AT MANILASkirmish Began Early and Continued
Throughout the Day.FILIPINOS EFFORT
CHECKMATEDMonitor Monadnock Co-operated With the Land Forces by Shelling the Enemy With Good Effect—All the American Troops in Active Service.

MANILA, Feb. 23.—Skirmishing in the suburbs of the city has been carried on all day, the rebels having begun hostilities this morning, with the evident purpose of detaching attention from the city itself. Detecting this purpose, and realizing that it means further attempts on the part of the rebels to burn the city, General Otis issued an order to the effect that no inhabitant of Manila must be found outside his own home after 7 o'clock p. m., until further orders.

Every available American soldier is in active service today, either in Manila itself or on the firing line in the suburbs. Several short but sharp engagements have been fought, and the Monitor Monadnock shelled the enemy, with good effect. The American losses today have been slight.

MANILA, Feb. 23.—5:30 p. m.—With daylight this morning the enemy commenced shelling the city from various parts of the American line, apparently for the purpose of withdrawing attention from affairs in the city. An attempt was made to rush through our extreme left near Calocan, but it was promptly checked by a hot and effective musketry and artillery fire. In the meantime small bodies of rebels, evidently some of those engaged last night in the cowardly work at Tondo, spread out between the city and the outposts. Every available man was sent to drive them away, with the result that there was desultory firing all the morning.

From 8 o'clock until 10 a. m. the monitor Monadnock participated in the engagement, hurling 10-inch shells over the American lines into bodies of the enemy, as indicated by the signal corps.

At 11 o'clock there were sharp engagements at the Chinese cemetery and at San Pedro Macati almost simultaneously, but the artillery fire from both positions drove the enemy back.

From the high towers of the city fire can be seen burning at different points outside. Some of these are probably due to the Monitor Monadnock's shells.

It is currently reported that the natives have threatened to burn Escolata and the walled city tonight. Scores of rebels have been arrested in the Tondo district. A band of 60 rebels having two carloads of arms and accoutrements was captured in a house. Business is temporarily suspended.

Fire has burned in Tondo district all day. The rebels between the city and outposts are being smoked out this afternoon and driven toward the beach.

Sharpshooters at various parts of the line are very annoying, but otherwise there has been no further excitement since the frustration of this morning attack.

Lieutenant Eugene S. French, of company L, First Montana volunteers, and Private Oscar Felton, South Dakota volunteers, were killed, and two other Dakotans were wounded.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Otis has cabled the war department as follows:

Manila, Feb. 23.—2 P. M.—Determined efforts were made to burn the city last night. Buildings were fired in three different sections of the city. The fires were controlled by the troops after severe labor.

Early this morning a large body of insurgents made a demonstration off McArthur's front, near Calocan, and were repulsed.

The loss of property last night presumably will amount to $500,000.

Fang, the Chinese minister, said he had heard of Washington and revered his memory. When a boy in China he had understood that Washington had confined himself to the country which he governed. His successors had done likewise. A change had come, however, within the last year. There were those who accused President McKinley of imperialism. The president's idea of imperialism means civilization and liberty. For himself he would add the qualification of fairness to men of all parties without regard to race or color.

The United States now possessed the Philippines. There was a discussion whether or not this country should keep them. The hesitation was commendable, because it showed a noble spirit. A costly gift bestowed upon an ignoble man would be accepted by him without question. The Philippines were near neighbors of the Chinese empire, and his people would rather have friendly neighbors than unfriendly ones. The trade of this country with China was increasing, and with the establishment of our government in these islands this trade would be greatly increased.

There was one obstacle that stood in the way of thoroughly friendly relations between this country and China, and that was the Chinese exclusion act. This situation was brought about because of the impression of the people of this country had obtained of the people of China from seeing the poorer classes of laborers in San Francisco. He believed the establishment of closer relations between the two countries would tend to do away with this prejudice and the abolishment of this law.

