The Coming Exposition.

THE CHRONICLE is in receipt of a letter from Mr. B. S. Pague, chairman of the committee on state and county exhibits in the Portland Industrial Exposition, urging the people throughout the state to make exhibits at the fair in Portland next month. A large space has been ticulture, mineral, fish and forestry specimens, and to fill this space every person who promises to send something and everyone who has anything to exhibit should forward the same not later than the 28th inst and earlier if possible. Many councies will have county exhibits; to them must be added many individual exhibits from other sections to make the state exhibit complete. Mr. Sept. 30th; Co. A at Wasco, Oregon, and a good corn exhibit are wanted.

All specimens should be addressed to Chas. H. Hunt, superintendent Oregon Industrial Exposition, Portland, and if so directed will be carried free of charge Everything is promising for a large, successful and interesting exposition. line and railroad company. The people of The Dalles should first make their Oregon has ever had.

The Wheat Situation.

The wheat market refuses to change either for better or worse. The warebouses are still paying 37 cents and the mill 40 cents. Telegraphic advices received this morning from Portland say county is bringing in the bulk of the wheat, most of which goes to the mill on account of free ferriage being offered. Of that which goes to the warehouse, most of it is stored and only enough sold to pay pressing bills of the farmers.

Sheep in the Cascade Reserve.

By the decision of S. W. Lameroux, land commissioner, the United States attorney for Oregon is instructed to begin criminal proceedings against all stockmen whose flocks are found pasturing upon the Cascade Reserve. U. S. Att'y Murphy after looking into the matter some time ago was not able to satisfy himself that the pasturing of sheep on the reserve was in direct violation of the law and referred the matter to the department at Washington. The question was brought to the attention of the attorney general, who directed Mr. Murphy to bring action against persons allowing sheep in the reserve, as provided under the act of March 3, 1875, (chapter 151, supplement to the revised statutes volume 1, page 186, 18 Stats, at large 481.

Last summer the matter of allowing sheep in the reserve was brought to the attention of the Oregon delegation in congress and through the efforts of Senator Mitchell the order was rescinded. This letter of Lamoroux still further study for the coming year met last night this morning armed with a warrant for Or., on Wednesday, Oct. 2d; Co. I at Wasco county a fine exhibit of fresh complicates matters. The question is of growers of Eastern Oregon and before next spring action should be taken to allow the pasturing of sheep in the mountains near Mt. Adams and Mt. Hood. Any contrary condition would stifle the wool industry of this section.

A transcript was filed with the clerk today giving a history of an occurrence Special rates will be given by the boat that happened at Mosier Monday. It seems there had been some difficulty between a man named William Saunders own fair a success and then aid Portland and Thomas Harlan, justice of the peace, in giving the state the best exposition and it is claimed Saunders attacked the justice and was about to inflict divers and sundry blows when intervening parties stopped the fight. Saunders was arrested by Mr. Harlan and brought before the justice, who is also Mr. Harian, tried and convicted. The bail bond was fixed at $500, which being unable to furnish Saunders was brought that the Eastern market shows signs of to town and turned over to the tender ranged in an orderly manner and will strengthening, but the price continues mercies of Jailer Fitzgerald. It is said the commitment papers are slightly irregular, so that it is doubtful if the prisoner can be held. Mosier furnishes more litigation than any place of its size in the state and can always be counted upon to furnish a good sized sensation about so often a year.
