Mr. J. H. Hollingshead is in the city today, coming in from Antelope to meet his father, who resides at Evanston, Ill., and who arrived here from the East this morning.

With the exception of the noted world's fair number of The Cosmopolitan, which reached a price of $5 a copy after the last edition had been exhausted, no stronger number of this magazine has ever been issued than that for July, 2897. The report of Julian Hawthorne, the special commissioner sent by the Cosmopolitan to India to investigate the horrors of the plague and famine, is of an extraordinary character and will open the eyes of the world to conditions which were scarcely suspected. The same number contains what is probably the greatest poem of this quarter of the nineteenth century. This new rendering of Omar Khayyam's Rubaiyat, which departs entirely from Fitzgerald's occupies four pages. Amelie Rives reappears as a story-teller for the first time since her marriage with Prince Troubetzkoy. One of the cleverest stories yet from the pen of Robert W. Chambers is given. The remarkable story of the War of the Martians, by Wells, which is attracting the attention both of the scientific and non-scientific good-story-loving public, is continued, and there is a fourth story by a Beckert, elaborately illustrated by the humor of Peter Newell. The educational discussion—this time by Professor Peck, of Columbia—the story of "The Every-Day Life of a Sister of Charity," elaborately illustrated; "The Genesis of a Comic Opera," given by Reginald de Koven; President Gilman, of the John Hopkins university, on "The Bank-

Losing Flesh

You naturally lose flesh in the summer and running down is so easy. You get a little weaker each day without hardly noticing it. There is loss of appetite, headache, weakness of the muscles, disturbed sleep, weakness of memory, and these are the beginning of nervous prostration. Iron and tonics and bitters may afford some temporary relief, but what you need is a food for body, brain and nerves.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil with the Hypophosphites, furnishes just the nourishment needed for those who are run down and pale and thin and weak. If you lose flesh in summer take Scott's Emulsion now. Don't wait till fall or winter before beginning.

Taylor, J T Walsh, Edwin Williams, Miss Della.

J. A. CROSSEN, P. M. Made a Good Hunt.

BAKER CITY, June 30.—An unknown party or parties entered the postoffice here last night and broke open the safe, securing about $1000, $750 in gold and $250 in stamps of 1, 2, 3 and 10-cent denominations. About 30 registered letters were taken, their value being unknown.

A sledge hammer, chisels, drills and a brace and bit were used, all being left in the office except the drills. Two of the chisels were stolen from a tool chest at the St. Elizabeth hospital building, which is in course of construction. There is no clew to the robbers.

Indians Drank Painkiller.

BRANDED, MIDD., July 1.—Five Indians, including Chief Wee Sug, are dead at Malone's Point, on Mille Lacs lake, and several others are expected to die, as the result of drinking painkiller, hair oil and other preparations containing alcohol. Indian payment has been going on there, and the redskins gorged themselves with this stuff, which was bought from Malone's trading post. The Indian riders are scouring every part of the reservation to bring the band together, and serious trouble may result, as the redskins think Malone is to blame for the deaths.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, J. E. Barnett and Dinsmore Parish, heretofore doing business as Barnett & Parish, have this day, by mutual consent, dissolved.

All accounts against said firm should be presented to J. E. Barnett, and said J. E. Barnett is to collect all accounts, notes and evidences of indebtedness owing to said firm.

Dated at Dalles City, Wasco County, Oregon, this 17th day of June, 1897. DINSMORE PARISH, J. E. BARNETT.

The Westfield (Ind.) News prints the following in regard to an old resident of that place: "Frank McAvoy, for many years in the employ of the L., N. A. & C. Ry, here, says: 'I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for ten years or longer—am never without it in my family. I take pleasure in recommending it.' It is a specific for all bowel disorders. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.

CURIOUS MENTAL FEAR.

