DEFECT IS NOT SERIOUS.

Error in Constructing Plates for the Battle-Ship Oregon.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 2.—In regard to the statement telegraphed from Washington that defects had been discovered in the construction of the battle-ship Oregon, Irving M. Scott, president of the Union Iron works, says:

"Upon the return of the Oregon from her trial trip, we were informed that the superintendent of the shipyard and two of his subforemen had made a mistake in the dimensions of some plates in the protected deck over the coal bunkers, and in order to cover it up had substituted thinner plates of sufficient width, the requisite thickness thus being made up. Instead of three plates of thickness required by the specifications there were four, which, though thinner, were in the aggregate the same. Upon being summoned before the trial board the three men responsible frankly admitted the truth of the report and said they had made the substitution of thinner plates upon their own responsibility and without informing either the Union Iron works or Mr. Stahl, the naval contractor, who superintended the work.

"As neither the strength nor efficiency of the ship was affected, the four plates they inserted being just as thick as the three required by the specifications, they had seen no harm in their action and hoped by this means to cover a mistake they had made in the dimensions of the original plates. When questioned further they stated that they had substituted four plates on each side over the bunkers, and described the location in detail.

"As soon as we could locate the different plates and their number, we furnished the trial board with a drawing, showing just what and where they were, and ordered them removed and others according to specifications put in their places; our offer to do this at our own expense was accepted by the government, and the plates which were ordered from Pittsburg left there yesterday and will be in place next week."

A Good Word for Senator Mitchell.

The following is sent us from a resident of the state of Washington with a request for publication:

TO THE EDITOR:—The re-election of Senator Mitchell, of Oregon, to the United States senate is of great and vital importance to the state of Washington, for in him it has always found a true and staunch friend, a pleasing past, to which every delegate and senator from our own state will cherfully bear witness.

"The influence and power which this true and tried servant of the good people of Oregon has exercised and wielded, while occupying faithfully that exalted position, could not fail to be recognized by the great state of Oregon; neither have his many acts of kindness towards our own state escaped the full appreciation of our people, and hence they sincerely hope and trust that Senator John H. Mitchell will be enabled at the coming crisis to succeed himself, for he certainly is the right man in the right place and hard to duplicate. His official career, while in the senate will bear the searchlights and the X rays, for he has been ardent, faithful and true. He has the respect and confidence of his colleagues. When his vote is heard in the halls of congress it is never of an uncertain sound, but always on the side of justice and right. His past experience and vast influence is a power for Oregon which no other man can wisely utilize until he has acquired the same, and that takes time, patience and perseverance. Senator Mitchell is at home in the senate chamber, knows the wants of his people and is ever ready and willing to meet those wants and earn in a laudable and honorable way all the glory and honor which his constituents and the great state of Oregon have bestowed upon him. The state did well when it sent Senator Mitchell of Oregon to guard its interests and ours, too, and we hope and trust it will continue in well-doing and return him again as his own successor, and not try to swap horses while crossing the stream. Senators Squire and Mitchell are the best of friends and always have worked in the best of harmony, and while Mitchell is in the senate we have a friend."

INHUMAN WRETCHES

Dastardly Deeds of Spanish Soldiers in Cuba.

TALES OF BLOOD AND CARNAGE

Crimes of the Middle Ages Revived in Horror—Murder and Violence Rampant.

NEW YORK, June 3.—The World publishes the following special correspondence from Matanzas, province of Matanzas, Cuba, dated May 10.

Reports have reached here of a number of unwarranted murders and outrages by bands of Spanish guerrillas under Colonel Luis de Oliveras.

Beliasdrio Nodarizo, of this town, relates the particulars of a fiendish attack upon a Cuban woman.

"The guerrillas of Colon," Mr. Nodarizo says, "while on their way to Calmito, stopped at the house of Matto Martinez, who had been forced to enlist in a body of insurgents under the command of Juan Pablo Jabo. The officer in command inquired from Senora Martinez the whereabouts of her husband.

