CRAZY OVER MINING.

The Property Near Canyon City All Taken Up.

G. R. Fugit, of Canyon City, who is a delegate to the grand lodge of Odd Fellows from Hobah lodge, No. 22, reports that everything in that mining section is looking more promising than ever before, so much that everybody is going crazy. Everybody is wanting to mine and as consequence the country is taken up. The gentleman is employed on Walter Brown's placers near Canyon City and is thoroughly posted on what is going on in the country adjacent thereto.

Mr. Fugit reports that there is very profitable digging being done in some places near Mr. Brown's property. He reports that the men on an adjoining claim picked up $884 recently in a few days, just by looking over the dirt as they shoveled it, and that he, himself, only a few days before leaving, found a nugget worth $100.

Speaking of machines for saving gold Mr. Fugit related that J. A. Whitman, who has been mining in that country for thirty years, had said to him that if they ever invented a machine that would save the fine gold there would be more gold taken out of that country than ever before.

Four Famous Characters in Fiction.

Charles Dana Gibson has made a great hit with his Dickens illustrations in

The Ladies' Home Journal. In the June number we have a rare opportunity of seeing what a great illustrator can do in one picture with four famous characters in fiction. Mr. Gibson presents Mr. and Mrs. Micawber, David Copperfield and Traddles. The long, quiet curls of Mrs. Micawber, and the characteristic of her gloved hands as she "lays the case" before David Copperfield, have been admirably caught by the artist. Mr. Micawber, self-poised and satisfied, wears a calm judicial expression as he balances his glass in his hand.

Tree's Limbs Blasted by a Hanging. Judge Davidell recently employed Willis Tripp to trim the trees around his residence, and among them was the balm on which the two Vinsons were hanged August 15, 1895, says the Ellensburg Capital. It developed the fact that the tree is in a thriving condition, with the exception of the two limbs that held the ropes, and they are dead as Caesar. It will be remembered that father and son were suspended from two of the lower limbs, each about an inch and a quarter in diameter, and nearly exactly opposite, one on the east and one on the west side of the tree, so close together that the faces of the dead men almost touched after the work was done. Now, the life is out of those two limbs, while the rest of the tree is growing like its companions.

The Best Remedy for Rheumatism.

From the Fairhaven (N. Y.) Register. Mr. James Rowland of this village, states that for twenty-five years his wife has been a sufferer from rheumatism. A few nights ago she was in such pain that she was nearly crazy. She sent Mr. Rowland for the doctor, but he had read of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and instead of going for the doctor he went to the store and secured a bottle of it. His wife did not approve of Mr. Rowland's purchase at first, but nevertheless applied the Balm thoroughly and in an hour's time was able to go to sleep. She now applies it whenever she feels an ache or a pain and finds that it always gives relief. He says that no medicine which she had used ever did her as much good. Something to Depend On.

Mr. James Jones, of the drug firm of Jones & Son, Cowden, Ill., in speaking of Dr. King's New Discovery, says that last winter his wife was attacked with LaGrippe, and her case grew so serious that physicians at Cowden and Pana could do nothing for her. It seemed to develop into Hasty Consumption. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in store, and selling lots of it, he took a bottle home, and to the surprise of all she began to get better from the first dose, and half dozen dollar bottles cured her sound and well. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is guaranteed to do this good work. Try it. Free trial bottles at Blakeley & Houghton's Drug Store.

BOOTS FROM OLD HARNESS.

Cheap Footwear Made from Cast Off Horse Trappings.

Enormous Quantities of the Material Consumed in This Way—Discarded Saddles Also Utilized.

"Old harness thrown away? Not likely," said a dealer in old leather. "Every scrap of it is worth money; in fact, I can't get enough of it. Old harness collecting is as good as gold digging, if a man can only forage out enough horse owners to keep him well supplied. When you just think how many thousands of horses there are working in harness in London alone, you can imagine how great the supply is."

"Nearly all the cast-off harness is consumed in making cheap boots. People will have cheap boots, and the boot manufacturers find that for making a serviceable article at a low figure there's nothing to beat old harness. Then again, whip-thongs and bootlaces are also made from old horse-trappings."

"In the first place, the greater part of it is bought up by big marine store dealers, who collect it from the harness makers, and from army sales of condemned goods, also from railway companies' sales, the average buying price being twopenny per pound. These dealers have it taken to their warehouses, where it is sorted into different qualities and prices ranging from one penny to sixpence a pound. It is then sold to smaller dealers of the same kind, who in turn distribute it to the boot manufacturers and others."

"Now, if it wasn't for the enormous quantity of old harness used by boot manufacturers, a workingman would not be able to purchase a pair of new boots for a few shillings. No bootmaker could afford to sell a pair of men's boots made entirely of new leather for three and sixpence; yet hundreds of pairs are sold at this price every week in our great towns, and, as long as horses are worked in harness, will continue to be."

"Old saddles are mostly used for making the inner sole of a boot, as they are generally composed of the best leather, and, besides being more durable, will not crack or perish. The most profitable saddle to cut up is a riding saddle. You see, they contain a tremendous quantity of good, sound leather; and then they are frequently thrown aside more because they are dingy than anything else. Undoubtedly a hunting saddle makes the finest boots; but military riding saddles are usually made of the very best leather. "The reins" used for driving a horse form an important item in the construction of cheap boots, being split by machinery and laid under the sole. Then the "blinkers" and "traces" are never very much worn, especially when they come from rich people. Some sets of harness such as is used by omnibus companies, are very often useless when thrown aside, being cracked and perished through hard wear and long exposure to the weather."

"The demand for old sets of military harness is much greater than the supply, as it is very little worn, and, being well cleaned and always kept in good condition, is much more pliable and works up newer. Any goods made from the cast-off harness of railway companies are also pretty serviceable, the large and good quality of the leather making them very useful for working up into other goods. In fact, this leather, when used in bootmaking, looks so well when trimmed and ironed that it is impossible for anyone except those in the trade to detect it."

"Small shoemakers use up a great deal of the cheap harness. In the winter time they use most of it for football boots. It is cut into strips and nailed across the sole of the boot to prevent the wearer from slipping. You'd hardly think anybody would have this done, considering that football boots are so cheap; but, then, some men prefer to wear out their old boots in this way, as they are generally more comfortable than new ones."

"There is really no cast-off article where the material is so little wasted as old harness, every particle of it being used in some shape or form. The buckles and ornaments are cut off and sold by second-hand dealers, the collars are cut up and used for repairing leather bags, the hay stuffing being utilized for restuffing old chairs and coaches."

"Indeed, if the supply of disused harness were twice as great as it is it would not fully satisfy the demands of the boot and other trades."—London Answers.
