Saturday's Daily.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Crawford of Klickitat are in the city today.

Wilson and Brown, indicted with Simmons for robbing the Indians near the ice house last summer, today withdrew their pleas of not guilty, and entered each a plea of guilty.

For November the weather clerk has furnished the past few days some of the most beautiful spring weather imaginable. Another week of it and the spring poetry should begin to come in.

Portland had quite a snow storm Friday, the ground being covered to the depth of three inches, while here we had barely enough to cover the ground, and that turned to slush almost as fast as it fell. Pague has been calling the turn on it for nearly a month, and finally fetched it.

The clouds having cleared away, it will be possible to study the heavens tonight. It is expected that there will be quite a brilliant meteorological display both tonight and tomorrow night after midnight, though the grand display occurring every thirty-three years is not due until next year.

The pile driver has been put in place for building the new trestle across Mill creek, and today several carloads of piling have been dumped over the bank and will soon be in place. A dozen teams are engaged in hauling all the Mill creek bottom onto the hill, and several gangs of men are blasting out the cut.

A man supposed to be from Newberg walked overboard from the steamer Regulator yesterday morning at Portland, and was drowned. He was under the influence of liquor at the time, and though the crew did everything possible no opportunity was given to help the unfortunate man as he never came up after his first plunge.

"The face of every woman is a history or a prophecy," said Mrs. Margaret Sangster at the annual banquet of the Emma Willard Association recently. "I have no sympathy with women who try to efface wrinkles. A woman has no business to look younger than she is. There is a history in every wrinkle of her face."

Mr. J. G. Woodworth, general freight agent for the O. R. & N., in an interview with an East Oregonian reporter the other day, speaking of the visit of the Portland merchants to Eastern Oregon and Washington, said: "In crossing from Washington into our own state and coming to Pendleton, the first important Oregon city which we have visited," etc. Portland and the O. R. & N. may class The Dalles as of no importance, but they will slip their trolley when they do.

The Circle ball at the Vogt last night was one of the most delightful events of the year. The attendance was light, but the music was fine, the floor in elegant condition, and those who attended were unanimous in the statement that the Circle knew how to entertain and had given them one of the most enjoyable evenings possible. The programs were unique, the front page of each having a little pen or pencil sketch, the work of Mrs. Inez Filloon, and we noted that each of them was kept as a souvenir.

James Moore, aged 89 years and 8 months, died near Boyd last Tuesday. He was a native of Wabash county, Ill., and came across the plains to this coast in 1852, locating in Lane county near Eugene, where he resided till about eight years ago, when he came to this county and took up his residence with his son-in-law, J. B. Hanna, where he died. Deceased leaves three sons, Henry and George, of Rock Creek, Gilliam county, and William of Camas Swail, Lane county, and two daughters, Mrs. J. B. Hanna of Boyd and Mrs. Bryant of Colfax Wash. The remains were interred in the I. O. O. F. cemetery Thursday at 11 a. m., Rev. Wm. Heisler conducting the burial service at the grave.—Dufur Dispatch.

The main audience room of the Methodist church was well filled last evening on the occasion of the lecture by Rev. W. H. Iliff, who took for his subject "Through the World of Night," which gave a very vivid and eloquent description of a visit to the mammoth cave of Kentucky. Mr. Iliff is a very eloquent speaker, and the vein of humor which seems to be a part of his nature and runs through the whole discourse, gives it flavor often lacking in the conventional lecture. Rev. Iliff was sent to Portland by the general conference of the Methodist church in the interest of the Portland hospital, and is making a success of his mission. The Leagners were fortunate in persuading him to lecture for their benefit.

The fair for the benefit of the Catholic church will begin Tuesday evening, November 23d. Doors will be open for guests at 7:30, and an enjoyable time can be assured all who attend. On this evening St. Mary's orchestra and a number of the school children will render a select program, while all other evenings Birgfeld's orchestra will furnish the music. The admission will be 10c, and on Wednesday evening dancing will be indulged in. Gentlemen dancing will be charged 50c, and those not dancing, the regular admission. There will be four booths, these being: Table No. 1, conducted by Mrs. T. J. Seufert and Mrs. Judd Fish; table No. 2, conducted by Mrs. Herbering and Mrs. Nolan; paper booth conducted by Miss Alma Schanno; and refreshment booth conducted by Mrs. Sandrock.

