MRS. BEECHER DEAD.

Died at Her Old Home in Stamford, Connecticut.

STAMFORD, Conn., March 8 .- Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher died today, the 10th anniversary of the death of her husband. She was 85 years of age. Mrs. Beecher had been sinking steadily since Saturday noon and during the 24 hours preceding her demise had been unconscious. William Beecher, one of her sons, reached Stamford Saturday evening and remained until last night, when he left for New York.

At the bedside this morning were gathered Mr. Scoville, his wife, a daughter of Mrs. Beecher; Mrs. Sco- doubtedly have imperfect vision that, if ville,s two children and Mrs. Bullard, a niece of Mrs. Beecher.

The funeral arrangements, which were practically completed tonight, will include private services at the residence of Mr. Scoville on Wednesday afternoon. Thursday the remains will be taken to Brooklyn, and from 10 a. m. to noon will lie in state in Plymouth church. At 2 p. m. public services will be held under the direction of Rev. Lyman Abbott.

next few days. It has snowed every day this month, Sunday's storm being the greatest in weeks. Railroad trains are tied in every direction and many small branches are abandoned. The legislature at Pierre, which adjourned on Friday, is tied up as tightly as if under siege. Not a train is running into or out of Pierre. There is almost the same state of things at Aberdeen, Blount, Miss Elizabeth Sampson has returned Gettysburg, Millbank and Chamberlain. General Superintendent Harding, of the Great Northern, came in last night from a trip to the Pacific coast. Speaking of the snow, he said:

"In all my career I never saw anything like it. A conservative estimate would place the snow in North Dakota at three feet on the plains. It is probably nearer four feet."

The Flood in Illinois.

Carlisle, Ill., March 8 .- The river is still rising. The water is now at a stage within one foot of the unprecedented flood of 1892. The suspension bridge across the river at this point is threatened with distruction. An additional rise of two feet will sweep away the bridge, and will entail a loss of $25, 000. Thousands of logs and rafts are lost in the swift current. One hundred thousand bushels of corn which is stored in cribs in the overflowed district will be a total loss.

A Walk-out in New York.

NEW YORK, March 8 .- The first of series of strikes that will probably involve 10,000 mechanics of the building trades was ordered by a committe of the board of walking delegates at the new Columbia college buildings. Over, 500 workmen quit. The committee prodeeded to other large buildings to order strikes.

It is said work will be stopped on every large structure now in course of construction in this city. The strike is the outgrowth of a dispute between labor organizations as to which should control the work on elevators.

OUR LOCAL MINSTRELS.

One of the Most Enjoyable Affairs Ever Seen in The Dallos.

The minstrel show last night was, as anticipated, the affair of the season. When 8 o'clock came without a seat being occupied, it was evident that the affair, as far as the audience was concerned, at least, was to be "swell." And swell it was, for the curtain did not go up until a quarter to 9, and the reason therefor was the crowd that began to arrive at 8:15 and that kept streaming in until the time mentioned. The hall was packed, and in all our experience we never saw so many beautiful women at once with their hats off. It may be that the absence of the hats improved their looks, but at any rate the fact that they were off was thoroughly appreciated. We feel that it is unnecessary to make any extended comment or criticism, since everybody was there to see, yet a brief mention cannot be forborne.

Hartnett and Hampshire were the curtain raisers, sending it up in an Irish character sketch that was very funny, and which was wound up with the song, "Little Johnny Dugan." An Digestive Cordial. It supplies food in encore brought them back, and it was an artificially digested form and at the only the knowledge of other good things same time aids the digestion of other yet in store that prevented them being recalled the third time.

They were followed by Mr. Morse, in his skirt dance, which he gave in a splendid manner, getting a hearty

He was followed by Arthur Clarke and Will Crossen in a German character sketch that was a mirth provoker from start to finish.

Then Nick Sinnott as "Cissy Sideways" sent everybody wild. The makeup was great, Nicks six feet of muscular development appearing perfectly immense in the cute dresses and obsolete pantalets. His stabs at the Thursday doings at the club, were evidently understood and appreciated by the members thereof, and when he told about kicking at the punch bag, and that the next day when it rained the roof leaked, there was a storm of applause.

