WHO IS THE MURDERER?

The murder of Marian Williams and Blanche Lamont in San Francisco was one of the most cold-blooded and brutal crimes ever committed on the coast. The medical student, Durrant, was picked upon by the detectives as the man who committed the murders, and all the machinery of the detective and police departments has been brought into play to prove the correctness of the theory. It may be possible that Durrant is the man, but it must be remembered that all the testimony is not in yet. It must further be remembered that the police up to yesterday had not disclosed the fact that one of the parson's shoes had been found in the church and that the sole thereof was covered with blood. Of course this does not necessarily implicate the preacher as someone else might have worn the shoe or even put it intentionally in the blood for the purpose of throwing suspicion on him. He had two pairs of shoes and a pair of slippers in his library in the

The circumstances, taken altogether, point strongly to Durrant as the murderer, and yet an analysis of the circumstantial evidence, even as presented by the police, who are making as strong a case against him as possible, shows some breaks that cannot be easily explained. Both the murdered girls were modest, quiet, good girls. Yet the testimony shows that Marian Williams told Mr. Morgan, with whom she lived, that Durrant had made improper proposals to her, and that she was afraid of him. The testimony of Maud Lamont, sister of the murdered girl, shows that about the same condition existed between Blanche Lamont and Durrant. This being the case, is it probable that Min-.nie Williams, who professed fear of him on account of his actions at Fruitvale, would have trusted herself alone at night in the church with him? Despite the fact that he was the assistant superintendent of the Sunday school, she knew his real character, and if she was, as she told Mr. Morgan, afraid of him, she would not have entered the church. Miss Lamont was also informed as to his true character, and being rather strong-minded, we take it, as the testimony shows, she would have refused to go into the church with him at night, even though permitting him to accompany her on the street car. Again, when Blanche Lamont's body was found in the belfry the tracks found in the dust by it were measured, and the police say these tracks were made either by a number 8 or a number 9 shoe. Durrant wore a number 6; but up to date we have not seen the statement as to the size of Rev. Gibson's shoes. If the girls would have hesitated about going into the church with Durrant, whom would they have entered with? Undoubtedly more freely with the pastor of the church than any one else. Then when Rev. Gibson, the pastor, is told of the breaking of the door, he requests the janitor's son to say nothing about it, that he would attend to it.

Durrant when arrested, and ever since, is said to have wonderful nerve, but it is never suggested that that nerve might be, after all, the consciousness of innocence. Gibson, on the other nand, refuses to see Durrant, refused to speak to him. Why? If Durrant was guilty, his duty as a minister would compel him to offer such spiritual consolation as lay in his power. He does not do this, but shuns him. If Gibson himself was the criminal, that is probably the exact course he would

The police in perfecting their case say that the night Minnie Williams was killed, Durrant went home, changed his clothing, burying the bloody garments that he wore at the time and then went to Dr. Vogel's to an entertainment; that when he arrived there his hair was disheveled and he asked Dr. Vogel to allow him to wash his hands and comb his hair. Yet, according to their story, Durrant entered the church at 8:30, killed his victim, went home changed his clothing and destroyed that he had worn, and arrived at Vogel's at 9:30, or in one hour. If Durrant went home and changed his clothing, why did he want to wash at Vogel's?

Then there is another and widely different aspect of the case. When the ed because he was short with the Northpolice showed that Durant was leading a ern Pacific Railroad Co., in the sum of dual life and that his visits were not from $100,000 to $250,000. He should character of men, such matters are looked upon in a business way and the doctrine of as "good fish in the sea as ever were caught out of it" governs them. Such men act by persuasion, not by force. It shirt thusly: is your recluse, your morbid, retiring, unsocial fellows, who says nothing, who avoid such places as the Durrant kind seek, that finally give way to unreasoning passion and commit the most horrible crimes. Durrant may be the murderer and Preacher Gibson may be entirely innocent, yet we believe the circumstantial evidence, if given a chance by the police and detectives, would point just as strongly towards the latter as the

IS IT A MIRACLE?

Mrs. Eima Wylie, who resides on east Thirteenth street, near the university in this city, says the Eugene Guard, has a strange story to tell. For eleven years she has been paralyzed in her lower limbs so that she was not able to walk or even stand alone upon her feet. Last Tuesday at 1 o'clock she suddenly regained the use of her paralyzed limbs and arose from her seat and walked about the house a well woman.

She had a strange story to tell and hearing of this a Guard reporter called at her home today for an interview. Entering the room he was greeted by the lady herself, who got up from a sofa and came forward with the usual activity of any person who is sound in mind and body. In answer to a question she said: "I feel that it is all for the glory of my Lord and Savior that I am stricken with a disease which affected tae lower portion of her body, and finally caused her to lose the use of those limbs to such an extent that she could not walk. It was so complicated that the physicians did not sufficiently understand it to give her relief, although all has been done that could be to afford her such relief. Any attempt on her part to rise her feet would cause her great pain. She is a fine Christian lady and has great faith in prayer. She has been praying for relief. Last Sunday morning shortly after midnight she awoke. A strange feeling seemed to have taken possession of her and continued thus all day Sunday. She felt that she must nerve herself for a stronger faith. She had an ordinary chair set on small wheels with which she wheeled herself about the room. On Tuesday afternoon about 1 o'clock she was sitting in this chair cleaning a lamp, when she was suddenly seized with this strange feeling, and as she worked the thought entered her mind, why not make an effort to rise and walk and have faith that it would be so. It forced itself upon her mind so strongly that she yielded and reaching out, rose to her effort being accompanied by no pain as had previously been the case when she debt of $2,500,000,000 over to the common tried to rise. Medicine could have had nothing to do with it as she has not been treating the case, having long since given up all hope of relie' from that source. She is a bright, intelligent lady of about forty, and came from Missouri with her husband and family four years ago. They have a very pleasant home on East Thirteenth street.

