Governor Benson decided that James A. Finch should go to the gallows and that Harry Daley shall spend the remainder of his life in the penitentiary of Oregon. The Governor's reasons for the decisions in the cases brought before him for final settlement are able and unanswerable.

So many positions are offered in the forestry department these days, for which successful examination must be passed, that the next thing we will see advertised by our energetic countrymen who seek easy money, will be something like "Forestry taught by Mail; positions secured for graduates."

Apple culture is the subject of a series of lectures to be delivered before the Y. M. C. A. at Portland. Tree and fruit pest and methods of exterminating, soils and cultivation will be the sub-topics. It would be profitable if Roseburg could arrange for some such course of lectures and study, and which doubtless deeply interest the very many horticulturists in this section.

Miles Poindexter, of Spokane, Republican Representative to Congress from Washington, has lately said some very excellent things relative to House organization, and its control by Cannon and his backers, who go on the theory of the "public be damned!" Mr. Poindexter stands for the people's cause, and has undertaken to fight their battles in the House. Poindexter may have made enemies of the House bosses, but what is better he is making friends of the public who feel that more men of his courage are needed.

Stanfield, an employe town in the irrigated district of Eastern Oregon, in order to quickly secure the population desired, offered prizes of city lots to the first couple married, first baby born and for first twins. Then comes a young man with a bride and claims the lot offered, but since there it developed that because there was no preacher in Stanfield the young couple were wedded in Pendleton, their claim to the lot was discouraging, to say the least. So much so, in fact, that the groom avows he will not participate in the contest for the other awards.

With strictly fresh eggs at 40 cents in the local market, and ranging to 50 and 60 cents in Portland and Seattle, coupled with the fact that carloads are coming from the East to supply the demand it does not appear that the poultry industry is very much overdone in this Golden West. The reason for these conditions is not that poultry does not thrive, but because, as we heard a farmer at one of the fairs this fall remark: "This chicken business is too small for me." Is it? You give the old hen a chance to scratch and she will turn sand into silver, grass into greenbacks, and eventually pay off the mortgage.

When you buy any article, if made in Roseburg, insist on home manufactured goods. By so doing you will do your self a present favor, and later on you will be complimenting yourself for sensible foresight. It is these little things that count, after all, because we all know that it is first the trickling brooklet from the mountain side that afterwards makes the beautiful river which sweeps so majestically toward the sea. Therefore by building wisely we are building for a greater city. Office fixtures, wash, dows, trunks, metal work, flour butter, printers, brooms, etc., are among those things which are made in Roseburg and that are bought every day in the year. "Made in Roseburg" should be a common trademark and familiar in every home.

Chicago, Milwaukee and Northwestern agents have been securing lands and options in the northern part of Portland for terminals, which is evidenced by the fact that the road is headed that way. Portland looks upon the move with the idea that all of the wheat of the Pacific Northwest will be handled there instead of Seattle, Tacoma or other ports. Portland, however, is too sanguine. No ships great draught can load at Portland and get out again, therefore it is not wheat that takes the big trans-continental road to the Oregon metropolis. Some wheat will always be shipped from Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Coos Bay and Warrenton. Crops from the great wheat belt east of the Cascades will supply traffic for all our coast ports, enough in fact, when sufficient railway facilities are afforded, to make great cities of them all, and there need be no quarreling as to which shall be greater.

THE All Wool Idea Goes Away Back to the Cradle of the Human Race.

Whether rich or poor, men never will be satisfied with garments made of anything except the fleece of the sheep. We realize its not the wool alone that makes the suit you'd like to wear. There must be style, a graceful drape, then the very essential makeup-proper lines, etc.—durability for the every day hardships. That's what the Harth's Toggery Good Clothes System aims for—prices consistent with good values. Look at our Clothing and see if we do not maintain the highest possible standard.

The Polk County Observer is in favor of an "assembly" to suggest the republican candidates to be put up for office in that county in the next election. From a lengthy article on the subject we make this excerpt: "The writer believes that this is the plan which should be pursued in every county in Oregon. He believes that if these assemblies are made free and open to every voter, with no attempt to pack them for any clique or faction, the party will at once recover from its present and disorganized condition and win an unbroken line of victories at the polls. No man will surrender any of his rights as a citizen by attending and participating in such a meeting, nor will it be possible for designing politicians to control such gatherings, for should an attempt be made to introduce ring methods or boss rule, that very moment the whole plan would fall, as it would deserve to fall."

RETURN OF ROOSEVELT.

Mrs. Roosevelt and her daughter Ethel are soon to arrive at New York on their return home from a visit to Rome. This is a sure indication that the ex-president is finding the attractions of the Jungles of Africa beginning to pall upon his strenuous tastes and inclinations, and will seek for combat with that greatest of animals, man, at home.

That he will make himself heard from immediately upon his arrival there is not the least of a doubt; it is apprehended that he will regard himself as president de facto and make himself troublesome by attempting to force his personality in matters where it will be regarded as a supreme presumption, and work trouble. That he has not lost the hope of again becoming President of the United States, and that his past intimates have hopes of the same, is doubted by none who has followed the public career of the man, or the actions of his workers during his absence. If there was further doubt in the matter those doubting would have but to remember how long he held the nomination of president and how strongly he felt the temptation to defeat President Taft for the nomination, or anyone else, and take a try for virtually what would have been a third term. It will matter nothing to him that Washington retired to private life after occupying the presidential chair a second time, and that the example set by the Father of his country has been followed strictly to the letter by every one of the Presidents down to Roosevelt's time. There is no evidence that a single one of them ever permitted his name to go before a presidential nominating convention, regarding such an action contrary to the spirit of our form of government. But Roosevelt is not patriotism, it is Rooseveltism and nothing else.

To show the manner in which he is regarded it is openly the stated opinion of many that he worked his late death fake through his friends for political purposes.

He is certain to clash sooner or later with President Taft, he cannot live without a party of his own, and his return will endanger the existence of the Republican party unless he receives a forcible snub at his first instance of extreme officiousness.

PROCLAMATION NO. 2

BE IT KNOWN: to all people, especially the ladies, that Thanksgiving Day will soon be here, and that it behooves you to have on hand the proper equipment. Therefore; you are hereby commanded to appear at The Ironmonger and buy; first a good enameled roaster, it is necessary. DON'T use that old iron one longer. By so doing you can get one of the best Reed pattern, a woman's invention, for $1.75 to $2.75 and with each a 6" butcher knife will be given up to Thanksgiving Day.

Furthermore; it is incumbent upon you to provide the proper tools for the carver. The butcher knife given with roaster is good but will not fill the place of a carving set. Good work is done best with good tools.

Also do not forget that a good meat chopper is necessary in preparing that delicious stuffing, mince meat and other delicacies.

Be thankful that the Ironmonger has these articles in stock. Witness my hand and seal.
