A HERO AT HOME.

The death of Mayor William S. Mason, of Portland, is a reminder that there are heroes in business life as well as on the field of battle.

In 1892 he became president of the Portland National bank. This institution, because of some unfortunate loans, succumbed to the late financial panic.

A NARROW VIEW.

A British naval officer, commenting on the war in the Philippines, is quoted by the London Daily Chronicle as saying:

"The Americans do not appear to understand the game of using one lot of natives against another. If they wish to conquer the islands, they must adopt that plan."

We think this British naval officer will have occasion to readjust his views on that matter. Certainly he will change his opinion if he will study the history of Indian warfare in this country.

For example, the Indian wars of this section. When Wright started his campaign against the hostiles north of Snake river in 1858, one of his first moves, on arriving at Walla Walla, was to win the friendship of the Nez Perces.

A council was held at that post, and a treaty made which withdrew 1700 muskets from the ranks of the hostiles, and provided a strong party of Nez Perces as guides and scouts.

In the Nez Perce war of 1877, treaty conditions were somewhat reversed. We had in that war, as allies, some of the tribes who were with the hostile confederacy of 1858.

In the Shoshone war of 1866-8, Idaho and Eastern Oregon, we had for allies the Klamaths, the Warm Springs, the Columbias and the Boise Shoshones.

In the Modoc war we had the Klamaths and Cayuses as allies, and to greater or less degree we have played that "game" in every border struggle.

It is strange that the naval officer quoted in the London Chronicle does not see that it would be vain to expect extensive alliances with the Filipinos before our armed forces had inspired in the native mind a wholesome fear and respect for their fighting and governing qualities.

Any alliance not based on such respect would be futile and disappointing. Large numbers of the natives have been wavering between the standard of Aguinaldo and the flag of the United States.

civil war and the war with Spain. At Santiago his regiment suffered more severely than any other. He was hit twice, one bullet passing through his lungs.

Here is an example of the model American soldier whose highest ambition is to be at the post of duty and to offer his life freely for the sake of his flag.

HOME PRODUCTION.

It is said of the homeseekers who are daily arriving in nearly every town and section of the agricultural portions of the northwest that a goodly portion will engage in manufacturing.

These sturdy immigrants have learned the necessity of home industry, undoubtedly have grown up where every article capable of production at home was manufactured there.

Large manufacturing plants are most desirable acquisitions to any community, for their payrolls make the merchant comfortable and the workman satisfied.

Of course there will be no color line drawn against the Twenty-fourth United States infantry at Vancouver.

There was no color line drawn at San Juan hill, July 1, 1898, when the Twenty-fourth United States infantry was excelled by no white regiment in valor.

A medium has learned that President McKinley will not be re-elected. Probably this is the same medium who called up the spirit of John Sherman on the evening of his reported death.

A great many people would be glad to see Tom Reed on the floor of the House again, instead of in the Speaker's chair. He used to make things very interesting on the floor.

It is claimed that to some extent the war is responsible for the present epidemic of grip. This is rough on neutral countries like Mexico, where 35,000 cases are reported in a single city.

A man was arrested in Chicago for indecency and his dog was put in the cell with him. Where was the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, that is supposed to exist in every big city, when this occurred?

This being the second anniversary of Cedar Circle, under the new regime of the Women of Woodcraft, the right guards of Cedar Circle laid plans well to surprise the Woodmen on last evening after the business session of the order.

IN MEMORY OF INDIAN ALBERT

Who Was a Familiar Character to Dalles Residents.

Died—On the Simcoe Reservation, last winter, Albert Brown—an aged Klickitat. Many of the residents of our town will remember him.

In that long procession which marks the passing of his race, he was one that to the student of history or psychology would give points of valuable study.

He seemed to have taken them as words from his mother, into his very heart of hearts, and his whole life was changed thereby.

In 1855, Albert was with the troops under General Joseph Lane in the Rogue river war, and shared in the glory of the conqueror—now, general and Indian scout are both gone at the call of the greater conqueror.

He was very happy during his residence in Indian town across Mill creek, the last year of his life. He felt that he was "among his friends," and was thoroughly grateful for kindness shown him.

Good-bye to Albert. He surely was one who as Longfellow said, "groping blindly in the darkness, touched God's right hand in the darkness, and was lifted up and strengthened."

ANOTHER MURDER AT ANTELOPE

F. N. Spicer Shoots and Kills W. D. Jones Yesterday Afternoon.

Dalles residents were again startled this morning, when upon reaching their various places of business they were informed of another dreadful tragedy which had occurred at Antelope.

The information regarding the affair was very meager; and nothing very definite can as yet be given regarding it. Rumor, however, has it that the difficulty arose from an old feud existing between the two men.

The shooting occurred one was standing on one side of the wagon and the other on the opposite side. Spicer at once gave himself up, and as officers started immediately for this place with him, he is expected to arrive tonight.

Spicer at once gave himself up, and as officers started immediately for this place with him, he is expected to arrive tonight. He is quite well known in The Dalles, having married Miss Eva Rogers, a daughter of the late Alex. Rogers.

Mr. Jones is also known to Dalles people, having resided here with his daughter for some time. His remains will be brought here for burial.

The terrible affair is deeply regretted by everyone, and people are beginning to wonder when these awful tragedies will end and peace reign in that neighborhood.