Wheelerman Afraid His Steed Would Shy at Steam Roller. "A man who has ridden horseback for many years," said a physician, "doesn't quickly lose his feeling of uncertainty as to what his steed is going to do in an emergency after he has taken to riding a bicycle. I had a curious illustration of this. I was riding my wheel up the boulevard when I met a big steam roller at Ninety-second street. Horses that will rub noses against a moving train will shy at a steam roller for some unknown reason. Horsemen recognize steam rollers as things to be avoided at any cost. Now I have been riding a wheel for a year, but as soon as I saw that roller coming down the boulevard I instinctively turned my wheel into a side street to avoid it. For the moment I felt that I was in danger of being thrown. Then I realized the advantage that a wheelman has over a horseback rider when it comes to steam rollers, and I turned around and rode past this particular roller with great satisfaction."

She Dalked Steamboats.

The wife of a physician who lives in Washington tells a story of a distant kinswoman who was her guest during the Christian Endeavor convention. The kinswoman lives in an inland New England town, and when she came to Washington she spent one night of the journey on board a steamboat. It was the first time she had ever traveled by water. She reached Washington extremely fatigued. The doctor's wife remarked it. "Yes, I'm tired to death," said the kinswoman. "I don't know as I care to travel by water again. I read the card in my state room about how to put the life preserver on and I thought I understood it, but I guess I didn't, though. Some way, I couldn't seem to go to sleep with the thing on."

Terrible Suicide of Three Men.

St. Louis, July 1.—Just west of Wellsville, there is a coal chute belonging to the Washburn line. As passenger train No. 6 was dashing through this chute, Engineer Robinson saw three men lying with their heads upon the rail. He tried to stop his engine, but the distance was too short, and in an instant the men were ground beneath the wheels. A close examination of the bodies revealed the fact that the men must have been perfectly sober when they took their places beside the track.

NEW QUARRYING METHOD.

An Albany Man Now Cuts Stone with Wire Rope. Those who have indulged in deep sea fishing know how the fish line cuts deeply into the hard wood of the gunwale as it is hauled in while taut. Even an iron protection, after a time, shows the wear of the rope, which is comparatively soft. This gives a clew to the invention of an Albany quarryman for cutting stone. Instead, however, says the Detroit Free Press, of hemp, he proposes to use wire rope, and with this he will carve the marble and stone right out of its native bed. The wire is wound in strands, and has a very rough surface, powerful machinery gives a strong and steady strain, and the stone, yielding to the constant wear, parts, with smooth edge. It would be easy enough to cut the blocks after they are removed from the quarry, but where the cleverness of the inventor comes in is devising mechanism that can be applied to the stone while in the quarry. This is effected by sinking two parallel channels in the quarry to a depth of little greater than that of the lowest level of the stone to be cut. The channels may be 20 to 100 feet, or more, apart. At the bottom of each is made a small hole to receive the foot ends of the shafts of the machine. This is the only preparation of the quarry that is necessary. The ropes, which are coiled on huge drums, are then passed around the channels, and as the drums revolve the cutting proceeds. Suitable brakes are provided for the regulation of the speed and pressure. The ordinary speed of the strand is 800 feet a minute, so that a mile length of it passes in six minutes. While the strand is moving, crushed stone or chilled shot and water can be introduced to increase the attrition. Far better, however, than either of these is a composition obtained from the millings of a magnetic iron separator, which costs about one-tenth as much as the chilled shot. It does not leave the lines caused by the shot, and it can be used over and over again.

PUBLIC SERVICE IN CHINA.

Two Merits of the Competitive Educational System.

Ex-Secretary John W. Foster, who was the confidential adviser of the emperor of China in the peace negotiations with Japan, contributes a paper on "The Viceroys Li Hung Chang" to the August Century. Mr. Foster says of the viceroys:

"He does not regard the competitive educational system of admission to the public service as a perfect method, and more than once he has recommended to his imperial master modifications in the existing system. But it must be confessed that it has stood the test of centuries with much benefit to China, and its practical operation has demonstrated that it possesses two merits of inestimable value to any nation: first, it brings all the offices of the empire within the reach of the lowest subject; and secondly, it diminishes the incentives to, and opportunities of, corruption and favoritism in securing entrance into official life. But in China the competitive examination ends with the admission; beyond that step promotion must come through other methods. Li Hung Chang secured the right of admission to office through his assiduous application to study, and every succeeding step in his upward career has been attained by his own genius and capacity."

