

MAYS & CROWE CROW

HARDWARE DOUBLES THE DRY GOODS SCORE.

Over Two Thousand Victims Witness Some Brilliant "Professional" Playing Yesterday

Wednesday's Daily.

Hardware vs. Dry Goods was the case before the umpires yesterday afternoon, and the favors were pretty well divided, the scarlet and purple and blue and gold being at a stand-off on the grounds.

zer gave John one in the jaw and broke two teeth.

In spite of the alleged difficulties, the end of the second inning found them with four scores, and so the game started anew, and after taking a dose of cayenne pepper and ginger both nines their work and made a clean white wash with four to nothing in their favor, and at the beginning of the fifth they were again even and matters grew interesting, but alas! for the handsome red boys, for in the next inning their opponents warmed up and made five scores, while French was the only one who scored in their nine.

The most exciting time was during the sixth, when the Dry Goods got ruffled. Huott got excited and stood on his head; the catcher saw how the game was going and seemingly cast his Vogt for the opposition; he says he's all right on "catching," but not behind the bat. The first baseman was so sleek that the flies took French leave of him; the second base endeavored to make some Gude plays, but missed the balls by a foot; Weigel, in the left field, remembered he was mar-their red suits looking as if they thought they were "all wool and a yard wide," and the Hardware as shining in their blue trousers and white sweaters as a newly polished stove. The diamond was surrounded with about 2000 spectators, seemingly regardless of the uncertainty of a ball; while pushing close to see who could come nearest the "diamond" were the fair admirers, who had more than a passing interest in the game.

As the "cock of the dry goods roost" walked onto the field trodden in scarlet and purple, "Billy McKinley," the mascot for the Mays & Crowe push, stepped up as if to do him up in the first ried and didn't care about making a catch; the short stop thought he was trying on shoes instead of stopping a ball, and so played accordingly; the third baseman let the ball Weigel from his grasp; the shoemaker in the right field let themawl pass, and the center fielder although Cram full of enthusiasm, made his measurement wrong and missed 'em every time. And so, speaking in German, the teams came out even on the sixth,—nine to nothing. In the first half of the seventh the Williams team scored two, and on account of the lateness of the hour Mays & Crowe did not play the inning. At the bat the Williams crowd made their hit, striking some dandies; while in the field the Hardware shone, catching most of their thrashers. As to handsomeness of appearance it was a stand-off, except that one was perhaps a little dirtier than the rest. When it was discovered the score stood 24 to 12 in favor of the Mays & Crowe push, a ringing shout went up from the crowd, while the two teams magnanimously joined in a hand shake. While congratulating the winners, many were heard to remark that they had hoped the scores would have been more nearlly even; but it was a game simply for the fun to be got out of it, and A. M. Williams & Co.'s nine got just as much fun out of it as anybody, and are in good spirits in spite of the defeat.

The spectators are indebted to the two firms for a pleasant afternoon, and express the wish that Dry Goods will soon challenge Hardware to another game.

Following is the line-up of the teams and the scores:

Down the Columbia.

Engineer Strack and White, with a full crew of well equipped railway surveyors, started a line of survey down the north side of the Columbia river, beginning at Paul F. Mohr's old warehouse. Last Saturday the same crew of surveyors was seen in the vicinity of Cello flats, on the exact line of Paul F. Mohr's right of way by Kikkita's corner, William Hart, who was in that vicinity on official business. Mr. Hart says he asked no questions, but he ascertained from one of the crew that there was abundant capital behind the present party in the field.

Another theory of many people is that the survey party is in the field to carry out the plans of Paul F. Mohr and Dr. Blalock. Further, that the plans of these two gentlemen have been consolidated, and that a quiet meeting of the two contending forces was recently held in Spokane, and that the meeting brought about the formation of a brand new company, composed of some of Spokane's millionaire mine owners, who are known to be men who have pushed to profitable development great enterprises.—East Oregonian.
