Deceased was the daughter of Mrs. J. E. Cannon, who died here about two months ago. The funeral will take place Friday morning. Interment in Upper Mill creek cemetery. [Eugene papers please copy.]

BORN.

In this city, Dec. 18th, to the wife of J. T. Reynolds, a daughter.

Caged Like a Beast.

Bound to iron rings anchored to the walls, and caged like a wild beast, Grace Solomon, the daughter of a wealthy pawn-broker in Denver, has raved for seven months, in a condition and under surroundings the most terrible, says a Denver correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. When Secretary Whitehead, of the Humane Society, visited the store at 165 Larimer street, he was conducted upstairs and found the young girl in a 16-foot ring, utterly nude, under the care of a young man. No effort was made to shield her from view. She was for a time under the care of her mother, reported partly demented, who declined to attend to her most simple wants, and the result is that the girl's nails have grown to such a length that they are used as weapons of defense. The filth of the place beggared description.

Her condition is the result of investigation of spiritualism, it being charged that her mind was affected by "demonstrations" of Jules Wallace, who has been exposed in various parts of the country. She was taken to the little room, and when she became violent was chained to the wall, where her condition became worse, and where the most common wants of humankind were denied her.

What to do with her is a question, for the insane asylum is overcrowded. J. Solomon, her father, is one of the wealthiest men of the West, an old-time pawn-broker, who counts his cash by the thousands. The case is the most terrible and revolting ever brought to the attention of the authorities.

Work for Everybody.

Our fellow-townsmen, Mr. Hugh Glenn, is fairly in it if the subjoined statement concerning the work on the Astoria & Goble railroad is correct. It says:

"Before the election, owing to the free silver agitation, orders were given to the contractors to reduce their force to a point where the monthly outlay came to a very few thousands of dollars. This meant a reduction of the force to a minimum, and involved the discharge of a large number of men and teams, and the withdrawal of purchases of all kinds of supplies, especially in the line of farm products, such as hay, oats, barley, bacon, potatoes, etc., but, now that the election of McKinley is an assured fact, orders have been issued to the general contractors to resume work to the fullest capacity. This means the re-employment of a large force of men and the purchase of hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of supplies of all kinds in this immediate market.

"No time is being lost by the contractors, who are hiring men as fast as they present themselves, and no able-bodied man who is willing to work need want a job for the winter at wages commensurate with the times."

The Cornell-Taylor Case.

An Associated Press dispatch this morning from Saginaw, Michigan, says: The most celebrated case on the criminal docket here in some time has ended. It was against Rev. O. D. Taylor of Oregon, a man of wealth and influence. The information alleged that the defendant, by false representations obtained the signature of Dr. D. C. Cornell on three promissory notes for $2,000 each.

Mr. Taylor, it is claimed, represented that he was the president and general manager of the Interstate Investment Company of Oregon, with headquarters at Portland.

The case had no sooner started than Taylor's attorney moved for a dismissal on the ground that the statute under which the charge was made had been repealed. Judge Snow, after several hours' deliberation, decided the point was well taken, and refused to hear testimony.

Off for the Islands.

Our young townsmen, Fred W. Wilson and Ed. Wingate, have engaged passage on the steamship Monmouthshire and will leave Portland Monday for Hawaii. They go by Victoria, where they will probably spend Christmas. They expect to remain on the islands for a month or six weeks, and as they go with the intention of not only having an enjoyable trip, but also of examining into the resources and business possibilities of the islands, they may stay longer. Wherever they may go or how ever long they may stay their friends here, and that means the entire community, will bear them in memory and have a warm corner in each heart reserved for them on their return.

A White Deer.

There is quite a curiosity on exhibition in the Snipes-Kinersly drugstore window, in the shape of a white deer. The deer was killed near Prineville a year or more ago. The hair is of a creamy white color, the deer a good sized buck with four prongs on one horn and five on the other. The horns are remarkably large with much more than the ordinary spread. It has attracted considerable attention today, and well it may, for white deer are about as scarce as black swans, $20 pieces or any other extremely rare productions.

The Holidays.

