The New Hunting Rifles a Menace to Human Life.

They Throw a Ballet So Far There Is No Telling What Damage They May Do-Narrow Escapes.

When one comes to discuse rifles, range and the average distance at which game is shot one is likely to strike contradictory opinions. A prominent hunter, in speaking recently of the great offeetiveness of the American rifle, said that in his experience elk, moore, hears, and white-tailed deer were most generally killed within a range of 175 yards and that this was so because they were apt to be discovered within this distance, not because of any lack of carrying power in the riffe. When this me statement is contrasted with the prospectus of the latest rifle, which has a first sight of 250 yards, a flat trajectory and a maximum range of 2,200 yards, what is the average hunter to think?

Of one taing there is no room for doubt, and that is that this year many people are preparing to go to the woods deer shooting, and will take with them the new rifle. Itswanderful range and penetration are due to the new smokeless powder employed in conjunction with a bullet sheathed in copper so as to present a harder surface to the rifling than lead. This projectile is forced through a barrel from 20 to 24 loches long, the rifling of which has about one turn to every eight inches. The great objection raised by experienced hunters to such an arm as this is that with the bullet is likely to bring up once it has left the gun. A few years ago a hunter fired at a deer at a distance of 183 yards as measured after death. The animal was standing at the foot of a slight bluff of loamy sand in which not a stone or rock was to be seen. The rifle having gone clear through the heart and missing the ribs on both sides. shooters, and an angry man was heard asking where in thunder they were shooting, as the bullet had just skimmed over his head. A close examination showed graze and leaf holes above the heads of the other party of hunters, and it would seem that the bullet had teeth. traversed two sides of a triangle, from the rifle to the quarry, and back from with an ordinary rifle sighted to 100, 150, 300 and 500 yards, what would be the possible result with the coppersheathed bullet, low trajectory and 2,200-yard range in a wooded district?

In still another case a well-known hunting writer from the west now residing in New York chanced upon a moose feeding about 200 yards away. and, with the idea of taking the second shot himself, told his companion, an amateur, to try the first shot. The bullet was seen to strike the ground nearly four feet in front of and about six feet short of the moose. When an examination was made it was found that there pair of trousers. Following the trail, the moose was eventually bagged, and it was found that the bullet had entered at the lower side of the stomach and was lodged in the fat of the hump, showing clearly that the animal had been hit by the ricochetting missile. An examination of the spot where the turf flew showed a flat piece of rock an inch or so under the surface which the bullet had hit and glanced from. Many similar stories might be related of the vagaries. of glancing bullets, and the possible dangers are making a number of hunters very chary of going out with these new rifles, which, whatever advantages they may have in other places, are not believed to be suitable for deer shoot-English sportsmen are also entertaingame shot recently advocated a restriction in the matter of the rifling.

Both English and American hunters body without shattering opposing bones or tearing a large hole in the loss of blood brings it down. The experience of most hunters is in favor of hoofs making a continuous clattering grains and propelled by from 90 to 160 the feet that makes the reindeer so suregrains of good black powder. THEY ARE DANGEROUS GUNS. An Englishman's Impression of Greater New York.

> Americans Come In for a Generous Share of Praise for Their Correct Conduct-Same Curious Things.

Had the initial stage of existence been sheep and calves. He writes, says the ordered under different circumstances, Chicago Chronicle: and I had been given the choice of a

Indeed, the nicetics of life in New York have been somewhat of a puzzle Generally we would move three or four to me. I have not been permitted to miles every 24 hours. smoke a cigarette while walking along Fifth avenue with a lady, but I have been allowed to take her to the theater without donning evening dress-a thing no lady would tolerate in London. Spanish cities are famous for their noises, but New York I found to be noisier than any three of them. My perves were at a tension during the whole of my visit. It is not an unceasing, distant rumble that soon becomes no discomfort, as in London, but a succession of jarring, jerky noises, distracting to the senses. Why you tolerate it I cannot understand. What with cable cars, the "L" railroad, the long range one never knows where the cabs and earts rattling over roadways with no pretense at paving, and the thousand and one street crics, New York is a perfect inferno of clamor,

Indoors I find another curious thingeurious, you must remember, to the Englishman. You heat your houses to suffocation and then drink gallons of was fired and the deer felt, the bullet feed water to keep cool-to the ruln of your digestion, temper and nerves, until you have become the most dyspeptie Immediately after a hall was heard people under the sun and the special from a point about 200 yards back of the prey of the quack-medicine venders. You claim to be a sensible people, and yet your candy stores are filled every day by crowds of struggling women who eat indigestible pastry to such an extent that the graveyards of America contain more tons of gold than of

The New York man does not hustle as much as you would have others bethe quarry to the other base corner of lieve. In fact, you don't work, man for the triangle. If such a thing is possible man, so hard as the Englishman. But you think quicker and larger, and you think more than you work. You have a great idea, tire of it halfway through because another greater idea has come to you, and leave your subordinates to work out the minor details of the first scheme, with the result that it is never wholly finished. The average Englishman will see the thing through from beginning to end, and give his whole attention to the smallest detail. Yours is a city of diversified thought and aspirations, The one thing in which you seem to have a common mind is that you should wear a crease down the front of an old

The Foot of the Reindeer.

