HENRY WATTERSON'S SPEECH.

Henry Watterson, Kentucky's great orator, has always been a man greatly admired throughout the country. Now that Henry W. Grady, the lamented statesman of Georgia, is dead, Watterson stands as the leading exponent of the New South. Whatever may have been his fame in the past, it has become greatly enhanced by his speech at the Louisville encampment. Foilowing are a few of his words:

"That promissory note, drawn by the city of Louisville, indorsed by me and discounted by you in Pittsburgh a year ago, has matured and I am here to pay it. Except that the historic distinctions have long been obliterated here, it might be mentioned that I come before you as a representative alike of those who wore the blue and those who wore the gray in that great combat, which, whatever else it did or didn't, left no shadow upon American soldiership; no stain on American manhood. But in Kentucky the war ended twenty years ago. Here at last the lesson has been taught and learned that It is unfortunate that such men as Altyou cannot chain the eagle, you dare not harm the dove, but every gate barred to hate will open wide to love.

"And the flag; God bless the flag! Can you doubt the loyal sincerity of those who from housetop and roof have thrown it to the breeze? Let some sacrilegious hand be raised to haul it down and see. These are honest flags, with left for you and me to cavil about, far less to fight about? Slavery is gone, secession is dead. The Union, with its system of statehood still intact, still these gateways to the South, I bid you welcome in the name of the people came, and we resisted you; you come, and we greet you; for times change and those who are waiting for the proper men change with them. You will find here scarcely a sign of the battle; grim visage war has smoothed its wrinkled front, and which ever way you turn on either side, you shall encounter as you magnanimous spirit of dead heroes with Grant, Sherman, Thomas, McPherson and Logan looking down from the happy stars, as if repeating the words of the master-Charity for all; malice toward none."

PROGRESS OF SURGERY.

The wonderful progress of modern surgery is shown by a symposium of fourteen articles, by eminent surgeons, published in a late issue of the Independent. To any one who has not followed the medical and surgical history of recent years, the progress made will come as a revelation. Modern surgery which bore the title of surgery as the ceed without reference to their struggles place of publication is Portland. and outcries. A surgeon, then, needed to be a man bereft of feelings or with is immense.

A discovery of equal, if not greater, importance was that of antiseptics. Those who are familiar with the results to the wounded in battles know that formerly the mortality was frightfully large. The death rate from wound inflammation and blood poisoning was almost as great as the number killed in in battle. Antiseptic treatment has changed all this and hospital reports show how greatly the death rates from will aid Harrison rather than hurt him. such causes have been diminished-almost eliminated. BREAKS THE RECORD.

That Governor Altgeld, Illinois' anarchistic executive, has made a record for himself as a pardoner of criminals, is well known; but how fearfu! that record is is not understood, save within his state. A complete list published in Chicago of the pardons granted between March 7, 1893, and May 2, 1895, by Governor Altgeld, shows that he has extended the hand of clemency to twentytwo murderers, forty-three burglars, six guilty of manslaughter, three of rape, seventeen of larceny, six each of robbery and forgery, five of embezzlement, and thirty-five guilty of other offenses. While some of these pardons are justifiable, an examination of the records has led to the statement that the governor has shown his sympathy "especially for those whose offenses were the most odious. Although he was himself for some years a judge, he has sneered at judges and juries, and gone on emptying the penitentiaries." Even our own renowned Pennoyer pales into nothingness compared to Illinois' great trifler with power, and Oregon's late executive must rest his claim to permanent fame on other grounds than being the most liberal dispenser of pardons to unworthy recipients the country has known. geld are elevated to power, and especially disastrous for Illinois that his term does not expire for another year. Untold damage may yet be done.

England seems to be badly out of luck. After Lord Dunraven's ineffectual attempt to win her glory, she sent over a crack team of athletes, whose vehement striving was all in vain. In the eleven contests at New York the English were beaten in every one, while the Americans smashed world's records as if it were an every day occurrence. The performance of the foreigners was worse even than that made by the Valkyrie. If there is any other game the English can play now is the time to make it known. If they have no other, in a game of bluff we can give them an interesting contest.

Poor Dunraven! After spending a fortune in trying to win the cup, he not only makes a failure, but is berated by his countrymen at home for being no sportsmen. Dunraven will hardly be a candidate for re-election as the representative of English sport in foreign lands.

Will Be a Creditable Publication.

The cuts for the pamphlet to be issued by the real estate union have been received from the photo-engraving company at Forest Grove, to which the photographs had been sent. The work is eminently satisfactory, and will be a great ornament to the publication. There are eight cuts in all. One of the most attractive shows the large fruit orchard of W. H. Taylor, on Dry Hollow, while another gives his house, as a sample of Wasco county residences. There are two pictures of Moody's warehouse, one showing it in wool season and another in wheat time. The fish industries are fittingly represented by a picture of a large wheel belonging to the Winans Bros. and another of a fish scow with the bottom of the boat filled with salmon. A bird's-eye view of The Dalles and a picture of a large band of sheep filling a street, make up the remainder.

It can be confidently expected that when the pamphlet falls in the bands of the eastern home-seeker it will not take him long in deciding to come to this favored section. Much artistic ing down the track at a speed of thirty judgment was used in the selection of pictures.

dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by the best and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest whatever in misrepresenting them, and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in curative power over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Nasty codmaiady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Nasty codliver oil and its filthy "emulsions" and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to benefit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Extract of malt, whiskey, and various preparations of the hypophosphites had also been faithfully tried in vain. The photographs of a large number of those cured of consumption, bronchitis, lingering coughs, asthma, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies, have been skillfully reproduced in a book of 160 pages which will be mailed to you, on receipt of address and six cents in stamps.
