Eugene Register: "For the seventh time it has been announced that Honey is to prosecute Hermann."

Next year it will be well if the sidewalks are laid first and the pavements are put down afterward.

Some would-be candidates for office say they will have nothing to do with the "Assembly" in politics. Perhaps it may be that the Republican party will not have anything to do with them. There is only one George E. Chamberlain in Oregon, and he could control all of the Democratic party and a substantial "wad" of the Republican, enough to elect him governor and United States senator. These "don't care anything" fellows are Republicans and have possibly a slim Republican vote which they hope to increase by adopting "George's tactics" and doing promiscuous electioneering. Defeat is sure to follow any man who would win office at all hazards, trundle to Democrats and oppose the proposed "Assembly," for fear it may make them unpopular with the Democrats. As soon as this becomes apparent Republicans are likely to have nothing in further support of men of the "good lord devil kind."

BIG TIMBER DEAL.

90,000 Acres Picked up on Vancouver Island.

Portland timbermen have just completed the largest deal in Pacific coast timber lands of the year, about 90,000 acres of fir, spruce, cedar and hemlock timber on Vancouver Island, the consideration being in the neighborhood of $800,000. The tract was purchased by J. D. Lacey & Co., for southern clients who comprise a syndicate headed by Buchner, Banks & Edgar, of Arkansas. The tract is one of the largest of consolidated timber lands north of the British Columbia boundary.

British Columbia timber that has been surveyed and cruised is regarded more favorably now than ever before by American investors. The usual obstacle in the way of safe American investment in timber north of the boundary line has been in the haphazard way in which timber limits there were located and filed upon prior to the withdrawal two years ago by the British Columbia parliament of all crown timber subject to license. At the present time there is no more British Columbia timber subject to appropriation by entry, as the government has suspended the license law and thus practically placed the remaining timber lands in a reserve. It is said the parliament will probably at its next session make license perpetual, or at least extend their term from 21 to 42 years, as this course is believed to be the only way to conserve the timber. Under the 21 year license system holders must cut off the timber during the life of the license or lose their rights to the property.

The tract just purchased by the Lacey people is situated on the Salmon and Memkey rivers, two streams that head about the middle of Vancouver Island and form a large river emptying into the sound, into which the timber can be logged at a point about 120 miles north of Vancouver, and making an advantageous location for manufacturing.

The tract was owned by Harry E. Hopper, of Indianapolis, Iowa.

AWARDED CONTRACTS

The Bandon and Port Oxford Railroad Lines Booming.

Marshfield Times: Steve Henderson, Bandon booster and general manager of the Bandon and Port Oxford Railroad, arrived here today from Bandon enroute to Portland on business. He has just returned from San Francisco where he has been closing some contracts for the construction of the line.

"We have awarded the contract for the rails, spikes, etc.," said Mr. Henderson today. "We will use 60-lb. steel and the material is to be delivered April 15th so that actual construction can begin just as soon as the weather will permit."

"We have also contracted for part of the rolling stock. In the first consignment will be a forty-five-ton engine, 25 flat cars, ten box cars, two passenger coaches or rather one passenger coach and a combination coach and express car."

"We are ready to put her through just as fast as conditions will permit. Am going to Portland, will return via Roseburg."

A LITTLE APPLE HISTORY

Two and one-half pounds for a single apple is pretty good, and such a specimen was shown in the Chelan, Washington, exhibit at the Spokane, National Apple Show. This big red apple is of variety known in catalogs as "Spokane Beauty." The fruit originated on the farm of Stephen Maxson, six miles east of Walla Walla, Washington, in the late sixties or early seventies, and for more than twenty-five years was known as "Maxson's Seedling."

A few years after Mr. Maxson's death, Spokane parties conceived the plan of a little boost for that section by renaming this really wonderful apple, and succeeded in getting the Spokane County Horticultural Society to christen the fruit "Spokane Beauty."

In doing this the Horticultural Society of that county deprived the memory of one of Washington's earliest pioneers and orchardists of a rightful heritage and took honor to itself which it had no right to claim.

The Maxson apple, as it should be called, is unquestionably the largest that grows, and strange to say is of a very fine grain and delicious flavor. It is striped with red, very much so on one side, while the other is often of a yellow-green color. But its keeping qualities are not the least of its virtues, as it has been known to keep until August in the year following its picking.

The trees grow straight and thrifty an annual though not heavy bearer, but the fruit is always extraordinarily large.

DOES IT PAY?

To obtain the best results from fruit trees do not plant them on bed rock or hard pan land.

Second, dig large deep holes, say four feet each way at least, then keep the surface dirt for a filler.

Put at least one foot of good fertilizer in the bottom and throw in all bones and old shoes, boots and loose bones around and subsequently apply a surface dressing of fertilizer, and it will pay at least 200 per cent with thrifter, better trees, and larger, finer and better fruit.
