Battleship Oregon Safe

Department officially announced the landing of the fleet in Pittsburgh.

The Oregon will be left in the charge of Rear Admiral C. S. D. Wood, Jr., and will form part of the naval force protecting the east coast.

The Oregon has been in commission since 1894, and is one of the oldest ships in the Navy. She was built at the Maine Navy Yard, and is armed with 12 inch guns.

The Oregon will remain in Pittsburgh until further notice, and it is expected that she will be sent to the Pacific coast at an early date.
