Arbuckle's Death Still Unexplained --Uncle Sam Getting Guns for His Soldiers. /

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 20 .- Miss Leonora Dean has succeeded in breaking a sale of property made by her mother, a widow, to her lover, under circumstances of peculiar interest. Mrs. Lola Marshall Dean, the mother of the young woman, was a woman of great beauty and decided literary ability. When her busband died, he left her a fortune of $150,000. For several winters she passed her time at a Florida resort, where she made the acquaintance of S. M. Pinkham, a well-know hotel-keeper and local politician, with whom she became desperatly enamored. Pinkham appears to have been likewise smitten, but when he pressed his suit he was met with the objection that the lady had made a promise to her dead husband that she would never marry again. She decided, however, that their love could be of a platonic kind. This was not quite warm enough for Pinkham, who thereupon began paying his respects to another lady in a neighboring town. When Mrs. Dean heard of this she was terribly agitated, and sending for her lover promised that if he would not visit her rival for a space of 18 months she would deed him her property.

The lover was more practical than sentimental, and quickly accepted the proposition, and the lady made out formal deeds and reciting a nominal sum as the consideration, put him in possession of her estate. Shortly afterward she this city for 100,000 guns of the Lee patdied, and her minor daughter brought tern. suit for the recovery of the property. There was considerable latitude in the discussion of the case, it being claimed that an undelivered love like Pinkham's was not sufficient collateral for so much tne case, and returned a verdict declarfought so hard for it.

SHROUDED IN MYSTERY.

Frank Arbuckle's Death is Still Unaccounted For.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 .- The general office detectives today made three additional arrests in connection with the death of Frank P. Arbuckle, of Denver. The prisoners are George Stevens, a saloon-keeper; Joseph Davidson, a stenographer; and Frederick Menger, a bartender. The investigations of the detectives have disclosed the fact that on Wednesday evening Arbuckle was in Luchow's saloon, on Fourteenth street and Irving, in company with the three men named. On Davidson one of Arbuckle's cards was found. Dayidson said they had arranged a meeting for today.

The three prisoners admitted having seen Arbuckle at Luchlow's saloon Wednesday night. They denied, however, having gone uptown with him. Menger said Stevens was trying to get Arbuckle to go Harlem with him "to go against a brace gambling game." They did not know whether Stevens succeeded. The three prisoners were arraigned in Harlem court today.

Butler, the negro, arrested last night, was released today, there being no evidence to connect him with the aileged murder or robbery.

What Venezuela Wants.

CARACAS, Nov. 20 .- It is stated on competent authority that Venezuela will be glad to accept the 50-year clause, provided the question ends there. Some think that the proximity of the British is liable to cause further trouble, making an excuse for further invasion, and they suggest a tribunal be established to pass upon all doubtful cases until all have been disposed of.

THE PURCHASE OF CUBA.

Plan of Consul-General Loe to Secure Peace on the Island.

Washington, Nov. 21 .- Appreciating that the return of General Weyler from the present campaign without making any headway against Maceo's forces will greatly aggravate the already critical situation in Cuba, officials and diplomats in Washington have been earnestly discussing for some days various plans for relieving the situation. The question of a Spanish-Cuban armistic has been widely discussed. If the conditions will admit of this there is every reason to believe that the administration will exercise its good offices to bring about an armistice in the event that affairs become more critical because of an unsuccessful campaign against Maceo.

It is understood that one form of a peaceful intervention which Consul-General Lee has proposed to the authorities here contemplates the use of the good offices of the United States to bring about a modus vivendi for a sufficient time to enable negotiations to be conducted for securing the independence of Cuba by purchase, the United States mucuos surfaces of the system. THE CALIFORNIA AIRSHIP.

Floated Over Sacramento Early Last Evening.

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 22 .- Between 6 and 8 o'clock tonight, hundreds of people again saw floating over the city what is now firmly believed to be an airship. An immense white light was displayed, and it was moving rapidly in a southwesterly direction. The light was so high, however, that no object could be distinguished. Tonight's visitation created considerable excitement, and the POINT ARENA, Cal., Nov. 22.-The airship is the sole topic of conversation.
