

A-SPECIFIC FOR La Grippe, for Colds, Coughs, AND LUNG TROUBLES, AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

"Two years ago, I had the grippe, and it left me with a cough which gave me no rest night or day. My family physician prescribed for me, changing the medicine as often as he found the things I had taken were not helping me, but, in spite of his attendance, I got no better. Finally, my husband, reading one day of a gentleman who had had the grippe and was cured by taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, procured for me, a bottle of this medicine, and before I had taken half of it, I was cured. I have used the Pectoral for my children and in my family, whenever we have needed it, and have found it a specific for colds, coughs, and lung troubles."—Early Wood, North St., Elton, Md.

HORN.

At 5-Mile January 21, to the wife of George Reed, a son.

A DOG'S CURIOUS ACTION.

Appeared to Surmise That His Master Had Been Hurt.

L. C. Meachamp, living above Homer, La., on the edge of Arkansas, is a great hunter and has a fine deer hound, Don, of which he is justly proud. A few days ago, says the Philadelphia Times, Mr. Meachamp was going squirrel hunting, and in order to keep Don at home he was compelled to tie him up. The hound whined and begged, but finding his master was obdurate, he at last lay quite peacefully before the kennel all day.

At five o'clock in the afternoon, however, when Mrs. Meachamp was beginning to look for her husband's return, Don became so unusually restless that she went out to see what was the matter. In spite of her repeated efforts she could do nothing to pacify him, and at last, to her utter astonishment, he broke the rope and bounded away over the fence and into the woods. He was gone probably a half hour when he came running back panting and almost breathless with his master's hat in his mouth.

Mrs. Meachamp became at once alarmed, and, calling her son, they set out to find Meachamp, the dog all the time bounding along in front and leading the way. At last they came upon Mr. Meachamp lying helpless in the woods, where at precisely five o'clock he had fallen in a little ditch and broken a small bone in his leg. The dog's knowledge of the accident at the very moment of its occurrence seems almost incredible, but the truth of this is beyond dispute.

A FEATHERED MONSTER.

Strange and Gigantic Bird Killed by a Man in West Virginia.

Elias Midkiff, of Hamlin, Lincoln county, was in Charleston the other day, and proposed to the State Historical and Antiquarian society that if it would send a taxidermist to Hamlin the society would secure a monster bird, of a kind never seen before by anyone in West Virginia. The feathered monster, says the Baltimore American, is described by Mr. Midkiff, from measurements taken by himself and W. W. Adkins, of Hamlin, who killed the bird at the mouth of Vannatters creek, with five bullets from his rifle, while hunting deer recently. The bird is seven feet four inches from tip to tip, four feet from tip of bill to tail, flat bill four inches long and three inches wide, somewhat similar to that of a duck; web feet, covering nearly a square foot of area each; neck 19 inches long, legs about 11 inches long, and about one and a half inches through below the feathers; plumage dark brown, relieved on the wings and breast by light blue shading. The bird when first seen was circling high in the air, but came down very quickly and alighted in the water, where Adkins got a good shot at it, crippling its wing. Adkins attempted to capture the strange fowl alive, but it was so vicious that he could not get near it without killing it, which required five bullets.

UNIQUE WASHING COMPETITION

How English Women Draw Visitors to Bazaars.

In England when society embarks upon some charitable enterprise—usually a bazaar or something on that order—they secure the promise of a baker's dozen of popular young debutantes to engage in a "washing competition," this feature of the bazaar always proving a big drawing card.

Each of the fair washwomen is attired in chintz, a big white apron, broad white collar and sleeves rolled up above the elbow in true washwoman style. Each competitor is supplied with a pail, some cold water, two pegs and a soiled tea cloth.

On the word "go" jeweled hands are plunged into the water and the washing begins. The prize is given to the competitor who shows the cleanest cloth at the end of three minutes, the same being pegged into place upon the line. Points are deducted for overtime and incorrect detail.

Said a London belle who recently took part in a washing competition at a select social event: "Twenty minutes of that exercise every day would give anybody first-rate arm developing exercise. It's way ahead of some of the methods in my physical culture class."

HUMOR ON THE BENCH.

Characteristic Anecdote of Lord Bowen, the English Jurist.

The late Lord Bowen, besides being a great judge, was also a great wit, and many interesting bon mots of his are being recalled just now. On the occasion of the queen's jubilee, says Household Words, the judges were drawing up an address to the queen.

"Conscious as we are of our shortcomings," ran the address; "conscious as we are of one another's shortcomings," suggested Lord Bowen. Not long ago he was asked to sit in the admiralty court. Upon taking his seat he asked indulgence on account of inexperience in admiralty business.

"And may there be no moanings of the bar," he added, "when I put out to sea." Sometimes his wit was very decisive, as, for instance, when he remarked: "Truth will out—even in an affidavit."

Not the least happy of his recorded witticisms was the remark he made when congratulated on his appointment to be a law lord. He would, he said, find the work easy, his duty being to give his opinion after so many others had given theirs. "In fact, I only have to agree, and might well have been raised to the peerage as 'Lord Concurry.'"

The Boot on the Other Foot.

In hunter's lore there is an idea that the jackal is the lion's provider; that he locates the game and takes the lion to it. This superstition has no more foundation than is found in the fact that after a lion has slain his quarry the jackals always attend and wait the conclusion of the repast, in order to pick up the leavings.

MORTON AND PRESIDENCY.

Albany Argus: The people who are most interested in Levi P. Morton's candidacy for president are the people who expect to put their hands into his barrel to help along his cause.

Boston Globe: Now that New York's old man of the sea has leaped on poor old Governor Morton's shoulders, Tom Reed will journey his campaign way with a lighter heart and a cheerier face than ever.

Chicago Record (Ind.): The bee which sings the loudest and most painfully in Tom Reed's bonnet at the present time is the bee of L. P. Morgan, of New York state.

Cincinnati Commercial Gazette: Now that Governor Levi P. Morton is really a president candidate, the dispute as to whether or not he wears a wig will have to be settled. We can't go into this campaign and have a hair-restorer platform flashed upon us at the last minute.

New York Post: The "Morton boom" has acquired more headway than Platt and his crowd ever intended. In their heart of hearts they are not in favor of Governor Morton for president. Mr. Reed is their man, but they would like to play Morton until the time comes to shove him, and then throw the vote of New York like an avalanche for the man of their choice. But the danger is that the boom will get beyond their control.

Nons But Ayer's at the World's Fair.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla enjoys the extraordinary distinction of having been the only blood purifier allowed on exhibit at the world's fair, Chicago. Manufacturers of other sarsaparillas sought by every means to obtain a showing of their goods, but they were all turned away under the application of the rule forbidding the entry of patent medicines and nostrums. The decision of the world's fair authorities in favor of Ayer's Sarsaparilla was in effect as follows: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a patent medicine. It does not belong to the list of nostrums. It is here on its merits."
