A Missionary Tea.

The ladies of the W. F. M. S. gave their annual Missionary Tea Friday evening at the M. E. church. The Epworth hall was filled completely with a very appreciative audience.

After prayer by Mrs. Hawk, the Misses Willerton sang a duet "I'll Tell Jesus—He Will Know." Miss Bertha's clear, sweet voice was a surprise to her many friends, few having heard her before. Miss Grace sang exceptionally well and her singing is always enjoyed. Next, the High School Quartet gave "Hasten the Joyful Tidings" a solo and chorals, in a very pleasing manner and elicited hearty applause. Miss Beas French recited "A Legend of the Mazian," a very pathetic, touching and true recital of the conversion of a beautiful heathen girl wife to Christianity.

"If I become a Christian what would you do My Lord?" "Kill you," he replies. Unmoved she answered, "I cannot deny my Jesus," and he strikes her to the earth, and as her soul passes on to the higher life, she opens wide her eyes and murmurs "How beautiful! How glorious!" Miss French recited in her usual engaging manner, and the truth was fastened in many hearts that Jesus is able to save.

Prof. Lunders sang with great expression, "Cast Thy Bread Upon the Waters." He refused to reply to an encore, saying he was not prepared. Miss Randall accompanied the singers in a very agreeable manner.

Refreshments were served by the young ladies of the Y. W. F. M. S. in their own inimitable manner, and so concluded a very enjoyable evening.

Notice to School Teachers.

All teachers desiring to enter this course should consult or write me before Dec. 1st. BOERS HAVE ESTCOURT CUT OFF

Relief at Ladysmith Under Present Conditions Will Tax Generalship.

JOUBERT DIRECTING MOVEMENTS

Boers Command Every Exit to the City and Know the British Strength—Heavy Fight at Ladysmith.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The present week, according to the dispatches from the front, ought to see a change in the defensive tactics hitherto maintained by the British in South Africa. It is said the task allotted to General Cleary, that of relieving Ladysmith, will test his generalship to the utmost. The Boers are developing a great deal of strength in the neighborhood of Estcourt, and General Joubert is reported to be moving southward himself in order to direct the movement to repel the British advance, after, it would seem, attempting to isolate Estcourt.

This latter movement is already in progress. The Boers practically surround the town. Another small force was discovered at Willow Grange, south of Estcourt yesterday (Sunday) evening. Major Thorneycroft, with a detachment of infantry, made a sortie and engaged the Boers, but with no material result.

The so-called Boer attempts to rush Estcourt on Saturday were apparently merely a reconnaissance resulting in the Boers obtaining the information which they desired, namely, that Estcourt is fairly strongly held and has naval guns in position. The Boers then withdrew out of danger, but remained at points commanding exits from the town.

The motion for a new trial in the case of the State vs. Joseph Gauteman was denied by the court yesterday afternoon, and this morning at 9 o'clock he was sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary. As explained in Saturday's issue, the case was one in which the defendant was indicted for uttering a forged check, having presented a forged check for $165 on the First National Bank in Chas. Frank's saloon last May. He fled to Sumpter and was arrested there. He will be taken to Salem tomorrow. Gauteman is a married man and has five children, and their home is about a mile out of Portland. So he not only suffers for his crime, but the sin of the father will be visited on the innocent children.

"Uniquely and fortunately located, Dalles City has been for nearly half a century a prominent point in Oregon, and, notwithstanding some hard knocks it is today one of the richest and prettiest towns in the Pacific Northwest. Probably no other town in this region has done so large a business in proportion to population, and in none has a greater proportion of business men prospered. The construction of the O. E. & N. railway was a hard blow to The Dalles, as it is popularly called; the removal of the car shops to Albina was another, and on several occasions fire has destroyed a considerable portion of the business district; but through all The Dalles has held its own, and is now one of the most prosperous towns in the state. This has been largely due to its location at the head of navigation of the river, after the completion of the railroad, and at a point to which a very large region of country is geographically tributary. For a hundred miles or more southward everybody had to come to The Dalles to come 'to town,' and do yet; and that region now contains a great number of farmers as well as of stockmen.