Miss Linnie Wylie, who has been teaching school west of this city, was sent for and came home as soon as she heard the news of her mother's recovery. Another peculiar feature of the case is that Mrs. Wylie could not sing before her recovery but can now sing as well as

There is one element that Brother Armsworthy did not take into consideration. He does not know the woman.

It is time this country either abandon the Monroe doctrine or put it in force. As it is this government is a laughing stock for the world. If the United States does her duty, England will never own a foot of Nicaragua soil without a fight for it. Now is the time for this government to stand up for its boasted Munroe doctrine, or else forever hold its peace.

A LYING PAPER.

The Brooklyn Eagle, a leading democratic newspaper, whirls the bloody

"The concerted effort of the South to fasten an income tax on the government had its motive in Southern resentment against national pensions for Northern soldiers who put down Southern rebels. The South is where those soldiers won their pensions. The North is where the property is which an income tax would reach. The scheme to tax the section which furnished the beneficiaries of pstriotism was agreeable to the section against which those benenciaries contended. The North took it out in pensions. The South would retaliate on property. The South had few or no federal pensioners. The North had nearly all; but the South had little or no property subject to income tax, while the North had much. The chance to get even, or more than even, was attractive. It was improved by making the exemption rate just high enough to let the South effectually out." The editorial is headed, "Appomattox Revenged and Reversed."

The Brooklyn Eagle makes an assertion that it knows to be false, and one that it has manufactured maliciously for the purpose of bolstering up a cause that it cannot defend with argument. The income tax is demanded by the people of the North as well as those of the South, and it is demanded by that class of whom soldiers are made. It is demanded by the great mass of common people, who pay enormously more than their proportion of the taxes in order that the class who do not hear arms in time of war may be exempted from their fair proportion of the tax. It is demanded that this tax be imposed in order that persons instead of paying a per capita tax will pay according to their ability to day. pay, and will put up the sinews of war necessary to carry on the government in the government.

It was a venal congress that fell down at the demand of the plutocrats and betrayed the people.

John Sherman was reasonably honest then. He defended the income tax, and answering a taunt of Casserly, California's senator, he said. "The income tax is a just tax; it is the most just and equitable tax ever placed upon the statutes of this or any other country." John's income was not so large then and his conscience was more tender. He is not talking that way now. The income tax has come to say, and, to grow, and those whose vast wealth is ased to corrupt legislation and purchase courts, may yet find that it had been better to have paid the taxes on their incomes, than to have found that an indignant people had left them no incomes to be taxed. The degenerate Romans burned Rienzi for trying to tax them and the republic fell, France had her privileged classes in '92, but not in '94 and the tax dodgers of New York may profit by contemplating these examples. It is not the North, neither is it the South that demands an income tax, it is the demand of the great common people of this great common wealth, and a demand that it will be well for those who have incomes to heed.

The wedding of Hon. George Nathaniel Curzon, M. P. and Miss Mary Leiter, was celebrated at Washington City, Monday. Mr. Curzon is a titled Englishman and said to be a clever gentleman. Judged by other marriages of the kind, however, it is fair to presume that before five years have passed Mrs. Curzon will regret her wedding and heartily wished that she had remained at home, and married instead a plain American gentleman named Cur-Smith.

The San Francisco Rural Press savs: 'The English and French have become very fond of American apples, and since last fall the New York fruit men have shipped 1,443,592 barrels of apples to Europe, as against 168,706 barrels in the winter of 1893-94. This export trade will encourage American fruit-growers to take better care of their apple orchards and give more attention to fruit growing and less attention to corn and wheat. The new discoveries in cold storage and improved methods of packing have done a great deal to stimulate the export trade, and now that the trade has begun we may expect it to increase until it furnishes one of the large items in our national income. This is good news for horticulturists and small farmers everywhere, and will encourage them to further efforts for improved Charley Akers, one of the solid citizens varieties and more intelligent culture."

Gentlemen:—I feel very grateful to you and your valuable medicine—Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. My little daughter, Helen was almost blind from loss of power in the optic nerve. Her eyes looked perfectly natural, but there was a gradual failure of sight until on some days she could hardly tell daylight from darkness. We had several prescriptions from oculists and tried several remedies, but without success. We happened to see in a paper accounts of what Dr. Miles' Nervine had done for others, and I purchased a bottle one day of Dr. Lamb. To our great joy it restored her eyesight. I bought two bottles more and they made a final cure. Thanking you for what it has done for us, I can and will recommend it to others.