"Indeed, I cannot tell," she replied, "I'll make you," said the Spaniard, and he proceeded to tear off her clothing. He then questioned her anew, and receiving no answer from the woman, who was crying hysterically, he unsheathed his sword and fell to cutting and slashing his victim until her blood covered the floor and she fainted in a corner. Her shrieks and entreaties only served to provoke the brutal laughter of the soldiery."

"Mr. Nodarizo said he laid the facts in writing before Colonel Molina. The chief replied by sending a squad to arrest and shoot the complainant. His brother, Bruno, a tobaccoist, heard of the order in time to notify Beliasdrio. The brothers fled and joined the rebel forces of Teolide Garcia.

Colonel Molina's force a few days afterward stopped at the home of a farmer. Only a woman and baby were in the house. Molina demanded that she tell where the men were. She protested she did not know. He called for a platoon of soldiers. As the platoon entered the cabin Molina pointed to her and said:

"Pull out that rebel hag and shoot her."

The mother and child were dragged some 25 feet from the hut and a squad moved away a few paces.

"Will you speak now?" the colonel demanded.

"For God's sake, I don't know," cried the woman.

"Then fire," ordered Molina. The woman tried to shield her baby with her body, but merciless bullets did their work. The baby was not killed outright, and one of the soldiers, moved by a sort of barbarous pity, crushed the little one's skull with the butt of his rifle. The bugle sounded "fall in."

Molina after setting fire to the house coolly mounted his horse and gave the word "march."

In one of the outskirts of San Jose de los Ramos, and about three miles from the village, there is a small house occupied by Frederico Fuentes. Fuentes had two large canefields. He complained because Spanish soldiers destroyed his cane instead of simply taking the fodder. The same command, en route to protect the "Espans" plantation a day or so later, stopped at his home, having sacked a town en route, and drunk heavily. The commander accused a chief named Maza. Fuentes thought it useless to defend himself. The officers then bade the soldiers to punish him and his companions as they deserved. A score of machetes flashed and in a few moments the prisoners were a mass of blood and rags. A drunken fancy seized the murderers. Cutting off the heads of their victims, they hung them to the key of the grocer's door, while the horror-stricken neighbors looked on without daring to interfere. Only under cover of night were the ghastly remains removed and buried.

A resident of the town of Cascajal says one of Molina's guerrilla bands was marching to Reglita, the sugar plantation of Senor Sardinias for the purpose of escorting a train of pack mules. As the guerrillas approached the town of Cascajal they passed the farm of a Cuban named Garcia, whose two brothers were in the insurgent forces under Dimas, which was operating in the district between Recreo and Roque. A portion of this force occasionally camped near Garcia's house, and he was then visited by his brothers. When the guerrilla band arrived, however, the insurgents were not in the neighborhood. Garcia was alone in his house.

"Where are the insurgents encamped?" the lieutenant demanded of Garcia.

"I really don't know," the man replied.

"Tie him to that chair," the officer commanded, and the soldiers lashed Garcia securely.

"Now will you tell me where your brothers are?" the lieutenant angrily inquired.

"I can't say; I have not seen them," Garcia replied.

"Ha, I know they stopped here last night, but since your eyes seem to be useless I will relieve you of them."

"Put them out," the officer cried, turning to his soldiers.

The sergeant thrust the point of his bayonet under each of the unfortunate man's eyes and burst them out, despite the agonizing screams of the victim. As they left the house the lieutenant jokingly remarked that the next time Garcia would be able to say truthfully that he had not seen the insurgents.

Killed His Father.

MINOR, N. D., June 3.—J. A. Baker, ex-county commissioner of Ward county, was shot and killed last evening by his son William, a boy 17 years old, at his ranch 20 miles north of Minot.

Just before the killing Baker given his son a hard whipping, after which he started to abuse the boy's mother, which was more than the boy could stand. He took his rifle and shot his father twice, killing him instantly.

of all cases of consumption can, if taken in the earlier stages of the disease, be cured. This may seem like a bold assertion to those familiar only with the means generally in use for its treatment; as, nasty cod-liver oil and its filthy "emulsions" and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to benefit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Extract of malt, whiskey, and various preparations of the hypophosphites had also been faithfully tried in vain.