Harry Lonsdale's speech on money was well received and the local hits were heartily applauded.

The chicken brigade, consisting of Clarke, Clarke, Hampshire and Hartnett, was, in our opinion, one of the best things of the evening.

CATCHING A TARTAR. The Brave and Effective Resistance of an Intended Victim. Highway robberies, even under modern name of "hold-ups," which alters nothing of their character, have become decidedly rare in the far northwest; and they are likely to become still rarer if all intended victims make as brave and effective resistance as did a grocer of Rainier, Washington, recently.

This grocer, whosee name is Hubert, starfed from Rainier with his wagon one night to go to Tacoma to buy goods. With him was a 13-year-old boy. He carried $106 to pay for his purchases. While he was about two miles from Roy and on a lonely road two highwaymen stepped out, confronted the grocer, pushed a pistol into his face, and commanded him to dismount and hand over his money. Hubert had no notion of giving up the noney, but he did not waste any time in thinking up a plan for beating the robbers. He began to get down from the wagon as if to comply, and as he did so he struck the rascal who held the pistol a terrible blow which felled him to the ground. Hubert then came down with one heavy foot upon the wrist of the and which held the revolver.

While the robber was in this position the grocer snatched the weapon away from him and pointed it at the other rascal. It turned out that the second robber had no pistol. Hubert commanded him to put up his hands, which ne did.

Meantime the first man was insens ble from the terrible blow which Hubert had dealt him. Hubert made the second hold up his hands for ten min-utes, until the first had recovered his senses. Then he commanded the first to get up, and told them both to march, which they did.

Thus the grocer took them both into the town of Roy, the boy driving close behind with the horses and wagon At Roy the thwarted highwaymen were turned over to a constable and locked up, and the grocer went on his way to Tacoma.

A REINDEER TONGUE.

South Water Street Game Dealer Intro

"Oh, honestly, I couldn't guess what your friend out in Dakota sent younot in a hundred years," said the South Water street commission man's friend after he had "guessed" for the ninth time, says the Record.

"Well, try it just three times, and if you can't call the turn, then I'll tell you," persisted the commission man. "Was it-well-let me see-was it some kind of a northern winter apple?"

sked the friend, hopefully. "No; you're cold-try it again. I'll tell you one thing, and that is that it wasn't any kind of fruit," said the commission

"Was it some kind of a cake or some thing your friend's wife made? If it was, why, I couldn't call the turn on the particular kind. Wait-maybe it was a Black hills bear," said the friend, quickly, his face lighting up.

"No, you haven't come within a mile Would you believe me if I told you it was a bunch of reindeer's tongues? Well, that's just what it was and I'll tell you that he couldn't have sent anything nicer. The tongues were smoked and seasoned just right. They were as tender as mashed potato, and, oh, say, what a sandwich they do make! If you want something you-will never forget just slap a couple slices of reindeer's tongue between a couple of salted wafers, have an olive or so on the side, and-yum-yum!"

MUSIC IN NERVOUS DISORDERS. Alleged Cure of a Child Due to Chopin's

Somber Waltzes The value of music in the treatment of certain forms of nervous diseases has before now been called attention to by physicians. One advantage perhaps of this therapeutical agency is that in the event of its doing no good it is not likely to do harm. In a recent number of the Gazette Medicale attention was drawn to the remarkable result attending the administration of music to a little girl of three, who was afflicted with serious nervous disorders, resulting in epilepsy and paroxysms of fear. which kept her awake all night. The ordinary remedies, including bromide of potassium, were tried without any effect, and at last the physician recommended the mother to play some soft, rather melancholy music to her daughter before putting her to bed. Chopin was recommended, especially the waltzes in the minor key. The remedy worked like a charm, for it is said that from the night the child went to bed under the influence of music she lost all her nervous symptoms and slept without waking until the morning. In order to prove that this was not the result of mere chance, the music was omitted on one evening, and the child passed a night of misery, not so intense but still very marked.

NOT DUE TO HER SERIOUS TALK. Mother Permitted a Spanking to Exert Its Persuasive Powers.

