EASY-GOING KING HUMBERT.

His One Conspicuous Weakness a Fondness for Military Display. King Humbert has the reputation of being the most constitutional of all the constitutional monarchs of Europe. So well has he fulfilled this role that, according to the Baltimore Sun, he may be said to have, save in one point only, completely extinguished his personality. That point is his determination, at all costs, to keep up the army and navy to their present state of efficiency and numbers. The various ministries that have succeeded each other in Italy with such rapidity have really governed the state. This one condition they had to accept—the maintenance of the army as desired by the king. His usual costume on gala days and when he shows himself to his subjects is the military costume. He is the first soldier in Italy. That he possesses great courage has been made fully evident by his devotion when, the cholera having broken out with virulence in Naples, he visited the sick and dying day after day in their low and unhealthy dwellings. What he may be as a legislator, a thinker, or a wit, the public is not informed. No legislative measures of paramount benefit or importance are attributed to his initiative; no striking thought that might enter the heart of the nation has been pronounced by him or has reached the people; even the faculty of making a witty phrase, which, though little in itself, being uttered by one in high place acquires a value and a currency which carries it far and renders popular its originator, is not a quality which he possesses. A generous, good-natured, easy-going gentleman, who desires to live and let live—in fact, a person of rather neutral characteristics—is the picture that people make to themselves of King Humbert. He is to the fore when a review is held. He looks well when, arrayed in grand military costume and riding a noble steed and surrounded by the exceptionally brilliant staff of the Italian army, he reviews the troops in their march past him. Again, when seated in one of the gala carriages, accompanied by the tall, steel-plated and guards, he goes to open a new session of parliament he is a figure well worth noting. So deeply into the military spirit entered into the king that he is never publicly seen on state occasions in any other than a military costume.

FOUND IN THE PEAT BEDS.

Remains of Prehistoric Animals Discovered in England. From time to time the peat beds at Newbury have yielded abundant remains of prehistoric animals which in primeval ages roamed along the Kennet valley, when the physical conditions obtaining in western Europe were altogether different from those which now prevail—before, in fact, the present insular position was brought about. In these peat beds, according to a London dispatch, have been found the remains of the colossal mammoth, including the portion of a tusk which, when entire, must have been ten to twelve feet in length, together with the bones, teeth or horns of other animals which have utterly disappeared from the face of the earth. The drainage works which are now being carried on in the town of Newbury have brought to light, mostly in a high state of preservation, numerous bones, skulls, and other fossil portions of animals which lived on subsequently to the disappearance of the post-glacial mammals, such as the wolf, bear, wild boar, red deer, goat, dog, fox, horse. Various objects of flint, characterizing the age of stone, have also been found in the lower layers of the peat, from which it is evident that the prehistoric inhabitants of the river valley possessed great dexterity in the fabrication of these primitive weapons and tools, some of the "knives" being beautifully chipped and presenting an edge almost as fine as a razor. Several articles of a later epoch have been also met with, forming a curious melange, such as bronze buckles of many kinds, implements of bone, Roman pottery, a few coins, a variety of keys. In the upper or made earth of the cuttings in that part of the town fought over by cavalier and roundhead many relics of the period have been found, including portions of swords, stirrup-irons, spurs, bridled bits, horseshoes and many other things of this date.

A Gigantic Undertaking.

Undismayed by their experience in the Suez and Panama enterprises, the French are undertaking to build another great canal. They have now determined to connect the Bay of Biscay with the Mediterranean by a canal over 400 miles long, from 14 to 215 feet wide and from 23 to 34 feet deep, and with widened passing places every eight miles. There will be twenty-two locks, each 650 feet in length and 80 feet in width. The cost is calculated at $100,000,000. It is, however, safe to say that it will be much more. It is claimed by its promoters that besides greatly expediting commerce, this waterway will be of vast political significance. If it could only be kept open in war, Gibraltar, the strongest fort in the world, would be rendered useless, and France, instead of England, would hold the "Key to the Mediterranean."

This Is Your Opportunity.

On receipt of ten cents, cash or stamps, a generous sample will be mailed of the most popular Catarrh and Hay Fever Cure (Ely's Cream Balm) sufficient to demonstrate the great merits of the remedy. ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren St., New York City. Rev. John Reid, Jr., of Great Falls, Mont., recommended Ely's Cream Balm to me. I can emphasize his statement, "It is a positive cure for catarrh if used as directed."—Rev. Francis W. Poole, Pastor Central Pres. Church, Helena, Mont. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure for catarrh and contains no mercury nor any injurious drug. Price, 50 cents.

SIX SORTS OF A HOG.

