HOOD RIVER ITEMS. Swiped From the Columns of the Glacier. A crate of berries picked and packed by J. J. Luckey was shipped by Jos. A. Wilson at midnight May 25th, and reached its destination, 133 miles east of Pittsburg, May 31st. A letter received from the recipient states that the crate arrived in excellent condition, not a bruised strawberry in the lot.

The price of Hood River strawberries in Butte advanced 25 cents per crate Tuesday. On that date Mr. Coon received a carload of berries from the Hood River union, but having the field all to himself, was able to raise the price. The car contained 6111% crates. A few days previous 300 crates of Hood River berries blocked the market and reduced prices at that point.

The Glacier is very happy to be able to take back part of the story it published last week about the strawberry patches of Harry Brown and J. E. Binns. Mr. Binns sent us on Tuesday a box of his berries, which were as fine as any we have seen this season. We are informed that the little yellow lice lasted but a day or two, and since then both Mr. Brown and Mr. Binns have been shipping as good a quality of berries as were grown in the valley.

Opinion of Wood Ticks.

Sticking to the sagebrush, the grease wood and the natives in Malheur county people in a hurry called wood ticks, says an Eastern Oregon editor.

They are dipterous, with steel traps on their feet and a diamond-drilling apparatus attached to each palpus. They sometimes feed on dogs, but prefer boys at Hood River last night to attend the and printers. They are without wings, but can jump 300 feet, and when they get beneath your pajamas, the damage they do is not so much in what they eat as what they tramp down. A wood tick has been visiting friends in the city for is not so large as a bull dog, but he is the past week, left on yesterday mornis not so large as a bull dog, but he is ing's train for Hubbard, Marion county, more to be dreaded than a book agent or a Spanish mule. Some people, when they find an exodus albipictus sticking to them, take the bullet molds and ruthlessly tear away what there is in sight, but this is not the correct way to do, as tournament. We note though that he it leaves the mandibles still in your company, and a sore that will not quit itching for mine years. The only proper thing to do when you find a wood tick screwed (they are never nailed) to you is to take a gold-headed needle, run It into the tick at the point that offers the least resistance, until it penetrates the pons varoli of the medulla oblongata, then hold a lighted lucifer match to the protruding part of the needle; this carries the heat to the aforesaid pons varoli, which causes the tick to withdraw his corkscrew and also to get out alternoon, an unknown women walked of business.

TEXAN HOSPITALITY.

The Passing Stranger Always Invited In and Taken Care Of.

"The latch string hangs out" expressed the hospitality of the southern frontier in the days "before the war." If a traveler rode up before the fence that separated the log cabin from the tation no one dismounted, but it was rarely withheld. Mr. Williams, in his recent book, "Sam Houston," thus describes the impulse of hospitality, which made every traveler a guest during the early settlement of Texas: The traveler who rode up to the front fence was instantly invited to alight. His horse was staked out or hobbled to feed on the prairie grass and the visitor sat down to exchange the news with his host. The coffee the hopper in the hollow log to grinding the corn. The venison or bear meat was put on the coals and the ashcake baked.

After the meal and the evening pipe the visitor stretched himself on a buffalo robe on the floor with the members of the family and slept the sleep of health and fatigue. In the morning the response to any inquiry as to the charge was: "You can pay me by coming again."

The story that a certain hospitable settler used to waylay travelers on the road and compel them to visit him at the muzzle of a double-barreled shotgun was only a humorous exaggeration of the instinct for hospitality which characterized the community.

The visitor was a living newspaper, who brought the only news obtainable, and was a welcome relief to the monotony and loneliness of the wilder-

THE FUNNEL TRICK.

An Interesting Problem Devised by Sport-

ive Californians. Jerry Lynch has finally learned the funnel trick. He took it in two dosesone on one evening and the other the next. The senator sauntered up to the Bohemian club the other day and saw two or three of the younger members attempting a new feat, and he watched them with interest. One of them, says the San Francisco News Letter, stuck a funnel in the top of his trousers, threw his head back, placed a 50-cent piece on his forehead and tried to drop it in the funnel by slowly lowering his head. After all had failed Jerry insisted on trying it, though all had tried to dissuade him from attempting a feat too difficult for them. The funnel was placed in the waistband of his trousers and he threw back his head to receive the coin on his expansive brow At that juncture a pitcher of ice water was emptied into the funnel, and by the time Jerry got through dancing the jokers had vanished. The senator's temper improved with dry raiment and the next night at the club he started in to show a couple of friends the funne

"It's this way," he explained, "you put the funnel in the top of your pantaloons, so, then throw your head back, so, and-wow!"

Again Jerry was forced to change his raiment, and he is not showing people what he knows about the funnel trick.

HARD ON CATS.

A French Government Commissioner Censures the Conduct of Official Cats.

The French government has just had occasion to appoint a commission to inquire into the grievances of the cats in its employ. Their report is an amusing exhibition of official stupidity, and will rouse a righteous indignation in the bosom of all friends of the useful mouser.

It appears that cats are kept in some of the French military magazines to keep down the surplus population of rats and mice. Their food is regulated cumstances, and at present there is a regulation in force authorizing an expenditure of 21/2 centimes per cat per diem. But this does not seem enough, as the unfortunate governmental cats have grown extremely thin, so at last the ministry appointed specialists to inquire into the matter. These have gravely reported that "the cars of the army are very slow to accustom themselves to the diet prescribed by the government circular. Thus they seldom eat bread, and never lap up greasy water unless actually driven thereto by pangs of hunger, so that they are dying off or else abandoning the military mag-

The staging was bamboo, and so was the frame for the hammer, which was a round piece of cast iron, with a hole in the center for a guide rod. Attached to the hammer block were 27 ropes, carried up to the top of the frame and down on the outside, looking very much like the old-fashioned Maypole. Twenty-seven women had hold of the ends, and with a sing-song, all together, pulled down; up the rod, four feet, traveled the hammer; then, at a scream, all ring. The women were paid 20 cents in in general use throughout Japan and China.

THE FIRST BATTLE

THE FIRST BATTLE is an interesting story of the great political struggle of 1896, its most important events and the many issues involved; a logical treatise on Bi-metallism as uttered by eminent exponents, including the part taken by Hon. W. J. Bryan in the silver agitation prior to the Democratic National Convention, and during the campaign; the best examples of his wonderful oratory, the most notworthy incidents of his famous tour, a careful review of the political situation, a discussion of the election returns and the significance thereof, and the future possibilities of Ri-metallism as a political issue.
