Fake "Corn Doctor" Receives a Fictitious Telegram.

LEAVES FOR EUGENE

Represents That His Partner Had Killed His Wife and Male Escort—Was Simply a Bunco Game.

In an effort to rib up an excuse whereby he might play upon the sympathies of his creditors, and at the same time be allowed an opportunity to leave town for a "few" days unmolested, E. H. Hanlon, the fake corn doctor, who has been dispensing his wares at the corner of Jackson and Oak streets in this city during the past few days, displayed a fictitious telegram yesterday, the substance of which tended to show that his partner, George Homer, had stabbed his wife and shot her male companion at Eugene the previous night. Those who had become acquainted with Homer and Hanlon during their brief sojourn in this city swallowed the contents of the telegram with eagerness, and anxiously awaited the arrival of the Portland newspapers this morning that they might learn the details of the "terrible tragedy." The papers came, but not a word could be found tending to show that such a crime had been committed at Eugene or any other town in the state.

Upon investigation it has been learned that Hanlon received the telegram which he displayed shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the same being signed by his pal, Homer, who left for Eugene on train No. 16 Monday evening.

That the job was premeditated and hatched after due consideration appears evident inasmuch as Homer told friends prior to his departure that he had received a message from Eugene to the effect that his wife was being attended by another man. He also expressed himself in somewhat emphatic terms relative to his intentions, stating that he would kill both the escort and his wife upon sight.

IN HER OWN HANDS

(Special to The Evening News)
AUBURN, Cal., Nov. 24.—"I haven't much hope now, but I am so glad its all over," said Alma Bell, as the jury left the court room to consider a verdict which means to her freedom or conviction as the result of her slaying her lover, Joe Arnes. Judge Arnot delivered instructions to the jury this morning telling them to bring in one of four verdicts, "first or second murder, manslaughter or acquittal."

This afternoon Alma Bell was vindicated in the eyes of a jury of mountaineers for slaying her lover Joe Arnes, to whom she had relinquished her honor under a false promise of marriage, and the young girl is free to go her way. The jury returned a verdict of acquittal after an hour and fifteen minutes deliberation. Only three ballots were taken, and she was acquitted on the ground of insanity.

HILL ROAD IS HIT HARD

Meet With Its Worst Flood in Cascade Mountains

PASSENGERS TIED UP

Thirty Hours Without Food and no Telling When They Will Be Relieved—Rush Order is Issued

(Special to The Evening News)
SEATTLE, Nov. 24.—With the cessation of heavy rainfall it is believed that the worst flood in this section of the Cascades which has tied up the Great Northern Railroad, is ended. It will require a week to repair tracks and rebuild bridges, in the meanwhile trains of the western division of the road have been diverted to the Northern Pacific tracks at Spokane. Several passenger trains of the Great Northern are held in the Mountains, and some anxiety is expressed concerning the welfare of the passengers on the delayed trains, owing to a probable shortage of provisions.

They have been held more than thirty hours, and there is no telling definitely when they can be moved to where provisions can be obtained in plenty, or where good road will permit them to reach their destination. Of course every effort possible for their speedy relief is being rushed to the front, but even with this being done, the delayed passengers are certain to suffer more or less, and from hunger also.

HERMANN ASKS FOR EARLY TRIAL

Portland Journal: Binger Hermann wants his case in the federal court of Oregon brought to trial. No man who hears the ex-congressman and ex-commissioner of public lands discuss the subject doubts that he wants the earliest possible adjudication of his case, or doubts that Mr. Hermann expects to be acquitted.

"I am exceedingly anxious for an early trial," said Mr. Hermann yesterday. "I have been waiting for five years to have this case disposed of, and, like any man who is absolutely confident of his own innocence, I have been very impatient to have the case brought into court. Colonel A. S. Worthington, of Washington, D. C., and Hon. John M. Garin will appear as my attorneys. The trial has been set tentatively for January 10, the date being dependent upon whether Colonel Worthington can be here at that time. He hopes to be able to get away from Washington but has another case which comes up about the same time. I would be very glad to have my case tried even earlier if it were possible."

Mr. Hermann will be sixty-seven years old next February, but does not look it. Time has dealt kindly with him, and the firm step, clear eye and unlined face are more nearly those of a man of 50. Aside from the expressions quoted above, he declined to discuss the pending trial.

Mr. Worthington, who is to be one of Mr. Hermann's counsel, has charge of the case in Washington, in which Mr. Hermann was tried for destroying records. The trial occupied to and a half months of time, being one of the longest in the court annals of the District of Columbia. Mr. Hermann was on the witness stand for four days and his testimony doubtless was something of a factor in securing his acquittal. The strongest influence for acquittal, however, was the contention of the defense that the letters destroyed by the government employes on Mr. Hermann's order were not official, but personal.

Mr. Hermann has been elected 8 times to congress from Oregon. His first election was in 1884, and five re-elections followed. He was succeeded in 1897 by the late Thomas Tongue, at whose death Mr. Hermann was elected to fill the unexpired term. The next year Mr. Hermann was re-elected to the term expiring in 1907, when he was succeeded by Congressman Hawley. Mr. Hermann was commissioner of the general land office of the United States from 1897 to 1903.

The Oregonian of this morning has the following regarding the Hermann trial:

Owing to the absence of the Attorney-General of the United States from Washington, no date has yet been agreed upon between Attorney Garin and Special Prosecutor Heney for the trial of Binger Hermann, former congressman from the first district of Oregon, charged with conspiracy to defraud the United States. The government will probably insist upon beginning the case January 10 next, regardless of the fact that the defendant desires to secure the presence of his Washington attorney, Mr. Worthington.

Later
PORTLAND, Nov. 24.—Binger Hermann, ex-Congressman of Oregon is to be put on trial January 10th, for conspiracy in fraudulently obtaining government lands. Judge Wolverton definitely set the date today on reception of a telegram from Henry Worthington, chief counsel for Hermann, notifying the court of his ability to attend on that date.

EUGENE V. DEBS ORDERED TO COME

(Special to The Evening News)
SPOKANE, Nov. 24.—Eugene V. Debs has been ordered to come to Spokane to assist in the free speech fight immediately. With a small force of workers still waging the fight against the police, the industrialists declare they will have more men as soon as work begins to shut down in the lumber camps and mines.

Mrs. J. C. Fry, wife of the Camas Valley merchant, is in the city visiting friends. She expects to eat her Thanksgiving dinner with Mrs. Olga Swartz, the well known landlady of the Oregon rooming house.
