THE LATEST ROUND ROBIN.

It is said that the authorities at Washington are disposed to ignore the "round robin" of the Manila correspondents, but it cannot be doubted that they were considerably shaken up by it.

The traveling correspondent, especially if he is attached to a journal of the yellow or sensational variety, has gotten the notion into his head that he is about the most important individual on the face of the earth.

If he is thwarted in his efforts to gather news he naturally feels hurt. A good deal of criticism of officers during the late war grew out of the spite of correspondents to whom those officers did not accord the privilege the correspondents thought they were entitled to.

PROSPERITY IN THE WEST.

One of the facts which has a discouraging effect on the leaders of the Democratic party is the great increase in industrial activity in the West, says the Globe-Democrat.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Vanderlip, who has just returned from a tour through several states in the Mississippi Valley, is eloquent about the evidences of industrial activity and prosperity which he saw on every hand.

The defection of the West is a serious thing for the democracy. It was on the West that the Democratic bosses looked for a great part of their electoral votes next year.

any chance to win. The Democratic leaders know that they can get very few votes from the West under present conditions. It was the business depression resulting from the Democratic panic of 1893 which created the conditions in the West which gave the Democracy several states in the Mississippi Valley and on the Pacific slope in 1896.

The women of the land have taken up another fad, says the East Oregonian. Everywhere, at home and at the summer resorts, in the mountains and at the seaside, they are going bareheaded.

Secretary Wilson, who is visiting Oregon, is a member of the president's cabinet who is especially well qualified for the position he holds. He is a practical agriculturist, a man of keen observation, and active in advancing the agricultural interests of the whole country.

It is gratifying to note that the use of American flour abroad has reached its high-water mark in the fiscal year just closed with an exportation of 18,000,000 barrels.

the wheat exported in the form of flour was 87.67c, calculating that 4 1/2 bushels of wheat are utilized in the production of a barrel of flour.

AN ENGLISH VICTORY.

Oxford and Cambridge athletes were victorious by a narrow margin over the representatives of Yale and Harvard in the events at Queen's field in a most sportsmanlike contest, but the victory can not be called a sweeping one.

No true sportsman desires to take from the glory of the English athletes. They were most gentlemanly in their treatment of American cousins before the struggle, during the progress of the games and after their conclusion, but they did not defeat All-America by any manner of means.

Mr. James Creelman is a mysterious sort of person. A few weeks ago he was performing alleged wonders as a correspondent at Manila, using carrier pigeons, and anticipating the news of the current day for the American breakfast table.

Ringling Bros.' Circus Comes to Gravel in a Minnesota Town Where Twisters Flourish.

We learn from the Telegram that Ringling Bros.' circus, which exhibited here last month, and which is the best show ever seen in The Dalles, had a tussle with a wind storm at Crookston, Minn., which was most exciting while it lasted, but by miraculous good luck nobody was killed, though there were broken ribs and other bones, cut heads and many minor bruises before the people were rescued from the tangled mass of canvas, poles and ropes.

The magnificent animal tent was lowered, close hauled, at the beginning of the storm and saved a panic and stampede among the beasts. The main circus tent, however, was struck at the first blast of the storm.

As fast as possible those who were able extricated themselves from the mass of struggling humanity, and sought temporary refuge from the angry elements in surrounding houses and barns.

EVERYONE NEEDS A VACATION

The Men as Well as the Women, and They Should Take It. A matron of Pendleton, reading an editorial in the East Oregonian the other day relating to summer vacations and wives who go away with the children, leaving the poor "hubby" sweltering in the hot, hot winds and awfully high temperature of this part of the earth, said vigorously as follows and to the point:

"Now, I want to say something for the women. I believe in vacations. I believe in them for the women, and I believe in them for the men. Time taken from business by the men, and from household cares by the women, is time well spent.

"I will venture the assertion that, if the average business man will follow my advice, he will be astonished at the outcome. Here is my advice:

"Let him say to his chief assistant: 'I am going away for a month, and want you to handle the business while I am gone. Attend to it the best you can, and, upon my return, you may go for a month on full pay, and have your rest.'

"That assistant will work faithfully during the absence of his employer, and, besides the natural and certain desire to be commended upon the employer's return for good management and attention to duty, he will have the extra incentive before him of a vacation with no loss of pay.

"He will, ten to one, do all of his own work, and the employer's too, and things will go on in that establishment almost as smoothly as though the proprietor were there.

"My husband has been tied down for the past fifteen years, in this city, and has scarcely taken one vacation during all that time. What does life mean to such a man? If he is not a slave, then I would like to learn in what slavery consists.

"If husbands would go away for the summer with their wives, and both rest and enjoy themselves at some resort agreeable to both, they would return worth just about two wives and two husbands for the remainder of the year.

Young Girls Fading Away.

Symptoms that seem like consumption; a lack of blood; friends feared one girl would fall dead on the street; restored to health by a sensible woman's suggestion.

Many girls of sixteen years seem to have consumption, although they have it not.

Their anxious parents and friends watch them slowly fade away. A death-like pallor, transparent complexion and listlessness are signs of this condition.

The body lacks blood. Mrs. John Tansey knows the meaning of these symptoms, and the cure. She lives at 130 Baker Street, Detroit, Mich.