The building of the Columbia Southern railroad, which someday will traverse the breadth of Oregon, is on the surface somewhat inimical to the business interests of The Dalles, as it joins the O. E. & N. a considerable distance above that city; and the business men of The Dalles are planning ways and means to retain the trade of the region through which the railroad passes. This they may not be able to do to quite so great an extent as they have done heretofore, but as the region around The Dalles develops and fills up, the loss on account of the building of the Columbia Southern will be more than made up.

There will scarcely be any town away from the river to rival The Dalles, and while it is important for its business men to be alive and active, yet they have no great occasion to worry about the future. The Dalles will be a good, prosperous, growing town as long as the Columbia flows past it over its sandy bed, and so long as the grass grows green each spring on the thousand hills and the grain upon the extended prairies, by which it is surrounded.

After all that has been said and the trouble which has arisen from the sale of liquor to Indians, no effort seems to be put forth to stop it, and nearly every day arrests are made of drunken and quarrelsome Indians. Last night two old offenders, Jim Waizer and his son, John, made their appearance at Skibbe's bar, in an intoxicated condition and demanded liquor. The bartender refused and a row ensued, when the young fellow drew a wicked looking knife. The bartender grabbed a piece of garden hose lying near and struck the fellow in the face, when some one near gave needed assistance. Nightwatchman Phirman soon made his appearance and the disturbers were arrested and spent the night in the city jail. Thus a tragedy was narrowly averted; but unless some means is soon employed to stop this traffic with the Indians, the time will come when someone will suffer the consequences. These fellows acknowledged that they got their whiskey in a saloon here, which should be enough to furnish a clue which would lead to the arrest of the parties guilty of selling it.

YOUNGSTERS ARE TOUGH

Ran Away From Reform School and Went to Thieving.

SALEM, Nov. 19.—Harry Brown and Walter Bradley, two boys about 16 years old, who escaped from the reform school Wednesday, were recaptured by Sheriff Durbin and Deputy Sheriff Colbath, about three miles south of Salem, this morning. They had established a camp in some heavy timber and were carrying on thieving operations in the neighborhood, entering houses at night and sleeping during the day. They had stolen a horse and a large number of articles of small value, which were found at their camp, showing that they had taken full advantage of their brief liberty.

Brown was sent to the reform school from Jacksonvill, Bradley was formerly a charge of the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society, in Portland. Both boys are tough characters.

Who Shall Register, and How.

A settler writing to the Oregonian concerning the registering question receives the following answer:
"The law requires that every voter in the state shall register. If a voter lives at a great distance from the county seat he can register with a justice of the peace or a notary public. A book containing the registration of all the voters in the county will be prepared, and from this smaller books will be made, giving the list of electors in each precinct. There will be plenty of time for every voter to get registered, as the books will be open for registration from the first Monday in January, 1900, to 5 p. m. May 15th. There are provisions whereby a person who has been unable to register may be allowed to vote, but they involve much trouble, and it will be advisable for every voter to register. Any person who fraudulently registers more than once, or under any but his true name, or who shall attempt to vote by personating another, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not less than one year nor more than three years, or by fine of not less than $100 nor more than $2000, or by both such fine and imprisonment. Under this law, the old style of voting 'early and often' will be done away with."

A FRIEND WORTH HAVING.

The Telegram Appreciates The Dalles and Understands the Situation.

While many of the small papers throughout Eastern Oregon and Washington are continually endeavoring to sound the death knell to The Dalles and give the impression that it is a doomed city, the largest and most influential publications in the state realize just what the true situation is in regard to our city. As is its wont, the Portland Telegram sees matters just as they are, and without flattery or undue credit, sums the situation up in an editorial which our citizens will greatly appreciate, coming as it does, from a paper whose influence is so far reaching. That Dalles people already hold the Telegram in great regard is evidenced by its large subscription list here, and by the fact that the midnight train, which drops it at the "Gateway City," always finds a number of our leading citizens waiting to read it before retiring. The kindly words which it speaks for us when so many are intent on criticisms, will do much to intensify this friendly feeling and gain many friends for that popular journal. The article referred to says:

"Uniquely and fortunately located, Dalles City has been for nearly half a century a prominent point in Oregon, and, notwithstanding some hard knocks it is today one of the richest and prettiest towns in the Pacific Northwest. Probably no other town in this region has done so large a business in proportion to population, and in none has a greater proportion of business men prospered. The construction of the O. WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Tuesday's Daily.