China is constructing a railroad from the north to the south, and has practically thrown open the doors to the trade of all the world. The people of the United States would be welcomed by the merchants of China with open arms.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

FORRESTER ACQUITTED.

Court Room Packed—Jury Returned a Verdict in Less Than An Hour.

Thursday's Daily.

When court convened yesterday afternoon the court house was crowded with spectators to hear the pleas in the Forrester case. Prosecuting Attorney A. A. Jayne made the opening address for the state, and spoke from 2:45 until 4:25. He was followed by H. S. Wilson, for the defense, who spoke from 4:30 until 5:55. Court then adjourned until 7:30 p. m.

It is estimated that when court convened in the evening there were over five hundred people present. Every seat in the house was taken and the aisles were filled with men and women anxious to hear the closing arguments.

The room became so crowded that at 7:30 an order was issued by the court instructing the bailiff not to admit anyone further. After this order was issued fully two hundred applied for admission, but were turned away. Pierce Mays made the final plea for the defense, and spoke for nearly two hours when A. S. Bennett addressed the jury until 11:30, making the final plea for the prosecution.

Some very eloquent and forceful speeches were made, and the large audience was very attentive during the entire afternoon and evening.

The court then instructed the jury, who adjourned to their rooms at 11:55, and within fifty-five minutes brought in a verdict of not guilty. The ballots being taken, the first resulted in a vote of nine for acquittal, two for manslaughter and one for murder in the second degree. On the second ballot the jury stood eleven for acquittal and one for manslaughter. On taking the third ballot all agreed on acquittal.

Forrester was brought into court and when the decision of the jury was announced to him, tears came to his eyes and he seemed overjoyed. He shook hands with the jury and a number who were in the court room, and then left for the hotel to break the news to his wife and friends.

Thus ends one of the most hotly contested cases ever tried here, and one which has perhaps caused more wide spread interest than any previous one.

ONLY GUESSWORK.

No One Here Knows What Battalions Of the Second Oregon Were Ordered to the Front.

Oregon people are very anxious to know just how many Oregon volunteers are engaged in fighting at Manila, and just what companies are yet on patrol and detach duty.

The only reliable information yet had from there along this line stated that two battalions had been ordered to the front. This would leave one battalion still in Manila. Which two were ordered to the front and which one left behind no one here appears to be able to figure out.

According to the rank of the officers the battalions should be formed as follows: First, companies A, H, L and D; Second, B, I, M and F; Third, C, K, E and G.

If this be correct, it is evident that the First battalion was engaged in the fight yesterday, but as that appears to have been a skirmish near the city it is possible that the First battalion is yet on duty in the city, and was called out on this occasion. The fact that one or two companies of what would seem to be the First battalion have been on detached duty, would lend color to the opinion that the First battalion is still in Manila, and that the Second and Third had been ordered to the front. However, this is only guess work and may be all wrong, but it has been so figured out according to the natural order of things.

The fact that a member of company H was killed yesterday proves beyond doubt that the battalion to which this company belongs is liable to be in the fight that may occur around Manila, whether it is one of the two ordered to the front or not. If it is not, and is still on duty in the custom-house and other government offices there, then it would seem that practically all three of the battalions are in the fight when their services are needed.—Telegram.

How to Prevent Pneumonia.

You are perhaps aware that pneumonia always results from a cold or from an attack of La Grippe. During the epidemic of La Grippe a few years ago when so many cases resulted in pneumonia, it was observed that the attack was never followed by that disease when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was used. It counteracts any tendency of a cold or La Grippe to result in that dangerous disease. It is the best remedy in the world for bad colds and La Grippe. Every bottle warranted. A KING'S EXECUTION GARMENT

Sale of the Blood-Stained Vest Worn by Charles I. When He Was Beheaded.

