Two pair will sometimes beat two of a kind—it depends on the game. The two pair we have in mind will do it. One pair is an exact duplicate of the shoes worn by Captain Geo. Auger, the giant in Barnum & Baily shows, and from their dimensions one might easily house the legendary "old woman who lived in a shoe."

The other pair is a perfect reproduction of the shoes made for Count Magri, the smallest man in the world. These two pair illustrate the extremes in sizes of men's feet, and are real curiosities, and are made by the Royal Shoe Company. For a few days these shoes will be exhibited at Harth's Toggery.

Dr. Stewart, of the firm of Drs. Seely, Sether and Stewart, left late last evening for the Illinois district, about 30 miles above Peel, where he will treat "Bill" Bradley, who was recently injured near his cabin in that section. Dr. Stewart was accompanied as far as Rock Creek by Wm. Tipton, an uncle of Bradley. There the physician will be joined by forest rangers Wright, Smith and Singleton, who will accompany him to Bradley's cabin. Owing to the swollen condition of the streams the journey is considered very dangerous. Should Bradley recover sufficiently to withstand the journey he will be brought from his home to Peel where he can receive the best medical treatment.
