PAN-AMERICANISM TO DATE.

Step by step the pan-American idea of James G. Blaine is developing into an accomplished fact, says the inter-ocean. The details of this plan may or may not be worked out. They do not matter. The essential unity of American interests is becoming a conviction common to all America. In the entire range of South American countries, all, with few exceptions, have given unmistakable signs of friendliness in recent years. The two exceptions are Chili and Argentine Republic. The latest evidence of this friendliness comes from Rio Janeiro. A dispatch from that capital announces that the Brazilian Radicals are preparing to declare themselves in the chamber of deputies as in favor of the United States and opposed to Spain in the present conflict. The government of Brazil gave the most practical evidence of good will by selling to our government one of the best battleships of its navy, and that, too, when the war was so near that the sale verged upon an infringement of neutrality. Our relations with Brazil were always friendly, and when the republic was struggling for existence the United States rendered it signal service by a practical application of the Monroe Doctrine. European warships were sent there to afford aid and comfort to the monarchial rebels under Mello and Da Gama. Their malign influence was promptly and effectively checkmated by a formidable counter naval demonstration on the part of the United States. The great republic of Brazil has hardly, if any, less occasion to be grateful to our own government than has Venezuela.

The greater influence of the United States in the affairs of American nations the better it will be for all America. That the Argentine Republic is unfriendly is due to the preponderance of foreign influence. In an evil hour that country ead a spasm of speculation and wild flatism. When the inevitable collapse came the European capitalists had a blanket mortgage on the country. The present attitude of Argentine toward the United States is due to this condition of bankruptcy and financial dependence. As for Chili, there was a time when it had a better navy than the United States, and it still cherishes an absurd ambition to dominate the rest of South America. Moreover, the Chilean government still remembers the day when it was brought to terms with Benjamin Harrison's ultimatum.

The general and cordial good will of nearly all the other countries of this continent is a potent factor in enabling the United States to take and maintain its right place among the great powers of the world. The time seems near at hand when James G. Blaine's ideal of pan-American alliance will become an international reality.

TREASONABLE JOURNALS.

In the house on Wednesday Representative Belknap declared that a certain New York paper had "spread broadcast to the world the location of every mine in New York harbor."

If that is true, the publisher and editor of that paper ought to be arrested and tried for treason, says the Spokesman-Review. The constitution of the United States defies treason as "levying war against the United States, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort."

The aid which might be given by an American citizen who shouldered a rifle for Spain would be infinitesimal in comparison with the aid it would derive from learning the location of the mines in our harbors.

In times like these it is preposterous for any newspaper wishing to print information damaging to this government to seek shelter behind the provision of the constitution which declares that "congress shall make no law abridging the freedom of speech or of the press." As well might be claimed by some traitorous wretch holding communication with Spanish agents that interference by our government was an abridgment of his constitutional right of "free speech."

No self-respecting or patriotic journal will want to disseminate news which would aid and comfort the enemies of this country. Journalistic "enterprise" which goes to that length ought to be brought up with a sharp warning; and if the offense be repeated, the proprietor and his editor ought to be clapped in prison, and made to answer to the stern charge of treason.

HERE'S TO THE OREGON.

Another great achievement must be credited to the American navy. Admiral Dewey proved the fighting capacity of the modern battleships.

Captain Clark of the Oregon has shown they are good sailors. When the Oregon left San Francisco for the long journey around Cape Horn it was said no battleship should be put to so severe a test. It was argued that our great "floating batteries" were built for fighting, not for long voyages, and that to send the Oregon on a hurried trip of 14,000 miles was more than hazardous.

The battleship, the pride of our Pacific coast, started for the Atlantic squadron to make good the loss of the Maine. While she has been sailing down one side of the continent and up the other, the war has made rapid progress. Other warships, purchased abroad, have joined the Atlantic squadron in advance of her, but no one has been followed with such anxiety as the Oregon. Foes watched for her at strategic points, but she escaped them all.

The voyage of the Oregon is the most remarkable ever made by a battleship. The naval experts in Europe have watched the course of the Oregon with as much interest as they have watched the maneuvers of Admiral Sampson's fleet. If this highest type of the modern battleship could stand the strain of high speed for 14,000 miles and join the Atlantic squadron ready for battle an important point in naval architecture would be settled in favor of the new school.

The Oregon has been ready for battle every day for two weeks. She has been steaming toward her goal over a path beset by Spanish war vessels. She has been the objective point of two or more Spanish expeditions, intended to delay or capture her. But she has arrived in the Caribbean sea in time to join in the naval battle for which she was ordered from the Pacific to the Atlantic. She is a sailer and a fighter. May her shadow never grow less until she has shown the Spaniards the stuff of which she and her fighting men are made.

The present war has demonstrated at least that there is no division of popular sentiment with regard to the question of increasing our naval strength. Even political lines are lost sight of when the question of building up a great navy is discussed in congress now. That is one tremendous gain in our favor, and it must be counted, no matter what other results are attained in the war with Spain.

The newspaper correspondents captured by the Spaniards in Cuba are to be exchanged for the Spanish officers captured by the United States. Governor-General Blanco has notified the government that he is not only willing but anxious to get rid of them, and that he will take any kind of Spanish officers in return for them.

Weyler's brother, now a United States prisoner of war, threatens to reconcentrado himself to death, which, in view of all circumstances, is the proper thing for him to do. There is a universal feeling of regret in this country, however, that it isn't Weyler's brother's brother who is going to do it.

It is said that Admiral Dewey when a boy was the terror of the nervous people in his native village because of his mischievous pranks, but the man who tells this specified that his full name should appear in connection with the story as an evidence of good faith.

