A CRIMINAL CASE.

Every time our Smith gets drunk, which is frequently, he goes home and beats his wife and children, and sometimes turns them out of doors. If one of them comes complain, or if some one else complains, Smith is arrested, and sent up in the city jail. But his beaten wife or child "weakens" next day, and goes free to do the same trick over again. Or, if his wife and children have the courage to tell the truth about the torture, and he is "sent up" for a month, or two or six months, what benefit is that to them? Perhaps when he was free he did support or partially support them, in a fashion, besides getting drunk and beating them once in a week or two. But now they are deprived of support entirely. And when he gets out he is more liable to get drunk and abuse them than before. Imprisonment isn't much worse for him, but is just sufficient punishment to make him feel revengeful toward his helpless family. That the country is put to expense, Smith is only made worse, and his family suffers all the more, by the present method of dealing with such cases.

Yesterday Smith's name was Ed Hobbs, today it will be something else, but every few days such a case turns up in the police court, with about this result:

If legislators and officials who exempt the law cannot devise means by which men of this temperament and character can be made to work like the slaves they ought to be for punishment, the proceeds to go to the support of the family, then the legislature can and should provide the only other proper punishment for this offense, namely, a severe public whipping. If the last was well laid on in the presence of a crowd, the dastardly coward who actually beats his wife when drunk would soon become a very rare offender. For this one offense, at least, the public whipping post would not be an evidence of barbarism, but of good, common sense.—Telegraph.

NO WAR NEWS.

The absence of news from Natal from day to day means that as yet there is no good news for England, says the Telegraph. The British generals have been swift to send news of successes, even when they had to exaggerate the situation, or were mistaken in it, in order to do so; and while Roberts and Buller may have determined that it shall be a real and decided victory next time before they send home any good news, yet they will lose no time in sending such news when they are sure that it will be genuine.

No modern war has been conducted so secretly from the world; in none have the movements and designs of the armies been so little known and understood in the world's news centers. For several days absolutely nothing has been surely known of the operations of two great armies; all is guess work. This is partly due to the situation of the country where the war is going on, and partly to the rigorous and unprecedented censorship maintained.

The safest guess is that the British are maturer and probably by this time carrying out a comprehensive plan, which, though necessarily costly, will be successful, and that the Boers will soon begin, if they have not already begun, to slowly, stubbornly and sullenly retire; and that this movement will be the beginning of the end, which will be the complete conquest of the Transvaal.

BRYAN FAVORS FREE WOOL.

A dispatch reports William J. Bryan as saying that "in the event of his election as president" he would favor a duty on wool. Mr. Bryan hastens to repudiate this statement.

and seems that he has not changed his views, and still favors free wool. He may be nominated but the event of his election will not occur, in which case there will be no free wool admitted to destroy the American wool growing interest. The wool growers have had a bad experience with Mr. Bryan's free wool policy, and for which he voted in Congress, says the Union. They have had an opportunity to compare it with the better policy of Republican protection under which they have seen their flock grow, and the price of their wool advance nearly a hundred per cent. Wool growers especially will, in their future political milling, steer clear of the free wool and free trade party.

ENGLAND'S DANGEROUS POSITION.

England's attitude on the question of the seizures of American food products in South African waters threatens to form a precedent which may be embarrassing to the United States in the future, and which is almost certain to give England herself a good deal of trouble. Her answer to a request from Washington for a definite expression respecting the principle on which she intends to act is that neither flour nor any other food will be considered contraband of war if shipped to a neutral port, as Lourenco Marques, unless it is intended to be used by the army of the enemy. In the meantime the articles which have been seized have been released, and the owners or consignees are to be recompensed for all damage due to the detention of the goods.

Shippers appear to be satisfied with this decision, for it protects them against loss, but a principle is involved which may cause trouble hereafter. In case of war between England and any other great nation, England would shut itself out against any chance to get food from abroad, for England, unlike France, Germany and the other continental European nations, stands against no other country, and the difficulty for her in getting food from the United States which would be shipped to any country near by, and thence transferred to her own ports on her own vessels, would be much greater than it would be for France or Germany to obtain it under similar circumstances. Of course in that case the United States would be hampered in its dealings with England in such a situation.

Thus England, by the position which she is apparently taking today, is preparing trouble for herself for the future and giving aid to all of her possible enemies. Many Englishmen expect trouble with France at some day in the near future. France would certainly be at an advantage as compared with England if the latter intends to maintain the position which she appears to have assumed in this case. Theoretically, England's diplomats and statesmen are supposed to have fifty or a hundred years hence constantly in view. It is evident that their provision has been abandoned in this instance. Bryan says the United States is at the parting of the ways. That was true in 1896. In November of that year the nation chose its road and is not in the least disposed to regret the decision.

If all the Southerners who are for expansion and against silver keep away from the polls this year the Democratic vote of the Southern states will be the lightest ever known.

A THOUSAND TONGUES
Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard st., Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"It soon removed the pain in my chest, and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the universe." So will every one who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the throat, chest or lungs. Price 50¢ and $1. Trial bottle free at Blakely & Houghton's drug store; every bottle guaranteed.

Senators of Expenditures leaders—Statesman.

The Texas Populists have taken a step which will frighten Bryan, says the Statesman. Their state committee, in its meeting at Dallas, formulated a demand that the national convention of the Populist party be held at least a month earlier than the Republicans and Democratic conventions. The purpose of this is, of course, to head off any attempt to fuse with the Democrats in 1900. A large majority of the Populists of Texas are against fusion. This seems to be the case in several of the Southern states. Fusion is far less agreeable to the Populists than it was in 1896. The indications grow stronger every day that the base money aggregation of three years ago has collapsed. Bryan, or whoever gets the nomination of the Democracy in 1900, will probably have only one party behind him this time.

It may be expected that a number of bills will be presented to congress relating to the temporary government of the Philippines. Senator Spooner has introduced a bill in the senate which, briefly stated, provides that when the insurrection shall have been suppressed the government of the islands shall be vested in such person or persons as the president may direct until congress shall decide how the islands shall be governed. The bill is but a reproduction of the early policy of the government in dealing with its territorial possessions.—Union.

Mark Hanna says that President McKinley will be renominated by the Republican national convention and will receive the vote of every delegate therein. It is evident that Mr. Hanna does not expect Mr. Scott, of the Oregonian, to be a member of that convention.

Senator Pettigrew continues to speak of Aguinaldo's scheme as "a sister republic." South Dakota will call in this wild Tagal at the earliest opportunity and allow the Hong Kong Juntas to monopolize his entire time.

Lord Roberts, as the London Times remarks, has a "tangle problem" to deal with. It is the greatest military difficulty he ever confronted, and to settle it satisfactorily will give him a high place in English history.

Drying preparations simply develop catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, James, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. A trial size will be mailed for 10 cents. All druggists sell the size. Ely Brothers, 66 Warren St., N.Y. The balm cures without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation. With Ely's Cream Balm you are armed against Nasal Catarrh and Hay Fever.