The photographs of a large number of those cured of consumption, bronchitis, lingering coughs, asthma, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies, have been skillfully reproduced in a book of 150 pages which will be mailed to you, on receipt of address and six cents in stamps. You can then write those cured and learn their experience.

A SUCCESSFUL TRIP

Return of the Filibuster "Three Friends."

CARRIED ARMS AND MEN TO CUBA

She Was Fired upon by a Spanish Warship—Finally Eluded Her Pursuer.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 4.—After a thrilling voyage, during which she was chased and fired upon by a Spanish steamer, the filibuster Three Friends has reached this port, after landing more than 100 men and a large cargo of arms and ammunition in Cuba.

The landing was made on the night of May 29, west of Trinidad, on the south coast of Santa Clara province. The men and ammunition were received by a strong detachment from General La Crete's column, and there was not a Spaniard in sight to interfere.

On the day before landing, May 28, occurred the most exciting incident of the voyage. The filibuster was off the coast of Cuba waiting for signals from the shore, when a Spanish warship hove in sight and gave chase. There was nothing to do but run for it, and the Three Friends stood for the open sea, with the Spaniards in hot chase. Captain Broward, in command of the Three Friends, watched the Spaniard. The Spaniard was crowding on steam, for a black cloud came from her stack. In the cruiser's military top Captain Broward saw several Spaniards taking turns at the class. Suddenly there was a puff of smoke from the cruiser and a shell burst over the Three Friends. The Spaniards sent shell after shell after the filibuster. But all went wide of the mark. Finally Captain Broward, who is ex-sheriff of Duval county, and noted for his courage, got tired of being shot at and decided to have a shot at the Spaniard. There was a 12-pound Hotchkiss on the Three Friends and this Captain Broward trained on the cruiser, for he saw a great commotion on board. Several shots were exchanged, but meanwhile the Three Friends were gaining on the Spaniard. The engines of the filibuster behaved beautifully, and the stokers worked with earnestness, for there were more than 100 men on board whose lives depended on the speed of the Three Friends. Finally the filibuster left the Spaniard. As the warship sank below the horizon, first the hull, then the mast and military top, and last the Spanish flag, a great cheer arose from the daring men on the Three Friends.

That night the Three Friends circled around at sea. On Friday, May 29, she again cautiously approached the Cuban coast about nightfall, west of Trinidad, and a rocket—the signal agreed upon—was sent up. It was answered from shore. There were six surfboats on board, and in these the men and arms were transferred to shore. In four hours the landing was completed, and the Three Friends stood for the Florida coast.

This is the third expedition the Three Friends has landed in Cuba. Captain Broward would give no information about the Laurada, save that when she left Jacksonville she had men and arms or Cuba, and that he expected to soon hear of her being in some Jamaican port.

He was asked to stay all night, but refused, and seemed anxious to get away. His shoes were pretty well worn, having the appearance of rough roads. Officers are now in that country, and the brush and timber is being thoroughly searched. The country is settled mostly by Indians of low type, who would aid and conceal any fugitive for money.

If he keeps this direction he is bound to be caught. No cattle and sheep are in the hills, and water is very scarce. He will be obliged to go to the houses for food and water.

MURDERED THEIR FATHER.

The Crime of a Farmer's Two Sons in Kansas.

CLAY CENTER, Kan., June 4.—Last evening John McCoy's two sons, Robert and Angus, shot and probably fatally wounded their father, a farmer. The boys rode to town and gave themselves up.

One year ago the parents were divorced and later the father shot at his wife through a window and was afterward tried and acquitted on the ground of insanity. Lately the boys have been carrying revolvers, with the knowledge of the county attorney, for the expressed purpose of defending themselves if attacked by their father. Tuesday night the old man took a horse from the home place south of here, where the mother and children were living. The boys came up and took the horse from where their father was stopping. He mounted another horse and followed the boys, both of whom opened fire. A bullet passed through the father's lung, lodging near the backbone. The doctors say he cannot live.