The sum of 200 guineas bid recently for the "sky-colored vest" worn by King Charles I. on the scaffold is not an exorbitant price for a relic of once authentic and ghastly. Nothing is lacking that might make a good Jacobite's flesh creep. The stains of blood have been religiously preserved by a succession of royalist owners, and it has been pointed out that of the 13 buttons only 12 had been fastened. The top button had been removed, so that the illustrious victim might more easily bare his neck to the executioner. "He nothing common did or mean, upon that memorable scene, but with his keener eye, the ax's edge did try." Such was the testimony of a republican poet, and there is no doubt that the said dignity with which "Charles Stuart" comported himself in his last days roused qualms of remorse among some of those contemporaries who had been harshest in their judgment of his public policy. Admiration of the man went far to redeem the faults of the king, and with posterity he became at once the most sympathetic figure in the history of England—not even second to Mary Queen of Scots. And of her nobility will ever believe, let the Dryads bring forward what documentary evidence they please, that she painted her face and wore false hair.

It is pretty certain, if the purchaser of King Charles' silken raiment ever thinks of allowing that precious possession to pass out of his family, that it would fetch far more than he has given for it. Placed in any museum it would always be thronged with sightseers; the combination of royal associations with gruesome memories would be quite irresistible. The most superior person is attracted, though he may deny it, by such horrors as a book bound in human skin, or by instruments, like the Maiden of Nuremberg, which he knows to have been used for torturing real men and women to their death. This relic of bloodshed—as distinguished from mere love of adventurous deeds—has given vogue to whole schools of romancers; it helped to account for the sudden popularity of Mr. Rider Haggard's tales, as it made the fame of Maurice Jokai. The taste is, no doubt, morbid, and ought not to be encouraged. But it is natural, and has to be taken into account. And the psychological interest of it is to show that we are not, in our feelings, so far removed from our barbaric ancestors as we like to think.—London Standard.

RICHES OF THE SOUDAN.

The Question in England Is How Soon the Country Can Be Made to Pay.

How soon can the Soudan be made to meet its own share of expense and relieve the Egyptian exchequer? It must prove, at first, a costly acquisition. A numerous local force must be maintained, and although the Egyptian army estimates may be relieved by a certain reduction of the native troops, the military establishment in the Soudan will still constitute a severe tax, to which the province can contribute little. Even in more flourishing days, before it was wasted and depopulated by the pitiless dervish rule, the Soudan was not particularly productive; its export trade did not exceed £1,000,000, and its chief product was gum arabic. There is some accumulation of this, it is said, awaiting more peaceful times to come down country, and the industry will no doubt revive and develop. Agricultural enterprise will probably extend, especially in the lands longest recovered; the fertile province of Dongola, for example, which, according to all accounts, has made rapid progress under the active steps taken to re-colonize. Nine-tenths of the old population has returned, many from the lower province, and grants of land have been freely given to all. The same good results may be seen higher up the river, at Abu Hamed and Berber, and all trade will be stimulated by the facilities offered by several routes—the new railway back to Wady Halfa, and the now reopened desert road to Suakin.

As for the heart of the Soudan, Khartoum, and beyond, it is not yet in the Egyptian possession, and it is still an unknown quantity, its resources hardly explored. Many think that it is rich in mineral wealth, and the existence of a great gold-bearing field in this southeastern extremity has long been known, the country of the Beni Shengol, on the confines of Abyssinia, and believed to be really the site of the Biblical King Solomon's mines. The fact is also known that this aridiferous territory has already passed into other hands. The man in possession is Menelek, king of Abyssinia.—Fortnightly Review.

Married While Shooting the Rapids. George Hammer, the famous pilot of the White Horse rapids, recently became a benedict, and, as befitted his career of perils and adventure, the marriage ceremony was performed in a boat that was shooting the rapids. When the minister said: "I pronounce you man and wife," he had to raise his voice and almost shout, and even then could scarcely make himself heard in the roar of the wild waters.—San Francisco Chronicle.
