The thermometer is three to four degrees below zero in Montana. All over Eastern Oregon and Washington the earth is covered by a white mantle of snow, and at last accounts the fleecy is still falling, and the atmosphere is decidedly cold. Here in Douglas county we have experienced but two frosts, while the morning fog has dissipated, leaving growing vegetation untouched. Comment is unnecessary.

The Oregon Society of the American Revolution offers prizes totaling $100 to the pupils of the public schools of the State for essays on subjects connected with the war for independence. Of course this matter will be submitted to the County Superintendent and every teacher in the county, and besides the stimulation to study the prizes will give in an eminently proper direction, the readings necessary to prepare the essays must necessarily promote patriotism.

This from the Myrtle Point Enterprise is right good sense: "The excitement over railroad prospects for Coos county may not be as keen as when first started, but with several parties of surveyors in the field and the indications that other projects will be revived before spring opens, there is still every indication that we will soon have railroad connections." The outlook for Coos and the Coquille Valley were never better than they are now since railroad connection with the outside world was first spoken in these localities. As certain as the sun rises and sets 1910 will be the year of their deliverance. The fact that there is to be competition between railroad lines is a guarantee of the fact.

Just how much real profit can be made from dairying and dairy cattle depends a good deal on the way one starts his business. If we were to say that an investment of $400 in pure bred cattle to begin with, would bring you an average return, at expiration of five years, of over $1000 annually, very many might question our veracity. However, we have not set the figure high enough. But let us demonstrate. A farmer near Independence paid $400 for five pure bred Jersey five years ago. During those years he sold no heifer calves, but disposed of the males at good figures. The other day, when the entire herd was sold, the owner retiring from business, more than $5000 was realized. Aside from this the herd had produced a good yearly profit at the stall, which, added to the cash derived from the sale of the male calves, brought Mr. Nelson's annual average from that $400 up to considerably more than $1500. By starting right and following it up intelligently, the Douglas county dairymen is sure of equal success.

J. S. Young, of Kesho, has given an opinion, which has the endorsement of The Timberman, on the reforestation of logged over lands. He believes that the result to be desired is easily attainable, but owing to the slow profits to be derived and inasmuch as the results will be enjoyed by future generations rather than the present he is convinced that the work should either be undertaken by the state, or that taxation should be so arranged that it should not impede a burden on individuals who undertake the task. When it takes 100 years for the timber to mature and be of any use, and the taxpayers realize that fact, they will not take kindly to the proposition. They will think that the future generation should take care of itself as this one has been compelled to do, and the people of Oregon and Washington will hardly submit to a tax to provide for others whom they know not and care little for. When this reforestation proposition come to be thoroughly understood, and it is found to be principally a graft for an army of hungry office seekers, and of no benefit to the public of the present time, no Congressman will have the nerve to move for its extension. That will be the end of it.

Coos Bay Sentinel: The Roseburg Daily Evening News was launched last week by B. W. Bates, a former Coos Bay resident and nephew of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Hibourn. Billy began his career as printer in this city and his advancement to editor-in-chief of Roseburg's evening paper is due to his energy and natural talent in the line of his chosen profession. The News is a bright, spicy paper and a welcome visitor at this office.

Coos Bay News: A copy of The Evening News, of Roseburg, is on our table. This is a new daily that has been started at Roseburg by B. W. Bates, publisher of the Umpqua Valley News. The new paper makes a very creditable appearance.

THE All Wool Idea Goes Away Back to the Cradle of the Human Race.

Whether rich or poor, men never will be satisfied with garments made of anything except the fleece of the sheep. We realize its not the wool alone that makes the suit you'd like to wear. There must be style, a graceful drape, then the very essential makeup—proper lines, etc.—durability for the every day hardships. That's what the Harth's Toggery Good Clothes System aims for—prices consistent with good values. Look at our Clothing and see if we do not maintain the highest possible standard.