It used to be Grant's idea that all personal misunderstandings would keep till the war was over; but Grant was an old-fashioned soldier who entertained the silly notion that what the country wanted him to do was to make things hot for the enemy.

The Spaniards are blamed for regarding this country with unfeigned derision; but what would you think of a country whose flag was floated by a gunboat called Gussie, if you knew scarcely anything about its redeeming features.

For the benefit of those who do not understand Spanish it might be said that Boca Grande—one of the main channels in Manila harbor—means big mouth. Spain is celebrated for its boca grandes.

One way to get even with Spain would be to charge up against her the expense involved in chasing her feet around the globe. We should not forget the coal bills when the day of settlement arrives.

The climate of the Philippines is remarkably salubrious at this season of the year. The rainy season has not as yet set in, but days and nights are quite Dewey at present.

Let us then be up and Deweying, with a heart for any fate; still achieving, still purseweyving, learn to get there, not to wait.

If the Spaniards were so anxious to avoid a sea fight why didn't they keep their fleet at home?

A. M. Kelsay For County Clerk.

In speaking of the coming election and the candidates who are in the field the Antelope Herald says of A. M. Kelsay, the nominee for county clerk.

"Our readers are all acquainted with the candidate for clerk, A. M. Kelsay, and he needs no very great amount of recommendation. He is recognized as having made the most accomodating and efficient officer that ever graced the office of county clerk in Wasco county. He has already had the office two terms and has given such excellent service that the people were so well satisfied that they want to retain him.

In deciding how your ballot shall be on the two men running for this important office, consider well the advisibility of making a change when you know to a certainty that Mr. Kelsay will prove efficient, while the other man, Mr. Anderson, is an uncertainty and you may be sorry for the change should you make one.

"The worst and only formidable objection to Mr. Kelsay is that it is his third term, yet Mr. Gibbons a Democrat, held the office for six years in succession, and resigned during his last term.

"We have stated before in our columns, that no better recommendation than this could be had. Consider well before you vote and cast your ballot for A. M. Kelsay and make no mistake."

C. L. Gilbert for School Superintendent

Professor C. L. Gilbert, Republican candidate for county school superintendent, is well known throughout the county, having occupied that position for the past two years.

His devotion to educational matters, together with the marked interest he has manifested during his term to improve the schools of Wasco county, will insure him a very large vote.

Mr. Gilbert has the reputation, where ever known, of being "the right man in the right place," having performed his duties as superintendent justly and impartially to all.

Mr. Gilbert has filled the position of principal of the public schools at Hood River for four years, having taken charge of these schools at a time when they were perhaps not what they might have been, and, during his administration, brought them up to a standard second to none in the county.

His efficient work for the last two years throughout the county is manifest, and we can predict that if he is superintendent for the next two years, Wasco county will be able to say proudly that her schools are second to none in the state.

All who feel an interest, and every good citizen should, in the future welfare and education of the young, give him their hearty support in the coming election.

He has always been an earnest, consistent Republican, but for all this he has never allowed his political views to influence him in the least in the discharge of his duties as superintendent. Vote for him and you will never regret it.

A School Girl's Nerves.

From the "New Era," Greensburg, Ind.

Mothers who have young daughters of school age should watch their health more carefully than their studies. The proper development of their body is of the first importance. After the confinement of the school room, plenty of out-of-door exercise should be taken. It is better that their children never learn their a, b, c's, than that by learning them they lose their health.

But all this is self-evident. Everyone admits it—everyone knows it, but everyone does not know how to build them up when once they are broken down. The following method of one mother, if rightly applied, may save your daughter.

The young lady was Miss Lucy Barnes, the fifteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Barnes, who lives near Burney, Ind. She is a bright young lady, is fond of books, although her progress in this line has been considerably retarded by the considerable amount of sickness she has experienced. She has missed two years of school on account of her bad health, but now she will be able to pursue her studies, since her health has been restored.

Her father was talking of her case to a newspaper man one day recently. "My daughter has had a very serious time of it," said Mr. Barnes, "but now we are all happy to know that she is getting along all right and is stronger than ever."

Asked to relate the story of his daughter, Mr. Barnes continued: "About three years ago, when she was twelve years old, she began to grow weak and nervous. It was, of course, a delicate age for her. She gradually grew weaker and her nerves were at such a tension that the least little noise would irritate her very much, and she was very miserable. There was a continual twitching in the arms and lower limbs, and we were afraid that she was going to develop St. Vitus' dance."

"She kept getting worse and finally we had to take her from her school and her studies. She was strong and healthy before, weighing eighty-five pounds, and in three months she had dwindled to sixty-three pounds. She was thin and pale, and was almost lifeless. We did everything we could for her, and tried all the doctors who we thought could do her any good, but without result.

"There was an old family friend near Milford who had a daughter afflicted the same way, and she was cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They came here one day to spend Sunday, and they told us about their daughter's case. It was very much like Lucy's, and they advised us to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for her. We had no faith in them, but were finally persuaded to try the pills. We have never been sorry for it. They helped her at once, and by the time she had taken eight boxes of the medicine she was entirely cured. She took the last dose in April, and has not been bothered since. She is now stronger than ever, weighs ten pounds more than ever before, and her cheeks are full of color. She can now gratify her ambition to study and become an educated woman."

"Those who are in a position to know, state that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is not a patent medicine but a prescription used for many years by an eminent practitioner who produced the most wonderful results with them, curing all forms of weakness arising from a watery condition of the blood or shattered nerves, two fruitful causes of almost every ill to which flesh is heir. The pills are also a specific for the troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, all forms of weakness, chronic constipation, bearing down pains, etc., and in the case of men will give speedy relief and effect a permanent cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature. They are entirely harmless and can be given to weak and sickly children with the greatest good and without the slightest danger. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.