AN AUTUMN REVERIE.

The Happy Bride Was Entranced by Nature and So Was John. It was in the month of October and they had been married four weeks. Four blissful weeks they had been to her in that lovely country house among the quiet hills, says the Detroit Free Press.

Day after day the autumn sun had been painting the trees in wondrous shades of tints, and now the mountains were great banks of rich maroon, and the valleys, flowing silently between, o'er streams of grass-green waves and scarlet foam.

This afternoon she sat with him on the long, low piazza and gazed dreamily on the lovely picture spread before.

At first she talked to him sitting there so comfortable in his great rustic chair, but her voice grew softer and softer until it died away in whispers and she was still.

The mystic, restful touch of the sweet October days was upon her, and it was blissful peace to sit idly in the sun and look upon the beauties of the scene—silent she, as it was.

The old life of her girlhood had gone and she stood upon the threshold of this new life—this wondrous hall of womanhood, extending far, far before her, as were the valleys spread below the mountainside.

There was upon her soul the ineffable calm of autumn time, and the magic of the afternoon fascinated her. And it was not for her alone, but him; this man, who now was part and parcel of her life.

He, too, she felt, must feel the rapturous thrill, the weird and witching spirit of the hour.

"John," she whispered, softly, as the hum of bee that knocks at the door of every honyed flower.

But John did not respond.

Ah, he too, is clothed in this charm, she thought.

"John," she said, again, this time with eager tone, as if to call him from his reverie and share with her the rhapsody that moved her very soul.

But to her ears no answer came to lay its soft response upon her heart.

John was sound asleep.

RUSSIAN RESOURCES.

The Empire's Splendid Showing at Her Grand Exposition.

Signs of Rapid Growth in Manufactures and Trade Industries—Some Features of the Great Enterprise.

The pan-Russian exposition at Nijni Novgorod, nominally opened by the minister of finance on June 9, is now in full progress, and the multitude visiting it is swelled by the crowds of merchants and traders that annually attend the famous fair at the same place. The exposition is a government undertaking, upon which a great deal of money has been lavished, with the object of promoting trade within the empire. It is the 16th industrial exposition of all the Russias since 1829, three having been held in Warsaw, and the others in Moscow and St. Petersburg. The last was in Moscow in 1882. Since that date there has been a remarkable development of Russia's manufactures. It is evidenced by the present exposition in a most convincing way that Russia has ceased to be an exclusively agricultural country, and must be ranked with manufacturing countries of the first-class. There are samples and specimens of everything, showing the wide range of Russian industry. There is not much, perhaps, that is new and original in the purely European exhibits, but in respect to things which the west does not produce there is extraordinary diversity and abundance. The peculiarities of Russia's various races and the products of her provinces from the Arctic circle to central Asia are admirably displayed.

The exposition covers an area of 200 acres, near the confluence of the rivers Oka and Volga, beyond the fair. The place is 260 miles east of Moscow, from which city it was expected there would be many visitors at the conclusion of the coronation festivities. With a view to this, numerous immense hotels were erected along the new avenue extending from the railway terminus to the main entrance of the exposition. These palaces, with the floating hotels on the Oka, have failed till very recently to obtain many guests, though the government has made great effort to render the place attractive to foreigners. The exposition buildings consist of a large number of separate pavilions, interspersed with restaurants, refreshment kiosks and flower gardens grouped around a circular gallery, which forms the center. One of the most interesting sections is that of central Asia. The people, their industries, their residences and mode of life are fully reproduced. The varied productions of Siberia are well displayed. Among the rest, the 197½ tons of gold, worth $140,000,000, obtained in the last 64 years from the mines of the czar, are represented by two large globes. The exhibit of minerals, furs, etc., is very rich. Photographs of Siberian convicts disclose the queer circumstance that most of them are punished for "concealing their avocation and family origin."

