OLD-TIME SOUTHERN SPORT. Members of Hunting Clubs on Whom Big

Fines Were Emposed.

Among the sports of olden times the hunting clubs were prominent everywhere, says the Atlanta Constitution. In Camden county one of the most famous of clubhouses in this country was built at Bear Hammock and kept under the supervision of Gen. John Floyd. 'Et was there that the Camden County Hunting club-organized in 1832, held its meetings, made its rules and imposed

The charter members of the club were Charles R. Floyd, Richard Floyd, Henry Floyd John Floyd, Ben Hopkins, J. H. Dilworth, James Holzendorf, John Holzenderf, Alexander Holzendorf, P. M. Nightingale, William Berrie and Henry du Bignon. Several members joined afterward. The club-dress was a scarlet jacket and black pantaioens and a fine of 500 copper caps was imposed on Alexader Helzenderf at one neeting for not having on the regulation dress. No member was to be absent from the meetings unless by good. excese, and James Holzendorf was finel 1,000 copper caps for one absence. After the day's hunt, sometimes with the luck of 16 deer, an elegant dinner was served before dispersing.

The 16th rule read: "Game is considered by the club to be deer, bear, hogs, cows, bulls, wildcate and turkeys." Wild cattle and hogs abounded in the woods in those days, the latter living to an old age, which was told by the tusks, sometimes eight to ten inches

PASSING OF THE FAKE AUCTION. One Kind of Business That Is Happily and

Permanently Suspended. Where has the jewelry auctioneer gone? Up to three years ago there were at least a dozen places on the South side where a gaudy display of watches, diamonds and revolvers in the windows called attention to a searcely less lond auctioneer within. He stood on an elevation behind the counter; he had "cappers" both inside and outside the place, and his sonorous tones were ringing all the fime. 'He watched the stream of passers-by on the street and "backed the play" of the cappers. He sold all manner of watches, and he always "got the best of it."

As a rule, says the Chicago Post, these salesmen were excellent auctioneers and knew all the wiles of their craft.

Up to two years ago some of them were still running, but they gradually faded out, and now there is not one, with the triffing exception of a Saturday night fling in West Madison street. They must do a good business, selling quantities of material at an excellent price. But there was an end of all things in their line and the jewelry auction has vanished.

Amongst the Hindoos throughout the whole of India there is a holiday celebration in honor of Lakshmi, the goddess of wealth and good fortune, whereon gambling is universally regarded as a religious duty. It is known festival of lamps, and on that day all classes indulge in games of chance with shells, coins, cards, dice, etc., and the future of the individual, whether good or had, is looked upon as a forecast of his wealth or poverty during the ensuing year. The women take a most intense interest in the proceedings and, if fortunate, expend their winnings in the purchase of sweet-ments and fruits. as gifts to all their friends and relations, toys for the small children and fireworks for the boys. At Benares, their sacred city, as night approaches, small earthen lamps, fed with oil, are kindled, making the outlines of every mansion, palace, temple and minaret visible. All vessels in the river are also illuminated; so that the whole city is one blaze of light.

Time Occupied by Dreams.

The time occupied by a dream is one of the marvels of sleep. In the work entitled "The Philosophy of Mystery," we read of a man who dreamed that he had enlisted as a soldier; that he had joined his regiment and traveled to a foreign country; that he finally deserted on account of the harsh treatment he had received at the hands of his superior officers; that he had been apprehended and carried back to his regiment; that upon arriving there he was tried by court-martial, condemned to be shot and was led out for execution. At this moment the guns of the executioners exploded and the sound awoke the dreamer. It was clear now -that a loud noise in an adjoining room had both produced the dream and awakened the dreamer almost at the same

Queen's Domestic Correspondence.

One pleasing feature of the queen's busy life is the keeping up with her own hand of a correspondence with all ber children and grandchildren, besides many other relatives and dear friends, such as, in the latter case, ex-Empress Eugenie. This correspondence is particularly large when she is, as at present, in retfrement in her Highland home. Perhaps the most interesting letter her majesty ever penned was that written to the prince of Wales many years ago announcing his emancipation from parental authority and control, when, after warning him against flatterers, she stated that she would never intrude any advice upon him, although she would ever be ready to give it whenever he should think fit

NO AUTOGRAPHS FOR HER. servant Girl Had No Use for the Check

A certain family, whose home is in the suburbs of London, have in their employ, says Amusing Journal, a whose ways are invariably so methodical and her cooking so near perfection that, were she to leave her present home, one-half of the mistresses in the district would be eager to secure her services. Never by any chance has dinner been tate at the Myrtle villa, or the joint under or over done, neither has any policeman crossed its threshold. But, treasure that she is, she came near to making a change of residence at the close of her very first month's stay.

