Defense of Postcards.

A very eloquent defense of the picture postcard craze recently occurred in an address made before the municipal engineers of New York City, by Charles W. Leavitt, Jr., who said he had a collection of several thousand of these cards and found them of immense practical value in his work. He said that many valuable hints as to aesthetic design could be obtained by a study of French, German and Italian postal cards. While in Paris on a recent tour he obtained several thousand cards showing views of French streets, parks, lamp posts, bridges, buildings, drinking fountains and other structures, which help to make or mar a city's appearance, and these cards have been of considerable assistance to him in his practice in this country by furthering suggestion for the treatment of public works. He advised all engineers engaged in the design of public works to form a collection of these cards, on account of their information regarding harmonious and pleasing design.

SHE WAS WISE

This story is being told on a fellow who wanders up and down the land selling goods for a Denver firm. That he is not an Elk goes without saying. In a Colorado town he entered the hotel dining room and seated himself at a table. When the pretty girl waiter approached to take his order he looked up into her face, flashed his smiling smile and said: "Nice day, little one."

"Yes, it is," she answered, "and so was yesterday, and my name is Ruby, and I know I am a little peach and have pretty blue eyes, and I've been here quite a while, and I like the place and I don't think I'm too nice a girl to be working in a hotel; if I did, I'd quit my job; and my wages are satisfactory, and I don't think there is a show or a dance in town tonight, and if there is I shall not go with you, and I'm from the country, and I'm a respectable girl, and my brother is a cook in this hotel, and he weighs 200 pounds, and last week he wiped up the dining room floor with a fresh fifty dollar a

A SIGHT FOR AN ELK.

At a country fair out in Kansas a man went up to the tent where some elk were on exhibition and stared wistfully up at the sign.

"I'd like to go in there," he said to the keeper, "but it would be hard to go in without my family, and I can not afford to pay for my wife and seventeen children."

The keeper stared at him in astonishment.

"Are all these your children," he gasped.

"Every one," said the man. "You wait a minute," said the keeper. "I'm going to bring the elk out and let them see you all."—Ex.