Agriculture makes a poor showing, reflecting, it is supposed, the condition of this industry, which is depressed in Russia as in other parts of the world. The rural and domestic industries, apart from farming, make, however, a large display. Whole villages, it seems, are turning to the manufacture of useful articles to the neglect of agricultural pursuits. Spinning and basket work occupy great numbers. The largest progress in the past 20 years has been in mining and metallurgy, but much has been done in textile fabrics, cotton goods, silks, etc. Electrical contrivances obtain, of course, a marked prominence. The machinery hall has 147,000 square feet of space and is a fine affair. The art display is poor.

The exposition was brought to Nijni this year, it is said, to revive the prosperity of this trade center, which has been declining. It is hoped that the great Siberian railway, when completed, will produce the same result. Expert opinion is, however, adverse to this view. The increased railway communication must, it is held, tend to develop other distributing centers.—Baltimore Sun.

LAY PREACHERS.

English Lords Who Deliver Sunday Discourses.

Emperor William's taste for preaching, even where there is a duly qualified ecclesiastical within reach, is far more common fancy than most people might be willing to imagine. Under the circumstances it is difficult to understand the surprise which has been caused by his insistence in delivering the Sunday discourse during the recent yachting trip in the Mediterranean, although he had on board with him the chief of the court chaplains.

Thus in England there are at least a dozen secular members of the house of lords who, not content with preaching to their own households and tenants, actually travel about in England and on the continent, preaching wherever they can find either a congregation or a pulpit at their disposal.

Several of them, such as, for instance, Lord Radstock, have incurred the wrath of foreign governments in consequence of their religious zeal.

The young Earl Beauchamp is another of these lay preachers, but he confines his ministrations to the East end of London. Then there is Lord Bunsford, married to an American wife and heir to the earl of Tankerville, who has been arrested for street preaching on several occasions.

The present duke of Hamilton does a little in the preaching line, chiefly among the poorer classes of London. But none of these peers come anywhere near the late earl of Shaftesbury so far as pulpit oratory is concerned, the earl being known by the nickname of "the lay bishop."

PREVENTIVE AGAINST COLDS.

German's Novel Method of Keeping the Feet Warm in Cold Weather.

Warm feet during wet weather are the best preventive against so-called "colds" and their often dangerous consequences. Rubber shoes and cork soles have been pretty generally used to avoid getting cold and wet feet, but a new and very curious means to warm the feet has recently been patented by Paul Wonneberger, of Gruna, near Dresden, says the Philadelphia Record. He calls his invention "heatable shoes." Within the heel of the shoe, which is hollowed out, there is a receptacle for a glowing substance, similar to that used in the Japanese hand-warmers. Between the soles, imbedded in asbestos covers, there is a rubber bag, which is filled with water. The water is heated above the heel, and as it circulates while the wearer of the shoe is walking it keeps the entire nether surface of the foot warm. A small safety valve is provided, and the bag cannot burst. The warmth given by this sole never rises above 70 degrees Fahrenheit, and will last for about eight hours. The shoes are little heavier than ordinary ones, and the sole is but slightly thicker than that of the so-called wet weather boot.

When my little girl was one month old, she had a scab form on her face. It kept spreading until she was completely covered from head to foot. Then she had boils. She had boils on her head at one time, and more on her body. When six months old she did not weigh seven pounds, a pound and a half less than at birth. Then her skin started to dry up and got so bad she could not shut her eyes to sleep. Cut it lay with them half open. About this time, I started using CUTICURA REMEDY, and in one month she was completely cured. The doctor and drug bills were over one hundred dollars. The CUTICURA bill was not more than five dollars. My child is now strong, healthy, and large as any child of her age (see photo), and it is all owing to CUTICURA. Yours with a Mother's Blessing, Mrs. G. H.
