"MOTTO" HANGINGS.

One of the Latest Fancies Among Needle Workers in a Pretty Ornament.

The "motto" hanging curtain or porprocures a number of lengths of twoinch ribbon in her favorite colors, or ribbons she induces her friends to inand any other fragments of similar nature liked.

The lettering is done in sepia, oil colors, colored or even black ink, according to taste. Sepia looks cspecialcertain shades of green; black ink is striking upon scarlet or blue; purple writing fluid is lovely upon lavender or other pansy tones. If the maker of the portiere is doubtful concerning the ability of her friends to do the lettering artistically she merely asks them to write upon slips of white paper, and herself copies the legends thus obtained upon the ribbons. In rare cases the names are embroidered instead of written.

When ready for making up the ribbons-varying from six to ten feet in length-are attached to and sus-pended from a wider ribbon as long as the portiere is to be wide, and upon which is emblazoned the name, motto and other particulars concerning the fair owner. Fringed, scalloped or pointed ends of similar or the same ribbon, a line of painting or embroidezy, may serve to conceal the method of joining. Once attached the loose ends of ribbon are arranged according to the location of the motto. If this is near the top or bottom of the ribbon the portiere is connected midway; if passing along most of the length the waving ribbons are allowed to hang free. "Rainbow" portieres of this order are much liked.

A glorious bit of color and a delightful souvenir hanging is the result, however they are fastened. "Purple and gold and the glory therefor" are as nothing compared to the color scheme and beauty of a really well made and artistically arranged "motto por-tiere."-Chicago Times-Herald

A Wise Mother.

"I fear George is untrue to me!" she moaned as her tortured head fell upon her mother's waiting bosom. "In his dreams last night he said: 'I have two little queens!' Oh, if I just knew who the other one is I'd scratch her eyes out!" But her dear mother had been married longer and was wiser than she, and quickly sent the sunshine of a smile scintillating through her tears with the explanation that some bold, bad man must have lured her darling George into a little game of draw, and given it to him in the wishbone in such Post.

WHISKY SAVED HIS LIFE.

Mississippi Steamboat Man Preserved His Anntomy Intact.

Charles Gross is a white-headed negro porter on the steamboat St. Paul, says the St. Louis Republic.

Charlie has some very pronounced opinions, which amount to convictions, One of these is that, while whisky costs some men their lives, it saved his.

Seven years ago Charlie was porter on the Mascot, a packet Boat running between St. Louis and Cape Girardeau. He had been imbibing a prodigious amount of fire water when a friend of his came into the salcon on the levee where he was enjoying himself and said: "You mus' hur' up, Charlie. Yoh boat's ringin' her bell."

"What 'f she is?" said Charlie. "Fll "the can."
