MUCH TALK INDUCES LONG LIFE

Some Speculations from the Statistics of French Centenarians.

In France a census of centenarians has just been taken, and the tabulation shows two hundred and thirteen persons in that country who are over one hundred years of age. Of this number, says the New York World, only sixty-six are men, or less than one-third. An amusing comment on this has been going the rounds in Paris to the effect that the reason for this surprising comparative longevity of women is their proneness to talk and gossip at every conceivable opportunity. Constant chattering, it is said, leads to the active circulation of the blood, and thus renews the tissues of the body daily and renders the frame particularly strong. In all seriousness, however, have several French physicians taken up this matter, and they have come to the conclusion that the reason so many more women have attained a greater length of life than men is because they have passed through less turmoil and trouble, and have had a more calm and less impeded existence. One case in point is that of an old lady who died recently in the Haute Garonne, having lived one hundred and fifty years. She is supposed to have been the oldest woman of modern times, and all her life was spent peacefully in a hamlet in this district. The closing decade of her life she was fed on goat's milk and cheese. In the last few years of her existence her body became attenuated to an extraordinary degree and her skin came to resemble parchment. The French centenarians are, as a rule, of the lowest class of society and extremely poor.

MARRY THEIR JUNIORS.

A Number of Reasons Why Some Women Do So.

A late conversation between a number of women chanced to fall upon the common occurrence of women marrying their juniors, says the New York Times. It was remarked that these marriages were almost invariably happy ones. One of the group ventured the opinion that the reason for this lay in the wisdom gained with years by the wife, and in the knowledge thus attained as to how to manage her husband. Another thought that a man always wanted his wife to "mother" him, and was best satisfied when she did, while she was naturally satisfied by his satisfaction. A third was sure that to take care of others was a woman's true vocation, and the secret desire of her heart, and that this calling was most entirely entered upon when the selfishness of extreme youth was past, and when the husband was younger than herself. Whatever the cause, the fact remains that of all these matches, which do seem to be made in heaven, almost all make a little heaven here below.

One of the talkers contributed her quota to the stories of remarkable differences in years between man and wife. A one-time bishop of Maryland, she said, married a woman who had been one of his mother's bridesmaids, and who had made his own christening rope. He was so devotedly attached to her that when she died from extreme old age he mourned her memory, with no thought of filling her place, all the rest of his life.