Her advice to mothers has been of great value to her neighbors. She tells the story to help others who are at a distance. She said:

"When my daughter was sixteen years old she began to waste away. 'Had I not known there was no taint of consumption in the family I would have believed her lungs were affected.'

"She grew thinner and thinner every day. She lacked only the hacking cough to show all the outward signs of consumption. 'Our doctor called the disease by an odd name, which I learned meant simply weak blood.'

"No treatment seemed to do her any good. 'She was fading away before our eyes. 'I was induced to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and the change they made was almost magical.

"Before she had taken half a box there was a great improvement in her looks, appetite and weight.

questions regarding the muster-out of the Second Oregon volunteers. The article referred to is a jumble of unkind insinuations against the intelligence and patriotism of the men of the regiment, and is unjust and unpatriotic.

The president had a right to say where the muster-out should occur, and he also had the good sense to allow the boys to decide where it should be. No one has yet learned that it is "against army regulations to muster-out at Vancouver."

"Citizen" then assumes that the boys are a lot of simpletons instead of patriots, by asking "why is it the boys couldn't look ahead and see that the $30 would be gone before they could look around, while the reception they would have received would have left a lasting impression upon them?"

The insinuation that the boys should be told to go to San Francisco for their situations is unworthy the thought of anyone and we wonder if there is a person in The Dalles who really believes such a thing.

The Second Oregon isn't composed of the kind of men that sell out. We honor the town of Wasco that celebrates because the boys are back on Pacific coast soil, and we will yet show them that all rejoice over their homecoming.

Linden Garretson Badly Hurt. An unfortunate accident and at the same time unusually lucky escape, occurred to Linden Garretson about 5:45 o'clock Saturday evening.

He had, however, received a bad gash on the right cheek bone, which cut through the cheek, a slight cut on the back of the head and a few slight bruises on his leg.

Mr. Garretson was horrified this morning on answering a call at the door, to find a little girl with flowers, saying she heard Linden was dead. We are glad to inform our readers that such is not the case, although he had a nar-

"She gained strength rapidly. Soon she was in perfect health. 'Since then I have kept Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in the house all ways and have done much good with them.

"There is a young girl friend of my daughter who seemed almost dead when she went out. 'I begged her to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and finally induced her to try them. They helped her wonderfully, probably saved her life and restored her to perfect health. Now she is recommending them to other young women.

"I earnestly advise mothers with growing daughters to keep Dr. Williams' Pink Pills always on hand as a household remedy. Many women's lives are miserable because such a simple remedy as Mrs. Tansey's daughter showed were neglected while they were developing into womanhood. During that period of rapid development the blood needs the highest degree of strength to repair the tissues that are rapidly wasted.

These needed elements are supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. The vegetable ingredients of these pills are like magic in restoring strength to the muscles and roses to the cheeks of growing girls or adults weakened by overwork.

row escape. Indeed the doctor says had the horse which kicked him worse, he would likely have met his death from the blow.

Want to Come in a Body. The latest news concerning the prospect of the volunteers coming to Portland in a body is contained in the following telegram, which was received by Judge Northrup Saturday, and which is self-explanatory:

General Shatter is away, and I cannot arrange in regard to the men retaining their arms after reaching Portland until his return on Monday. General Summers is desirous of bringing the regiment in a body to Portland. I am quite confident that all will go. Date for muster-out is fixed for August 7th. I think that the sentiment to proceed to Portland in a body is strong among the men.

Death of George W. Young. Yesterday on the afternoon train Gen. Moss, of Victoria, B. C., arrived in the city, bringing with him the body of George W. Young, who was killed last Friday on the Equinault & Nanaimo railroad.

Mr. Moss called at the Chronicle's office this morning and gave the reporter the following particulars concerning his death:

For the past eight or nine years George has been a resident of Victoria and roomed at Mr. Moss' home. He was much respected by all, his kind-hearted nature and sociable manner winning him many friends. Particularly was he a friend of the children in his neighborhood, never passing them by without a smile and a friendly word.

He has been employed by the Equinault & Nanaimo road for about 25 years, and at the time of his death was conductor on a branch road run by the Chemann & Victoria Lumber Co., an eighteen-mile run to Chemann. That day he was doing double work, as conductor and brakeman, and at 1 o'clock had stepped between two cars to couple them. No one saw the accident, but it is supposed a brakeman struck him and threw him under the train. He left side was badly mangled and he died almost instantly, breathing but once after the men reached him.

The company deeply deplore the sad accident, as George had been a faithful employee and one who had won their esteem by his trustworthy character. The body was shipped Saturday night, and but for a delay in Tacoma would have reached here Sunday night.

Having spent his boyhood days at much of his life when quite a young man in this city, he has yet many friends here who sincerely regret his untimely death.

The funeral will take place from the residence of his brother, S. L. Young, on Sixth street, this evening at 6 o'clock. All friends of the deceased and of the family are invited to be present.

Appreciated. I desire through THE CHRONICLE columns to express my heartfelt thanks to those kind friends who ministered to my mother, Mrs. John Cates, during her sickness, and after death showed such loving respect during the last sad rites.
