WHERE RED APPLES GROW

Yes its fine in California. But it has bitter with its sweet. And the grand old State of Washington.

Of course its hard to beat; But put me off in Oregon.

Where the clear old Umpqua flows; Where the flowers are always blooming.

And the Big Red Apples grow.

Away down in Western Texas. The place they call the plains.

The sun is always shining— Of course it never rains.

So just stop my train in Oregon. Where people get up and go.

Sunshine or rain, its all the same. So the Big Red Apples grow.

Nothing to boast in Arizona. Neither in New Mexico;

Just the same in the Dakotas. Nor in our neighbor Idaho.

Yes, I'll get off in Oregon— If you go an your slow.

You'll lament while I'm content. Where the Big Red Apples grow.

Fourteen inches and a half— I measured it you know.

What's that my neighbor asks. Why, that's how big apples grow—

Yes, put me off at Roseburg. Then I'll be content to roost.

If that's how big the apples grow. There's something there to boast.
