VOL. VIII.
THE DALLES, WASCO COUNTY, OREGON, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1898.
NUMBER 43.

BLAMES THE NEWSPAPER.

Be Says the Soldiers at Camp Wiley Are Perfectly Contented and Well Treated.

Cape Weaver, Montreat, N.C., Sept. 5.—Major-General Joseph Wheeler gave the following information to the New York Times from here:

"The newspapers of the United States Forces at Camp Wiley, in the southeast corner of North Carolina, are supplied by the local papers and are not in circulation in the fort. The government officers in the fort have discouraged the circulation of newspapers among the soldiers and it has been done with the result that the soldiers are not in possession of newspapers. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.

"The soldiers have been furnished with newspapers on request and the government officers have been able to keep them from being circulated among the soldiers by not allowing them to be carried out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished the soldiers in the form of a library and are issued to them in a limited number. The soldiers have been given the opportunity to read the newspapers, but they have not been allowed to take them out of the fort. The newspapers have been furnished them as a convenience to the government officers in the fort and not for the purpose ofcirculating them among the soldiers.