On the morning of the day upon which her wages became due, her mistress requested her to step into the study, where her master was waiting to pay her. In a few moments she rushed from the study to the kitchen, where she had left her mistress, and in less time than it takes to narrate had given that astonished lady notice.

"But whatever is the matter, Mary?" inquired her mistress. "What has your master said or done to annoy

"He hasn't said nuthin'," replied Mary, as she flourished a check in her mistress' face, "but he's on'y given me this for a month's slavery. Not me; I ain't no ortygraph collector, I ain't."

The Red Sea Miracle Often Seen in Link

It is a well-known fact that at certain times of the year Link river, a connects the great water systems above and below this point, becomes almost dry, says the Klamath Falls Express. This state of affairs, however, lasts, as a rule, but a few hours, during which time people have been known to walk neross the river, 300 feet wide, without getting their feet wet. The bottom of the river has been dug out in many places by the action of the water, forming large potholes, and when the river becomes dry these holes are filled with trout, which are left stranded. At such times it is a common occurrence to see men and boys knocking the fish on the head with clubs, and in this way secure many a good meal.

There are many traditions regarding this phenomenon among the Indians here, but the real cause of the low water in the river is the action of the wind. The course of the stream is southeast, and the high winds which prevail in the spring and fall are from the south. and blow up the river. The outlet from the upper lake being small, the force of the wind keeps the water back in the big lake, causing the river to become

A FRENCH INCIDENT. Cyclist with a Broken Leg Wins a

A fatal cycling accident happened reently at Maison Laffitte. Two young Englishmen, F. Morris, the steeplechase jockey, and F. Davis, first stableman in the employ of L. Robert, the trainer, had arranged a bicycle match of six kilometers from the Maison Laffitte railway bridge to the Croix de Noailles and back. They had almost completed the race when Morris, who was a little whead, looked back to see how far Davis was behind, and in doing so he let his machine run against the curbstone. The unfortunate rider came to the ground and broke his leg below the knee. Morris, who was following close behind, could not avoid his fallen opponent and where he remained insensible. Disregarding both his own broken leg and his friend lying motionless on the ground, Morris, in his anxiety to win the race, mounted his bicycle and soon reached the winning post, with one foot on the pedal, the other hanging useless on the opposite side. Davis was then carried home, but he died during the aight.

Gold and Silver Bugs.

The most remarkable gold bugs in the world are found in Central America. They belong to the genus Plusiotis, and one might easily imagine a specimen R.?" to be the work of some clever artificer in metal. The head and wing cases are brilliantly polished, with a luster as of gold itself. To sight and touch they have all the seeming of metal, and it is hard to realize that the creature is a mere animal. Oddly enough there is another species of Plusiotis from the same region, which has the appearance of being wrought in solid silver, freshly burnished. These gold and silver beetles have a market value. They are worth from $25 to $50 each. One of the most beautiful bugs in the world is a small beetle known to science as the "blue Hoplia." Its back is an exquisite iridesits body is of a bright silver hue. The notion that it contains silver is widely entertained, and attempts have fre quently been made to extract silver from it.-N. Y. # Electricising Water Power.

Clear lake, 75 miles north of San Francisco and 1,317 feet above the sea level, having its outlet at Cache creek, a stream supplying 327,000,000 gallons of water daily, is to have its forces translated into electricity, sent on overhead copper wires, 20,000 horse-power and upward, to the motors at San Francisco, besides doing lots of work all around the region and on the line of transit. On the way the waste water is to irrigate hundreds of thousands of other day a youth of Seattle, bubbling acres of land, making it bud and blossom like the rose. The water will be shot through Pelton wheels, which will be connected directly with the dynamos, the latter being among the largest and most powerful known. INCIDENT ON THE ALLEY "L." Truculent Negro Passengers Subdued by a Friend of the Conductor.