Tomorrow the public schools will close until the Monday after New Year's. The CHRONICLE sincerely hopes that every pupil may have just the most delightful Christmas vacation. One that they may all look back to many years from now as a green and pleasant memory. And it hopes further that they will be back at their desks at the end of their vacation with a keener desire to master their studies and to fit themselves for the positions later life will bring them.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat—semi-weekly—Tuesday and Friday—eight pages each issue—sixteen pages every week—only one dollar a year, is unquestionably the biggest, best and cheapest national news journal published in the United States. Strictly Republican in politics, it still gives all the news, and gives it at least three days earlier than it can be had from any weekly paper published anywhere. It is indispensable to the farmer, merchant or professional man who desires to keep promptly and thoroughly posted, but has not the time to read a large daily paper; while its great variety of well selected reading matter makes it invaluable as a home and family paper. Remember the price, only one dollar a year. Sample copies free. Address, GLOBE PRINTING CO., St. Louis, Mo.

CAME TO SEE A BICYCLE.

Owned a Horse Ranch and His Business Was Ruined.

"There goes one er th' goldarned things, George!" The speaker was a white-bearded man fully 70 years of age and, from his appearance, evidently a farmer. The person addressed was a younger man, his high-heeled boots and red necktie also denoting the agriculturist.

It was at the Morrison street bridge—and just before five o'clock in the morning. The gray night mist had not yet lifted from the river, but these two men had risen from their beds—implied by a curiosity to see a bicycle.

"Yes, sir," answered the elder of the two, in response to a question, "we're out yere on this bridge ter see a bicycle—a critter neither of us has ever seen afore. You see, we live in the mountains back in Clatskanie, and bicycles don't come our way."

"We come up the river on the G. W. Shaver, an' comin' up, George says ter me: 'Pop, did yer ever see a bicycle?' an' I had to admit that I hadn't, altho' I understand th' pesky things are plenty enough, judgin' from th' figures published in th' papers regardin' th' output of th' factories buildin' them. But this is th' first time I've bin ter town in nigh on 13 years, an' fer th' life of me I kain't recollect seein' one of th' machines then."

"So I jest asked th' purser where th' best place to catch sight of a bicycle early in th' mornin' was in Portland, an' he told me th' bridge here ahead of th' steamer. Well, I was that peckered to see one that I routed George out so soon as it was daylight, an' we've been standin' on this bridge ever since waitin' for a bicycle man ter come along." Then, turning to his companion, the old man said:

"Well, if I did root yer out kinder early, yer're the most interested, George."

"Yer bet I am!" George replied; and then the younger man went on to tell what the bicycle had done for the horse-raiser and farmer. He has a band of some 600 horses on the range and 90 acres of oats. Five years ago these horses would average $25 per head unbroken, and he received 60 cents per bushel for the oats not used in getting his horses in condition for market. Today the horses can hardly be given away, and his oats bring 31 cents. And this he ascribes to the bicycle.

And so the two men sat, perched on the bridge railing, watching, as the morning grew on, the increased number of bicyclists crossing the bridge and pouring out their anathemas on that "goldarned thing," the silent steed. —Portland Telegram.

HOW DOGS ARE STUNTED.

Methods Employed in the Manufacture of Toy Terriers.

There is an era of tiny dogs in English society. The more diminutive a parcel of canine flesh that you can possess the more are you a swell, says the Toledo Blade. But, alas! How many feminine readers who delight in the miniature doggies know that they are an artificial product.

There is in London an establishment devoted entirely to the stunting of the animals. The proprietor is an ex-breeder of fighting dogs, but he now finds more profit in rearing the illipitican canines, for which he has a wide reputation. He does not claim to be the originator of the process, for he says that all dog men know of the dwarfing powers of alcohol, but he asserts that he is the only man in London to adopt the principle systematically.

His method is as follows: The pup destined to be stunted is taken from its mother when a few hours old and when it begins to whine for sustenance it is fed with a warm decoction of gin and water. Deprived of milk, it takes to this readily. When it reaches a certain age alcohol in various forms constitutes the animal's sole diet. The pups do not die nor do they develop. They soon cease to grow at all. After a generation or two of mating the much-prized illipitican canine is obtained.