J. W. Nesmith Woman's Relief Corps will hold a memorial service in Schanno's hall this (Saturday) evening at 8:30 o'clock. This meeting is called in pursuance of general orders received from national and department officers, in memory of Mrs. E. Florence Barker, past national president, who died at her home in Malden, Mass., on September 11, 1897, and Mrs. Julia Abraham, past department president, who died at the family home in Roseburg, Or., on October 6, 1897, and our own members who have "crossed over" during the present year. All friends of the order are invited to be present.

No matter where they go The Dalles boys always come to the front. This is shown in the case of Forrest Fisher, recently elected captain of the Stanford foot ball team. The San Francisco Call of the 16th gives him a column, and also shows a very good picture of him. Mr. Fisher has two brothers here, Ralph in French & Co.'s, and James, in the employ of Mayor M. T. Nolan. Fisher has won his way to the front in college athletics, and his election as captain of the foot ball team is simply a recognition of merit. Not only is he at the front in athletics, but Wasco county can feel proud to know that one of her boys is coming to the front in other lines. Fisher is manager of the college paper, the Daily Palo Alto, and he is making a decided success in the study of the law. There is one thing on earth that excels a Dalles boy, and that, of course, is a Dalles girl. We regret that lack of space prevents us from publishing the full statement of the Call about our young townsman.

The Antelope Herald announces the marriage of its new editor, Mr. M. E. Miller, to Miss Estella Ashby of Antelope. He didn't say a word, just told the devil to get out the paper and went and hooked up as though it were an every-day occurrence.

The song of the turkey is heard in the land; but it will soon be silenced. The turk that sings now is liable to have a sudden attack of throat trouble that will terminate his career and send him to the table with his drumsticks trussed and be "done up brown."

A large crowd attended the Sunday school Thanksgiving service at the M. E. church last night. Papers were read in regard to the first Thanksgiving service of our forefathers, solos were sung and a recitation given, after which Rev. Wood gave a short, but eloquent, address on our reasons for being thankful.

R. N. Barnett, a farmer living in Columbia county was held up on the streets of Dayton about 3 o'clock Tuesday morning by two men, and $150 in cash taken from him. The robbers are thought to be one Charles West, an all-around tough character, who had been run out of Walla Walla several times, and another character who also goes by the name of Charlie. Both are about 25 years of age and about five feet ten inches in height.

Mrs. Briggs received a telegram Saturday evening from the doctors at Chehalis who are attending Neddy, stating that an operation would be necessary to save his life. The bone will be bored into and the pus removed. If this does not avail it is feared the leg will have to be amputated. Mr. Briggs came down from Arlington on the early morning train Sunday, Mrs. Briggs going from here with him, to do all that may be done for the afflicted boy.

Mr. John Campbell of Prineville arrived in the city Saturday on his way home from British Columbia, where he has been prospecting during the summer. He brought home some very handsome samples of ore, most of them carrying copper along with the gold. Mr. Campbell has done a good summer's work, having been offered $20,000 for one of his claims. He was met here today by his brother-in-law, Mr. A. Hamilton, who also resides at Prineville, and they leave for home in the morning.

The Doctor Grant medicine show drew quite a large crowd at the Baldwin last night, and succeeded in causing considerable amusement, in spite of the fact that the room was frigid. We understand the company will remain here for a couple of weeks.

Under the new school law in Washington it becomes the duty of the school clerks in the various districts to report to the judges of the superior court on the first of next month the names of all children between 8 and 15 years of age who are attending school.

It will take a month of good weather to finish harvesting and threshing in the Big Bend country. Mid snow and rain sixteen threshing machines, six steam engines and ten horse powers have been endeavoring to continue work, one machine running day and night.

