The ceiling has been repapered with light shades, blending beautifully. The walls are a peculiar yellowish tint, giving a very pretty effect, and the woodwork has been grained until it looks like Nature herself could not have done anything more perfect. The floor is covered with a peculiar inoleum, made by a recent process. The figures in it are made of the same color the full depth of the material and are pressed together, so that as it wears the figure does not wear out but shows just the same color and shape until it is worn clear through. The room has a light, airy and cheerful appearance, and is as handsome an interior as can be found in the state.

Crop Report.

The crop weather bulletin for this week has the following: "Columbia river valley, embracing Wasco, Sherman, Gilliam, Morrow and Umatilla counties—A light skim of snow fell on the 3d, and a light frost was had on the 4th. Conditions are still favorable for all kinds of fruit. Cherry and peach trees are leafing and blooming. Strawberries have commenced to bloom. Almond and apricot trees are blooming at Hood River. Fruit bloom is considered unharmed by the frosts. Powing is well along, and seeding is about one quarter done. The small acreage of winter wheat is growing slowly. The season is considered later than usual. Early garden vegetables, such as lettuce, radishes, onions, spinach and asparagus all of home growth, are in The Dalles market. Farmers are plowing for summer-fallow."

A Queer Accident.

Conductor Brown's caboose stands on the coach track stabbed full of hop-pole holes. When the train was coming in from Hilgard Monday afternoon with five flat cars of hop-poles loaded for Idaho, the slide stakes on one of the cars gave way at the bridge above Oro Dell, and about half the load was dumped off among the bridge timbers. Several of the poles were driven squarely through the front end of the caboose, and it is a great wonder that the trainmen escaped injury. The caboose was tilted over to one side, but finally got through without any serious mishap. When the train was stopped and a survey of the situation made the bridge looked like it was literally piled full of hop sticks. The section crew was at work near that place, and they succeeded in clearing the obstruction before the arrival of the west-bound passenger. — La Grande Chronicle.

Season Opened Unfavorably at Astoria.

At Astoria the fishing season opened under rather unfavorable auspices. The weather was exceedingly boisterous, and but a small proportion of the boats ventured out. Of those that did take the risk, none went near the bar, where the fishing is generally best. In consequence, the catch was small, probably averaging six or seven to the boat. A number of men were doubtless engaged in fishing before the season opened, several bring from twenty-five to thirty fish, but, as a rule, those who were known to have been out but one night, returned with from three to ten salmon each. Cannerymen and fisherman alike are of the opinion that the pack this year will be small, on account of the low water, for, without exception, since the inception of the salmon industry, the catch has been small every year in which the volume of water in the river was comparatively light. The gillnet men will be most seriously affected, as they reap their harvest when the water is high and muddy. The traps and seines are expected to do much better than usual, the conditions being favorable for the former especially.

A Bold Robber.

Yesterday's Oregonian contains the following concerning a robbery in Sherman county:

"A. Gilmour, who lives about a mile east of Emigrant Springs, in Sherman county, was held up at the muzzle of a Winchester last Thursday night in his house, and forced to give up every cent he had on his person. He was alone in the house at the time, as his wife has been East for several months. At 8:30 on the evening mentioned, Mr. Gilmour heard a noise at the door, and, on opening it, was accosted by a man who held a gun at his head, and asked him to give up what money he had. Gilmour hunted his pockets and found 90 cents in coin, which he handed over. The fellow told him to open his trunk and 'shell out' the money he had hidden, emphasizing the request with a kick. The trunk was unlocked, and the different articles of wearing apparel taken out, but nothing valuable was found. This appeared to make the robber furious, and as each garment was shaken to prove that no money was concealed he would administer furious kicks to Mr. Gilmour. After a thorough search of every place in the house without success, and administering more punishment to Gilmour, the robber departed. Although heavily masked, and using every known effort to disguise his voice, Mr. Gilmour believes he knows the man."
