The Wheeler County Seat Fight.

A county seat fight can develop more of the native qualities of the unregenerate sons of Adam than any other thing we wot of.

And the fight now prevailing over in Wheeler county, whose center of operation is at Twickenham, on the banks of the raging John Day, is a case in point rather than an exception.

Our only apology for noticing the contention is that, as will be seen by a letter published in another column, an effort has been made to drag certain Dalles people into it who have no desire for that kind of notoriety.

The Gilman-French Land & Live Stock Company protest against the use of their name to boom a county seat at Twickenham.

They say, what is quite true, that Fossil is one of the handsomest townsites in all Eastern Oregon. The town has recently put in a gravity water system at a cost of $12,000, bringing abundance of pure, cold water from a large neighboring spring.

The town is supplied with many of the modern comforts peculiar to larger towns. It has large business houses, with abundance of capital. It has good hotels, excellent graded schools and abundance of accommodation for courts and county offices. Good roads lead to it from all directions, and it is the center of a large and increasing agricultural population.

Twickenham, on the other hand, is in the canyon of the John Day, where the heat during long months in summer is almost unendurable. As a town it exists only in the imagination of a few local property owners. It has practically no houses, no population, no neighboring population, and nothing under the stars to attract a population, or maintain it if it were there. Save for the patches of bottom lands, only capable of production by artificial irrigation, the surrounding country is a vast, broken and mountainous cattle range and nothing else. Twickenham as a town has no existence, save in the hope-inspired vision of a few local property owners, who would be benefited at the cost of all the others, and in a little subsidized newspaper, whose editor, for ten cents more than he is getting for the work he is doing now, would just as zealously fight for a county seat at Fossil or Mitchell—or Hades, for that matter. Water, it is true, might be obtained by sinking, and then it might not. At present there is none in sight to justify a town being built there, save what flows past in the alkali-saturated and turbid John Day. And lastly, if by any fatuity of lunacy a county seat should be fixed at Twickenham, it will cost enough to build necessary roads to it to bankrupt the county.

For these and other good and sufficient reasons the French-Gilman Company think it subject lunacy to talk of making Twickenham the county seat of any place under the sun.

LATEST IN TRIMMINGS.

Tassels of Fine Silk and Many Buttons Are Among the New Features of Gowns.

Much of the effect from small tassels as dress trimmings depends upon their being heavy enough to vibrate from their own weight. A tassel of fine silk has not body enough to do this. Hence the knowing choose such ornaments when made from heavy silk cord. There will be a number of new garnitures in the way of embroideries, and buttons will also be extremely popular.

Skirts are being trimmed with two rows of buttons down the front. The two rows extend directly down the middle of the front, and for this purpose small but very expensive buttons are employed. They are of gold, beautifully set with mock gems of blue and red and green to imitate turquoise, the emerald and the ruby. Some of these buttons cost five dollars each, and frequently two dollars each.

Foulards are going to be more popular than even last season. Blue has hitherto been the chief favorite, but now all colors are distinctly in vogue. Blues will, however, retain much of their former favor and will appear with white embellishments. Black and white, with a touch of color, will also be much worn.

Beiges and light browns will have a great rage for street wear in spring. Indeed, brown is coming conspicuously into style. The bronze or greenish brown is the newest of all and the most effective.—Washington Star.

Where Women Can Learn from Men.

Women when ill suffer from the indiscretion and the over-attentiveness of friends than do men; they are ill the more often, for one reason. Then, too, men do not visit one another in sickness so much as women do, not being fond, in fact, of the sick room in any capacity. See a man call upon his afflicted friend, and ten to one his wife or other female mentor sent him, and that at considerable outlay of rhetoric. Herein a man shows at once his wisdom and his selfishness. Common sense and observation, if not actual painful experience, have taught him that a man sick is like a wounded animal, which drags itself to some quiet, sequestered spot to die or to endure alone; he wants only his family about him, and he wants them to be unobtrusive. He knows, too, that a sick man is not entertaining; and, as for stopping a whole afternoon to gossip with any other visitors who might drop in, the idea is preposterous; the sick man would never permit it, anyway.—Bland Brunner Huddleston, in Woman's Home Companion.

Lobster Salad.

Take two lobsters, three fresh eggs, half a pint of salad oil, half a pint of vinegar, two tablespoonfuls of made mustard, cayenne pepper and salt, three lemons, a sprig of mint and a boiled beet. To make the dressing, beat the eggs well and gradually mix them with the salad oil. Beat in about half a pint of made mustard, cayenne pepper and salt. Wash three fine white lettucees and drain them; then cut them up with the meat of the lobsters, adding the mint. Take a deep dish, mix all the ingredients together and pour them into the middle of the bowl, heaped up. Then pour in the dressing, so that it may moisten all thoroughly and collect in the sides of the dish. Lay slices of hard-boiled eggs around the edge of the dish, with one egg cut in two for the center of the salad. Slice the beet and lay slices of it across the salad.—Washington Star.

For the Complexion.

One hears of so many girls who complain of thick or spotty complexions, and in nine cases out of ten the trouble is quite easily removed. The very latest cure and quite the simplest one to follow, is to wash the face with parsley water, says a recent authority. It is done in this way. Take half a pint of rain water and soak it in a large bunch of parsley, letting it remain in the water all night. In the morning rub the face well with dry towel, then dip your sponge in the parsley water and pass it over your face, allowing it to dry on. Do this three times daily, and at the end of two weeks if you have persevered in the simple treatment you will be rewarded to see that there are no more spots or roughness on your face. Many of the high priced complexion nostrums contain this simple remedy, which is as inexpensive as it is effectual.—Detroit Free Press.

For Nearly Two Years Unable to Lay in Bed

In my capacity as druggist, in Buffalo, N. Y., I have the best opportunity to judge of the merits of many different remedies. I am in close touch with the sick, who come into my store for medicines, and most of them tell me how they are getting along. Of all the hundreds of preparations which I sell, not a single one begins to give as much satisfaction as Acker's English Remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Pleurisy and Consumption. I sell it on a distinct guarantee that it will cure, or the purchaser's money will be returned. This is a perfectly safe guarantee, because the remedy does cure. Nobody wants his money returned. Its cures are nothing short of marvelous. Take the case of Mr. A. H. Gilbert, for instance. He lives at No. 5 Carey street, Buffalo, N. Y. For more than three years he had a bad case of asthma, and had been unable to lie down in bed for nearly two years. He came to my store and asked me what to do. I said: "Take Acker's English Remedy." He said he had tried other remedies and didn't think this would help him. But he thinks differently now. Three bottles fixed his asthma all right. He could sleep and eat after taking them, as well as when a boy. He was cured several months ago, and is well yet, so I am certain his trouble is gone for good. You can write to Mr. Gilbert himself, if you doubt my word. He will go further than me in praising Acker's English Remedy." (Signed) S. B. THORNE, druggist, Buffalo, N. Y.

Sold at 25c., 50c. and $1 a bottle, throughout the United States and Canada; and in England, at 1s., 2s., 2s. 6d., 4s. 6d. If you are not satisfied after buying, return the bottle to your druggist, and get your money back. We authorize the above guarantee. W. H. HOOKER & CO., Proprietors, New York.