"Did you notice," asked the girl with the saintly expression of the girl with the laughing eyes, "how beautifully Tommy Jackson behaved in church today?"

The girl with the laughing eyes nodded silently, and the girl with the saintly expression went on dreamily: "I think that I must have managed to touch his stony little heart at last," she said, thankfully, "but it has been a hard struggle. I talked to him seriously on Saturday when I was calling on my Sunday school pupils, and his mother seemed much interested. She said from this department." she had punished him severely only the Sunday before last, and see how shamefully he behaved last week. While yes-

ONE NEW-YEAR'S.

Reception of a President That Wasn't Held in the White House.

"There was one New Year's reception held by the president in the city," said a local historian, "which was not held in the white house. Though the event is seldom referred to, it is a fact all the same. The reception I speak of, though the function then generally went by the name of levee, was given by President Madison on New Year's day, 1815, in the Octagon, at the corner of Eighteenth street and New York avenue The British in 1814 having burned the white house, President Madison moved over to the Octagon house, which was owned by Col. John Tayloe. He spent over five months there. All who attended the levee have long since passed away, but it has been my good fortune in past years to have talked to several gentlemen who were present. They de cribe it as a very elegant affair. All the expenses of the levee were paid out of Col. Tayloe's pocket, that gentleman being enormously wealthy and liberal as well. His income was said to be at that time $75,000."

GREASING THE ELEPHANTS.

The Park Rhinoceros, Too, Conted Twice Twice a year the elephants and the thinoceros in the Central park menag erie get a coating of neatsfoot oil, which is thoroughly rubbed in with the palm of the hand. The oiling and the manipulation oleanse the skin, remove the dead skin, and open the peres, freshen the animals up, and improve their health, and they seem to like the process. The oiling is done only in the spring and summer; if done in the win-cold from it. The rhinoceros at the park is in good condition and lively, and rather frisky for so big a brute. Sometimes it steps about with a step that is very much like a dancing step, and likely to surprise one who sees it for the first time and has been accustomed to regard the rhinoceros as an animal always slow and lumbering in its movements. When the rhinoceros' cage is cleaned out, which is done daily, the keeper first attracts the great creature to one side with a tempting mess of food. Then he slips a noose of rope over the animal's horn and settles it down around the neck and makes the other end fast around a bar or two of the elephant's cage adjoining. This is done to keep the rhioceros from pitching into the keeper If it should take a notice.

The same precaution is taken when the rhinoceros is oiled. The elephants, however, kneel at the word of command. It is not necessary to plant a ladder against them in order to reach the upper part of their sides in rubbing

TAUGHT HER A LESSON. She Probably Found a New Place for Hiding the Key. The other day a very estimable lady came to town to do a little shopping, says the Atlanta Constitution. Of course the key was put under the doormat so that her son, whom she expected to return before her, could get in. In her absence a trump, who had been hanging around the place a number of days and had caught on, boldly went into the house, got some of the choicest viands out of the pantry, put them on the table and pitched in. He also found a bottle of wine that revived his spirits. He did not expect anyone there for a number of hours and so he took it easy. In the meantime the lady of the house having finished her shopping returned home and, seeing the front door unlocked, expected to find her son inside. Imagine her horror when she opened the dining-room door and saw sitting at her table the rustiest-looking tramp that ever vied with his companions in accumulating dirt on his The lady was dumfounded. In the silence that followed the tramp coolly remarked: "Madem, I shall become scarce, now, ez I've eaten enuff. All as before the adoption of the treatment, I kin give yer back fer this good meal and wat I want ter say ter yer is that yer ought to find a new hidin' place fer yer key. I won't charge ver nothin' for this advice." With that the tramp departed.

Defenses of Gibraltan Since the invention of long-range rifle guns the fortress of Gibraltar, in every sense of the word, controls the entrance to the Mediterranean, for at the narrowest part of the strait there are only 18 miles between Europe and Africa. and the guns of the fortress can deliver shots and sells if necessary on the African shore. The military authorities of Gibraltar, however, do not depend upon the guns of the fortifications for blocking the Mediterranean, for at Gibraltar there is always stationed a fleet of powerful ships which can be called into service to assist in defending the strait against the naval forces of a foreign power.
