an that the seven stages of her life may be reckoned as composed of multiples of seven. The first seven years are infancy, the second seven childhood, the third seven girlhood, the fourth seven brings a fully developed womanhood. From 28 to 35-the fifth seven-might be called the infancy of age, for in those years one learns to exercise the faculties and perceptions that have been developed in the previous groups, Up to the age of 42 the lessons go on. Character is being matured and fixed, the definite trend of life established. After that few changes are made in the real person. Slight variations and modifications of opinion there may be, but nothing deep or vital is likely to transform the life.

The common phrases, "a confirmed old bachelor," and "a confirmed old maid," applied to unmarried men and women over 40 are tacit admissions of that fact, intimating that mental and physical habits are so strongly rooted that the adaptability of earlier years has ceased to exist, and the person is incapable of adjustment to a new environment. The tale goes on. Fiftysix, a sturdy middle life; 63, the encroachment of age; 70, the span of existence-the decade of sevens, beyond which lies a mere waiting for the end.

Drying preparations simply devel-op dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decomwhich adhere to the membrane and decom-pose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all dry-ing inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals.