Everything in any way connected with Alaska and the Klondike is of speing in the eastern states. Apparently cial interest at present, and among other items the foot of the reindeer deing similar fears, for a prominent big serves particular mention. The forefoot of the horse to a great extent determines its value, as upon this portion of its anatomy its speed and endurance appear to hold the idea that the wound depend. The foot of the reindeer is inflicted by the metal-sheathed bullet most peculiar in construction. It is fired from the exceedingly long-range cloven through the middle and each half rifle is not of the type best calculated curves upward in front. They are to stop the game, but that the bullet slightly clongated and capable of a will rather pass completely through the considerable amount of expansion. CATCHING CONDORS. A Price Upon the Perocious Birds in Chill. Chill offers a bounty for condor heads, and an American in that country has made from $700 to $500 a month killing this bird of prey. One month he got a warrant for $1,080. Condors steal

When the birds had eaten heartily we sprang to our horses, which stood near, bridled and saddled, ready for the chase. When s conder has garged itself with food it cannot rise without running to give itself momentum. An expert lassoer sould send his rope over a condor's head and so manage it that it was slipped down until it touched the shoulders of the wings before it would be tightened on the bird. Then the rider would turn the horse about and lead the chase himself, foreing the unwilling bird along until tumbled, spent, to the ground, and was dragged to death at the horse's

HE LOVED TO GIVE.

The Touching Lesson of a Very Charltable Life.

The story of George Francis Train sitting in the park surrounded by birds and children is a familiar one. It is not so generally known that North St. Louis was the home of a child and bird lover who died some years ago, says the St. Louis Republic.

It was this gentle old man's custom to leave home every morning directly after breakfast with his pockets full of bread crumbs and rock candy. He would go to one of the parks near his home and sit down on one of the benches there. No matter how cold it was be never forgot those bread crumbs.

At sight of him the birds would fly toward him. There were not so many sparrows then as now, but sometimes hundreds of them would flutter about him. He has often been seen sitting there quietly with the little birds perched on his hat and shoulders. When the birds had collected he would bring out his store of bread crumbs, and then there would be a feast, The rock candy he kept for children and poor people. He was always generous with it. He would say that it was pure and would help the poor wretches to keep warm.

It is told of him that he once paid a debt of $150 for an old friend. The creditor was told to say to inquirers that the bill was paid by "one who loved him." When they asked the old man about it he smiled, but did not acknowledge that he had paid it.. He merely

"Ah! Love has paid many a debt."

Quite Amusing. During the recent book sale in this city, says the Chicago Chronicle, there were many calls for Henryx Slenkiewicz's "Quo Vadis." One girl appeared with a card bearing this: "Qwadiz," by "Stinkwitz." Another reader asked for "Two Waders," by "Sinkers," while a third demanded "That book by the man whose name ends in "Itch."

"While the sale was going on a woman asked a cash girl:

"Can you find 'David Copperfield?' " "I'll see," said the girl, and disappeared. She presently returned and

"No, mum. He don't work here no more.

Another customer at the sale was a woman who drove up in her carriage. She explained to the clerk that she had Durability just moved into her own house.

"The library," she said, "Is one by twenty and the shelves run around the whole shootin' match." She looked at the stock of books and sweeping her hand over a lot of shelving containing about 1,500 volumes, she said: "Send those books up." As the assortment contained broken sets, odd volumes, duplicates and paper covered novels, her "library" will be a motley collec-

WALKED 205,920 MILES.

Remarkable Record of a Postman

A Mr. Roberts, for 23 years a postman of Pilling in the Fylde, North Lancashire, has just retired, reports the London Mail. For 22 years he walked from Pilling to Fleetwood and back twice a day, not to mention many perilous trips in crossing the river Wyre during periods of storm. A calculation of five miles each way, four times a day (in treatment. Hall's Catarrh Careie taken addition to his round at the village), six days in the week, for 22 years, shows that he walked 137,280 miles between Pilling and Fleetwood in the fulfillment of his duty. During this time he must have crossed the river Wyre (a by no means pleasant task in the winter time) 27,457 times. His duties were considerably lightened when 11 years ago the government decided to bring the mails to Pilling by another route. Though a did away with storm of the river it did no remove the Roberts and to walk very much. Including the village delivery, he must in his 33 years of service have walked no less than 205,920 miles.