Railroad Nannies Which Seem to Thrive in Warm Weather. "The ear hog is more and more in evidence every day," said a car conductor the other day. "The warm weather develops traits that have been dormant with the winter. I have counted six different varieties of the breed in a week. I used to be a raiser of stock in more prosperous days, and I'm a good judge. The most common sort is that of the fellow who occupies more room than he needs; never sees that he could make room for anybody, and is evidently the same when he is at home. I'll bet he's the man who gets the morning paper first, reads it to himself, gives no one else a chance, and carries it downtown in his pocket. "Then, there's the fellow who crosses his legs, and when anyone seeks to pass simply turns his foot edgewise, so that twice as much dirt is rubbed off on a woman's dress and he gets half a shine for nothing. If a bigger man stands still and glares at him he will unfold his legs, but only then. This is the same animal who likes to stretch out in cross seats on the 'L' and clean his boots on the edge of the seat. "The third of the species is less bold than his brothers. He is the chap who, when some one gets up, leaving a seat vacant, although there's a tired woman maybe next to him, plunges into the vacant spot, for she had her back turned, and the opportunity was—and always is, in fact—never neglected by him. "The fourth sort is the rooster who reads another man's paper over his shoulder. I saw one the other day who was so interested in one article that he didn't see the man who held the paper was furtively and amusedly regarding him. The fact was brought to his attention, however, by the paper being pushed in front of his face and then withdrawn, and when he looked up a dozen smiling faces made him turn fairly pale. "The fifth is really only a pig. He's not grown, but thinks he is. His nose—that's not the word, but it will do—is retreousse, and the little bristles under it are carefully cared for. He likes to crowd close to a pretty girl and stare at her with such a yearning look. If he sits opposite her his eyes rarely wander from hers. I saw one young woman stare at the feet of one of that sort for five minutes. He pulled them back and fidgeted them about, finally resting on his toes. She kept right on staring and he became very uncomfortable. I'm told that's a sure remedy. He finally got out on the platform. "The last of the railroad hogs I know, although there may be others, is the one who opens his newspaper so as to shut out the view of those on either side of him. If he'd fold it down the center of the page—but, pshaw, he won't."

A CURIOUS CLOCK.

It Shows the Entire Working of a Railway Depot. A curious clock has been made by a clockmaker of Warsaw named Goldfaden, who has worked on it six years. The clock, according to the Railway News-Reporter, represents a railway station, with waiting rooms for the traveler, telegraph and ticket rooms, a very pretty, well-lighted platform and a flower garden, in the center of which is a sprindling fountain of clear water. Past the railway station runs the lines. There are also signal-boxes, signals, lights and reservoirs—in fact, everything that belongs to a railway station to the smallest detail. In the cupola of the central tower is a clock which shows the time of the place; two clocks in the side cupolas show the time at New York and Peking, and on the two outermost towers are a calendar and a barometer. Every quarter of an hour the station begins to show signs of life. First of all the telegraph official begins to work. He dispatches a telegram stating that the line is clear. The doors open and on the platform appear the stationmaster and his assistant; the clerk is seen at the window of the ticket-office and the portmen come out of their boxes and close the barriers. A long line of people form at the ticket office to buy tickets; porters carry luggage; the bell is rung, and the out of the tunnel comes a train, rushing into the station and, after the engine has given a shrill whistle, stops. A workman goes from carriage to carriage and tests the axles with a hammer. Another pumps water into the boiler of the engine. After the third signal with the bell the engine whistles and the train disappears in the opposite tunnel; the stationmaster and his assistants leave the platform and the doors of the waiting-room close behind them; the portmen return into their boxes and perfect stillness prevails.

Stands at the Head.

Ang. J. Bogel, the leading druggist of Shreveport, La., says: "Dr. King's New Discovery is the only thing that cures my cough, and it is the best seller I have." J. F. Campbell, merchant of Sanford, Ariz., writes: "Dr. King's New Discovery is all that is claimed for it; it never fails, and is a sure cure for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I cannot say enough for its merits." Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is not an experiment. It has been tried for a quarter of a century, and today stands at the head. It never disappoints. Free trial bottles at Blakeley & Houghton's drug store.

It is the same old story and yet constantly recurring that Simmons Liver Regulator is the best family medicine.

"We have used it in our family for eight years and find it the best medicine we have used. "We think there is no such medicine as Simmons Liver Regulator."—Mrs. M. E. S. Adington, Franklin, N. C. Each member of our family uses it as occasion requires."—W. B. Smith, Mt. Vernon, Ky. Clark, the East End jeweler, makes a specialty of fine watch repairing. Call and see him.