Tonight is the regular night for the band concert at the club rooms, which always assures a large attendance of members and their lady friends.

A number have made the trip to the seaside to watch the breakers break and the rollers roll. Witnesses say the ocean now is grand from a land point of view.

W. R. Brown, who stabbed his wife in such a fiendish manner on the morning of the 10th, is having his preliminary hearing in Justice Bayard's court this afternoon. Mrs. Brown is improving rapidly, and is able to sit up today.

A gentlemanly boy is liked wherever he goes. You, fathers, do not overlook the fact that good clothes go a long way toward improving a boy's appearance, and will stimulate his gentlemanly inclinations. A. M. Williams & Co.'s sale of boys' suits affords an excellent opportunity for a small sum, to dress your boy properly.

The Students' Literary Club of The Dalles will meet on Friday, Nov. 24th, at 7:30 p. m., in the council chambers. The club already has a large membership which is increasing rapidly. The question for debate Friday will be "Resolved that the acquisition of the Philippines would be beneficial to the United States." The debates will be both instructive and interesting, and the debaters will include some of the best talent in the city. The moot-courts will be an important feature of the club, and will be held every third or fourth meeting. All persons interested in literary work are invited to attend the meeting Friday evening.

The motion for a new trial in the case of the State vs. Joseph Gauteman was denied by the court yesterday afternoon, and this morning at 9 o'clock he was sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary. As explained in Saturday's issue, the case was one in which the defendant was indicted for uttering a forged check, having presented a forged check for $165 on the First National Bank in Chas. Quite a little excitement was caused at the dock this morning and passengers were much amused to see a woman assert her rights to the extent that she kept a would-be passenger from making the trip down the river. It seems that the man in question was indebted to her to the amount of $27 for board, and learning that he was about to "skip," she made her appearance at the dock and as he was about to step on board grabbed hold of his coat collar the while she exclaimed: "Oh, no you don't. You can't go until you pay that $27 you owe me." The man seemed helpless and making no further endeavor to evade her claim, trotted in a docile manner up the street with her. Sympathy seemed to be on her side, and the lookers-on were evidently pleased with her victory. We know nothing of the case; but he who would endeavor to cheat a woman out of hard earned money deserves the treatment he received, and more severe measures might well be used.

Last night a gang of men arrived in the city and this morning were put to work on the Oregon Telephone system by Manager Vorse. The increase of business has made it necessary to entirely rebuild the leads and lines throughout the city, which will virtually make an entirely new system. A new switch board will be put in the office here, including a calculator for recording the time of conversation. The board was designed and constructed for the Express system, and is modern in every detail. The local office, in Blakeley & Houghton's store, is also being enlarged, and will be 12x15 feet in size, with new fixtures and furniture. During the week the company will receive sixty-five miles of No. 12 copper wire to replace the aluminum wire on the line between Dufur and Cross Hollows. They are nothing if not aggressive, and already are preparing to complete a system to be placed in the Shaniko office.

Knock-Out Drops

"I am a saloon-keeper, and used to think that rock and rye, or whiskey and quinine were proper remedies for coughs and colds. Most of my acquaintances were of the same opinion. Now I know something about a thousand times better. It is Acker's English Remedy for Coughs and Colds. A good while ago I began to cough and found out then that rock and rye was no good. I got worse and I was beginning to think that the trouble would run into consumption. I didn't take any stock in patent medicines, but somehow or other I tried Acker's English Remedy. One bottle did the business for me—knocked that cough out completely—and it has never come back again. There is never a day passes that I don't say a good word about this wonderful medicine. I almost forgot to say that I am stronger and fatter now, since taking the remedy, than I was before the cough began. I write this letter voluntarily and cheerfully and am glad to do it." (Signed) CHAS. HUMAN, Saloon-keeper, Poncaello, Idaho.

Sold at 25c., 50c. and $1 a bottle, throughout the United States and Canada; and in England, at 1s., 2s., 3s., 4s., 6s. If you are not satisfied after buying, return the bottle to your druggist, and get your money back.
