Annie Turnbow, wife of William Robertson, died Thursday morning at her home on the A. P. Ferguson ranch, a short distance south of 8-Mile, aged 36 years. The cause of death was typhoid fever and a complication of other troubles. The deceased was the daughter of Frank Turnbow, a former resident of this county. She leaves a husband and six children, the eldest being a boy of some 19 years. The remains were laid to rest yesterday in the presence of a large number of sorrowing friends and neighbors. Impressive religious services were conducted by Rev. P. P. Underwood. Mrs. Robertson was a good woman, a kind neighbor, a faithful and loving wife and a tender and affectionate mother. Her death leaves a sad blank in the family and community.

Accompanying the bill was a letter from Mrs. Dunlap, in which she said: "I know you will think me a very bold woman for writing you this letter, but I am a poor washerwoman and my old man is a day laborer, and between us we have to work very hard to support our five little children."

Mrs Dunlap then writes that she had purchased three dozen pigs' feet at five cents each and had put them on the stove to cook. Her busband had agreed to watch them while she went out to do some work. That was on the evening Mr. Hanna spoke at Fort Wayne, and Dunlap, forgetting all about the pige' feet, went to the political meeting. When Mrs. Dunisp returned hame she found the pige' feet on the stove burned to a crisp.

Enough to cause trouble.

"To think," concludes the letter. "that my husband, and a good democrat, would neglect his duty and those expensive pigs' feet just to hear a big republican like you! That's enough to cause trouble in any family. Then when he returned home he announced that 'Mark Hanna was all right!' and he would be darned if he would vote for Bryan!"

Senator Hanna laughed heartly when be read the letter, and then, turning to Elmer Dover, his secretary, seld : "Give her my compliments and enclose $2. She needn't mind the change."

"My Friend From India."

The mere fact that H. A. Du Souchet's effervescent comedy success, "My Friend From India," is to be presented here at the Vogt opera house one night, Dec. 7th, by the Myron B. Rice Comedy Company, is ample guarantee that those intending to visit same will be more than repaid for their investment of time and money. The company is headed by Miss May Vokes, who will be seen in her original character of Tilly, the eccentric German maid, which she has played nearly one thousand nights. Others of this year's company are: Walter E. Colligan, Lute Vrohman, Sidney Lee, Lewis Peters, Millard Simpson, Wm. T. Gaunt, Frank Parry and four society beauties, Rose Tapley, West Temple, Emma Chase and Edna Ewen. Manager Rice has added a number of vaudeville features to this year's performance, ncluding all the late song successes, for which a musical director is especially carried.
