

The Florence Crittenton Missions.

Tonight Mr. Crittenton will detail the work of the Florence Crittenton missions. They are named from a daughter who died in New York City. The idea of establishing these missions or homes for fallen women came to him through a personal experience. One night in the streets of New York he came upon one of these women, considerably the worse for liquor. He spoke kindly to her and discovered that she had considerable intelligence, and that she was sick and tired of the life she was leading. He asked her why she did not reform and try to live a pure life. "Suppose I did," said the unfortunate creature, "who would take me in?" The words haunted Mr. Crittenton until he determined upon establishing a refuge for her class of people, where they would meet with kindness, encouragement and aid. The plan succeeded so well that others were established, until today there are thirty of them. It is said that an institution in Portland called the "Open Door," established for a similar purpose, as to be turned over to Mr. Crittenton and to be hereafter managed as a Florence Crittenton mission. The details of the inauguration, operation and inside workings and full history of these missions is to be presented tonight at armory hall.

The Evangelists on Wednesday.

The Congregational church was well filled yesterday afternoon as Mr. Crittenton, accompanied by Mr. Carpenter, came in. Mr. Wallace had conducted a short praise service before this time, using the old familiar hymns. Mr. Crittenton, in his Bible reading on the subject announced, "Consecration," brought forward many passages from that book, showing that consecration was one of its fundamental teachings and said that if Christians lived as the word taught, there would be more consecrated lives. He spoke of his own consecration and how it came about, his fight with pride and the appetite for tobacco and how the Lord showed him that he must give up all if he would be fully consecrated and that, he said, was what all would have to do. Let go of this old world to receive the joys that come with a complete surrender of self.

THE EVENING.

The song service closed at 8 o'clock and the regular service began at that hour. The beautiful song, "Then They Nailed Him to the Tree," sang by the three gentlemen—Carpenter, Crittenton and Wallace—is one of the best used in these meetings. The scripture lesson was read from Luke 14, beginning at the 26th verse, and part of the 15th chapter, an account of the Prodigal Son, after which Mr. Wallace sang in his best style, "The Prodigal Daughter."

Mr. Crittenton said in commencing that there was a scripture that described every condition in life, and then announced this text from Isaiah xlii-22. "For this is a people robbed and spoiled; they are all of them snared in holes, and they are hid in prison houses; they are for a prey, and none delivereth; for a spoil and none saith restore." He then described how the work was begun in Baxter street, New York, when the question arose where should the girls go who wished to turn from a life of sin, and it was found there was no place for them to go; so Mr. Crittenton established a rescue mission on Baxter street in New York City where any time of day or night for the last 13 years a girl could go and be sure of a welcome. There are now thirty-one Rescue missions in this country, and one in our own state.

He gave many interesting anecdotes of girls that had been rescued and saved through this work. He gave these startling figures: In New York City alone there are 37,000 of these girls; in the United States between 200,000 to 250,000. Their average life was but five years, and at least 100,000 girls of this class filled unknown graves. He said that some of the recruits would come from the Christian homes of the respectable families all over the country, and it might be that homes in The Dalles would furnish some of them. He spoke of the horrible business of the traffic in girls carried on in the large cities. An appeal was then made for money to carry on this work and a collection taken, after which Mr. Wallace sang "Nellie Courcy," composed about one of the rescued and saved girls who lived about a year and a half to labor for others after having been rescued herself.

There will be no meeting Saturday afternoon and all true Americans, old and young, can attend the Memorial services at the cemetery, that being Memorial day.

The Evangelist.

With Congo Oil Medicine Company and Hon. Wilson T. Hume as counter attractions, the meetings at the armory hall had but a slim chance last evening. For these reasons the audience was the smallest that has attended these meetings, there being not more than 150 present. Mr. Carpenter, before making the announcements, spoke of being sorry to see the article in the paper rather reflecting on him. Now THE CHRONICLE does not wish to reflect on any one, nor would we have Mr. Carpenter or any one else go back on his word after it had been given out, but we would have all lovers of this country, our beloved land, remember that once a year there is a day set apart to keep in memory the deeds of the brave men who gave their lives that we might have a country. We would respectfully inform our brother and all others that that day is the 30th of May and hope that in the future he will remember that "all things should be adretacked" for that, and in his expressed love for the old soldiers living, we would crave some of his regard for the memory of those who died for liberty.

THE ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Evening meetings hereafter commence at 8 o'clock. The pastors will fill their own pulpits on Sunday morning. Sunday afternoon mass meeting at the armory at 3 o'clock. Meeting this evening at the armory at 8 o'clock. Mr. Wallace's solo "We Shall Know Him by the Print of the Nails in His Hands," was very fine. Without scripture lesson or even announcing where the subject was found, Mr. Carpenter said he wished to speak about Elijah, one whom God could trust, and then gave a running sketch of that old prophet's life, as found in I Kings xviii, dwelling on the part where it spoke of the test between the prophets of Baal and Elijah (God's prophet) and the people were required to choose who was the true God, so it is for all to choose death or life. After the sermon an opportunity was given to any wishing to be prayed for to rise, and none responding the meeting closed with the doxology.

A QUESTION ANSWERED.

"Why Did You Come Out Independent?"
 By the request of many friends and voters of this county, who believe, like myself, that this free country should be run by the people, and not by any faction nor political bosses of any party, who would down a man without any cause whatever.

Now, gentlemen, I do not ask for more than others have had before me, and have only done my duty as a faithful custodian of the funds of this county, and shall continue to do so as long as you say by your vote for me to stay in this office; not favoring the rich more than the man who toils long for his hard-earned dollar.

I leave it for the voters of this county to say if a tried man is not as good as an untried man in this responsible office.