The apple crop on Burnt river is reported to be three times that of last year and of good quality. The price, also, shows a very material advance over last year's. Last season's yield brought forty cents a box, which this year has advanced to 75 cents, nearly double.

A petition has been in circulation and quite extensively signed by Democrats and Republicans of the east end of Umatilla county praying the county court to appoint D. McEachern, one of Milton's village blacksmiths, sheriff to fill Mr. Houser's unexpired term. Mr. McEachern is a Democrat, and Umatilla is a Republican county.

Lieutenant-Colonel James Jackson, Second Cavalry, who for several years acted as instructor of the Oregon National Guards, retired from active service Sunday. Col. Jackson is a thorough soldier, and during his connection with the Oregon Guards, won the esteem of both officers and soldiers, all of whom will regret his retirement.

A note received by Miss Botorff this morning from Mrs. Briggs stated that the operation had been performed on Neddy, that blood-poisoning had followed, and that the end was only a question of a short time, there being no hopes of his recovery. This is indeed sad news, and the sympathy of all is with the brave little sufferer and the grief-stricken parents.

THE PORTLAND VISITORS.

They Spend Three Hours With Us, and Profit Thereby.

The Portland business men, who have been visiting the Inland Empire, arrived here on their way home yesterday afternoon at 3:30, and remained over until 6. The cars stopped at the Washington street crossing, where the visitors stepped off and were met by a committee of the Commercial Club, who escorted them to the club rooms, which they were informed they owned as long as they were in the city. They were delighted with the rooms and astonished that The Dalles was able to support such an institution. It gave them a better idea of the wealth of the place than almost anything could have done. Many tried the alleys and the billiard tables, and then scattered over the town to make new and renew old acquaintances.

The Umatilla House toward evening presented a lively appearance, the offices and billiard rooms being filled with the Portland and Dalles mixture, gathered in groups, and apparently glad to see one another.

The train pulled out at 6 o'clock, starting from the Umatilla House. There were hurried good byes, and urgent requests to come again that showed our visitors if there has been coldness between Eastern Oregon and Portland, it was not because the former was hard to woo.

We are glad indeed that the visit has been made, and we believe it will awaken Portland to the fact that Eastern Oregon is for her a veritable Klondike, a field to be tilled with the certainty of abundant harvests.

Whitman Massacre Survivors.

Mr. George H. Himes, secretary of the Pioneer Association, in yesterday's Oregonian, gives the following as the list of the survivors of the Whitman massacre. He also requests that if there are any survivors now living whose names have been omitted from the list that they be forwarded to him:

COLUMBIA CANDY FACTORY.

Walter Norman Takes Charge of It Tomorrow.

Tomorrow Mr. Walter Norman will open the Columbia Candy Factory, having recently purchased the same. This old-time favorite resort of Dalles people will regain its popularity under his management, assisted by Harry Kelly. It is his intention to make the Columbia second to no other place in the city in its accommodations and its wares. Besides fresh and dainty candies, oysters, coffee, cake and everything pertaining to first class refreshment rooms will be furnished.

Walter is a Dalles boy, and as The Dalles never goes back on its boys, it is safe to say that he will from the first, receive, as he should, a generous share of the patronage, and this being the case, the best of wares and service will hold fast all those who visit him.

Have Found Rich Placers.

Mr. W. T. Young, of the Sand Gulch Mining Co. (the one in which the Joles brothers are interested) arrived in the city Sunday, coming for the purpose of purchasing hydraulic pipe with which to work their mine. He brought a bottle of gold taken from the claim that contained $107, which was taken from the claim in a rocker. The gold is coarse and ragged, and has probably accumulated from the decomposition of small stringers of very rich ore. The ground prospects well wherever a hole has been sunk on it, and will no doubt yield a handsome fortune to the lucky owners.

The company has a ditch six and a half miles long that will carry 650 inches, miners' measurement, of water, and with fine pressure and plenty of dump, next spring's results will make people think the Klondike no great shakes after all.

PRAHL ACQUITTED.