On the alley "L" road one evening a trio of negroes boarded a southbound train and proceeded in a way to capture the car they were in. They stood in the aisle and obstructed the progress of people coming and going out at the different stations and were inclined to be disputatious and quarrel- details, so as to leave him as free as some with anybody who ventured to criticise their conduct. One of them in particular, the largest of the three, was especially pugnacious, and finally, when the conductor ordered them to take their seats the big fellow threatened all sorts of destruction to the official, and defied him openly to lay hands on him, says the Chicago Chron-

The conductor passed to the next car and enlisted the services of an acquaintance of his, a "bouncer" at one of the smaller theaters. This worthy weighed about 240 pounds and was a giant in strength and size. He walked into the car where the darkies stood, grabbed the big one, who was at least half a foot shorter than the bouncer, and dragged him to the door.

As the car was just then slacking up at a station the bouncer threw the colored man clear over the gate and on to the platform without waiting for the guard to open the gate. The darky sprawled all over the platform and his two companions slunk to seats as the bouncer looked back into the car. The train went on, the two remaining "terrors" keeping very still.

Afterseveral stations had been passed one of them spoke in subdued tones to stream a mile and a quarter long, which | the other. All he said was: "Dat sholy was a strong man."

ELECTRIC LIGHTS AND EYESIGHT cted Lamps Found to Be Injurious to the Eyesight.

The question of injury to the eyes from electric light is being prominently discussed by scientists, oculists and laymen throughout the country. While opinions widely differ as to the ultimate injury likely to result from the rapidly increasing use of electricity, the consensus of opinion is that light from uncovered or uncolored globes is working damage to the eyesight of humanity. In a discussion of the subject a London electric light journal, in defending its trade, feels called upon to make some important admissions. It says: "It is not customary to look at the sun, and not even the most enthusiastic electrician would suggest that naked ares and incandescent filaments were objects to be gazed at without limit. But naked are lights are not usually placed so as to come within the line of sight, and when they do accidentally, whatever may result, the injury to the eye is quite perceptible. The filament of a glow lamp, on the other hand, is most likely to meet the eye, but a frosted bulb is an extremely simple and common way of getting over that difficulty. The whole trouble can be easily remedied by the use of properly frosted or colored giass globes. In any case, however, the actual permanent injury to the eye by the glowing filament is no greater than that due to an ordinary gas flame."

WOMAN AS A MAHOUT. The Views of One of the Drivers of Elephants.

She can do her best work in the world by turning her own talents to account to smooth the path of a man whom she can sway and who has all the possibilities before him. So when the woman does her utmost to use her brain in his interest, to attend to all tiresome possible from petty cares and worries Then the man can concentrate the whole of his energy in his work, and the woman's ambition is vicariously satisfied. She watches the friend, brother and husband, and feels, with a half-amused complacency, that but for her his end would never have been attained. 'And this eternal watching and criticism develops in woman a greater power of knowing what men will do in particular circumstances. She has seen so often before that pareffects in determining the actions of the workers. In the stress and hurry of the fight the man is not conscious which way the action is tending. He is absorbed in doing the duty immediately before him. The woman looking on coolly can say to him: "See, this line of conduct must lead to this and this consequence; you have only to take advantage of it and your success will be

It is therefore because woman is essentially a looker-on that she is so invaluable as an adviser to man. To many a great man the advice of an Egeria, even an Egeria of an obviously inferior intellectual cal.ber to himself, is almost essential. She can watch and weigh the motives of his adversaries, she can calculate the probable effect of his own actions, and still more of his words, she can criticise his past decisions and indicate the best chance of success in the future. In fact, to be a woman is to to be a mahout-a driver of elephants. The goad with which she steers the animal is in her hand, but yet she knows, as according to Mr. Rudyard Kipling every mahout knows, that some day, sooner or later, the great beast will get beyond her control and may turn on her with a terrible punishment for the insult of having kept him in subjection. For the ultimate force in life, physical strength, is against the woman as it is against the mahout.-London Specta-

His One Great Trouble. An old bedridden fisherman at a fashionable watering place was frequently visited during his last illness by a kind-hearted clergyman, who wore one of those close-fitting elerical vests with buttons behind.

The clergyman saw the near approach of death one day in the old man's face, and asked if his mind was perfectly at ease. "Oo ay, I'm a' rich," came the feeble reply.

"You are sure there is nothing troubling you? Do not be afraid to Yakima's fame is spreading. The other day a youth of Seattle, bubbling over with patriotism, while crazed with liquor, created a greatecare in that usually quiet city. With a long knife in his belt and a gun in each hand, which he held aloft, ever and anon, pulling the triggers, he rushed into the street, and with a terrible warwhoop and scream shouted between breaths: "I'm the wild man from Yakima."