The Jury Decides the Case in Just Four Minutes.

Saturday's Daily.

Today at noon the trial of Jake Prahl, indicted for manslaughter in the killing of Dan Maloney, terminated in a verdict of acquittal, the jury being out only five minutes. The verdict meets with general approval, even by those who knew and appreciated the better side of Dan Maloney's character. As we said at the time, about the worst fault Maloney had was the disposition to take the law into his own hands, and he did not stop to argue any side of a case except his own. He was brave, fearless and not particularly vindictive, but once imagining himself right, that settled it. There was nothing Maloney would not do for a friend, and he was just as generous in paying his debts to his enemies.

The writer of this article had, perhaps, a better acquaintance and a more thorough understanding of Maloney's character than anyone. There were so many things that, under more favorable circumstances, would have made him a leader, that we regretted his taking off as in some respects a loss to the community. And yet we recognized the justice of the verdict rendered today. In a pioneer settlement, with outside dangers to contend with, such as the earlier settlers found in their conflicts with the Indians, Maloney would have been a Daniel Boone or a Davy Crockett, for he was without fear. And yet this very trait of his character that under different circumstances would have made him a hero, caused his death, and that, too, in a way that causes every good citizen to indorse the verdict of the jury in acquitting the man who killed him.

CRUSHED IN A WRECK.

Woman in Charge of Outfitting Train Fatally Injured.

One of those unaccountable accidents likely to befall the best regulated railroad family in the country, occurred on the O. R. & N. line, near Boonville, late Saturday afternoon, wrecking three cars of a boarding outfit train, and in the "mixup" injuring Miss Kate McCall, who was in charge of the boarding outfit so that she had to be taken to Portland and taken to St. Vincent's hospital for treatment. Her injuries are sufficiently serious to make her case a precarious one for several days, until the reaction sets in.

The train was an east-bound extra freight, which had several boarding outfit cars, made up of dining, kitchen and bunk cars, for the laborers. When about 1 1/2 miles east of Bonneville one of the outfit cars jumped the track, the cause being attributed to the dropping of a bolt or brake beam. Owing to the proximity of a bridge the train was going slow, so that the derailing of one car carried only the two following with it.

There was considerable excitement among the laborers, but as they all remained inside none were hurt. Miss McCall however made a break for the platform, presumably with the intention to jump off, at the first sound of the wreck, and reached it just as her own car jumped the track, where she was caught and crushed into an insensible mass.

The men turned out and made heroic efforts to extricate her remains, but it was found impossible to remove the heavy timbers. In the midst of the work Miss McCall revived, and the fact increased the zeal of rescuers. After some 15 minutes, which must have seemed an age to the suffering woman, she was taken out and tenderly cared for. A special car and engine was at once put into service and she was taken to Portland.

Miss McCall, who is about 35 years old, is an old employe of the company, having had charge of the outfitting trains for years.

Obituary Notice.

Died, at her home in Tygh Valley, Mrs. Mollie Powne, wife of our esteemed and beloved doctor, N. G. Powne.

Deceased was born Nov. 1, 1871. At the age of 3 years she was adopted into the family of Mrs. Horton, who was indeed to her all that a mother could be. At the early age of 15 she gave her heart to God, was adopted into His family and placed her name upon the roll of the Baptist church (the church militant) and lived a consistent Christian life until God called her to join the church triumphant. She lived and died in the Christian hope, and we believe she has gone to enjoy the Christian reward. She leaves a husband, to whom she was united in marriage December 4, 1894, and a mother, who deeply mourns their loss; but "they mourn not as those that have no hope." We would commend them to God, the father of all, who can give them grace and strength in their hour of bereavement. She leaves a large circle of friends, who will miss her loving councils and kind deeds among them. It may be said of her, as it has been said of others, to know her was to admire and love her.

The services were conducted by the writer to a large and sympathetic audience. Text, Revelations xiv:13.

In behalf of the husband and mother we wish to thank the many friends who so kindly assisted them during her illness and in the burial of the dead.

REV. W. E. KASMAN.
