The preliminary hearing of Walter Leatherwood, charged with the crime of larceny from the store of Dave McKay, of Wilbur, is attracting the attention of Justice of the Peace John T. Long today. Leatherwood is accused of having entered the store above mentioned and made away with a doll of the approximate value of 50 cents. District Attorney Geo. M. Brown is conducting the case for the state, while the defendant, Leatherwood, is represented by Attorney W. W. Cardwell. It is contended that Leatherwood stands a chance of serving a penitentiary sentence notwithstanding the fact that the amount appropriated is trifling.

These were burned at the grave, such being the custom of the Chinese in time of death.

Growing Cost of Living.

The statistics of production gathered by the Agricultural Department of the government show that the per capita production of all the staple farm products of the country except sheep is increasing. This being true, how can the growing cost of living be accounted for? In spite of the greater proportionate supply of wheat and corn and cattle, we are confronted with constantly rising prices for bread and meat. We have more cotton and deared cotton cloths. The simple explanation of short supply put forth by the pampered monopolies which control the buying and selling of our staples is contradicted by the fact. The alleged scarcity is only an excuse for rapine. How long can we keep on at our present rate of advancing the cost of food and clothing 50 per cent and rents 25 per cent while there is only a contemporaneous offset of 20 per cent in the form of increased wages? How long before, in our policy of building up monopolies, we shall reach the point when the further development of the national resources along lines contributing to the general prosperity will be made impossible?—Philadelphia Record.

MISTAKE OF ONE WEEK.

Portland Prophet Says Christ Is Sure to Come Saturday.

Although Rev. E. A. DeVennis, teacher of some unique theories which he calls the "science of life," was greatly disappointed because Jesus Christ failed to return to earth and pay a visit to Portland Christmas day, says the Telegram, he is not discouraged. Now he is just as certain that the Savior will arrive on New Year's day as he was last week that the divine call would be on December 25.

The self appointed advance agent for Christ is rather annoyed because some people have suggested that he be relegated to the fakir tribe.

"I just made a slight mistake in my calculations," said the chatty DeVennis, today. "I had figured that Christ would come right after Thursday, December 23, but I see now that I should have figured after Thursday, December 29. I am positive that Christ, in the flesh, will visit this city on New Year's day and I expect to meet and talk with him. I expect him to look just as he did when he left this earth.

"Perhaps everybody will not recognize Christ when he arrives, but there will be a few of us on hand to greet him. He will come down from the clouds and as he nears the earth, he will be seen in the flesh. It really will not be my first visit with Christ. I have talked with many others who have told me that many things would occur and they have."

DeVennis says that there are a number of people here who believe with him that Christ will spend the week-end in Portland. Some of them, he says, have acknowledged that his theories are correct.

DeVennis plans to busy himself all week in his sequestered chamber in the Alky building for the reception of Christ next Saturday. He is indignant over the report that he departed from the failure of Christ to appear Christmas. He declares he stayed in his rooms until the temperature got too low for even his zeal to hold out against, and he went to South Portland to visit friends. But he says he will be on the job when the Savior comes January 1.

Breed and Feed.

To cheapen the cost of production and to increase the price of dairy products; and the only way to lower the cost is to feed and breed intelligently. The scrub bull is the bane and curse of the dairy industry in Missouri and the southwest, as it is everywhere else. And it should also be remembered that the best cow in the world may be ruined as a milk producer by improper feeding. If you do not own a thoroughbred bull with good milk stock in his pedigree, buy one at once. There are a number of bull calves advertised in this paper, any one of which will put you safely on the highway to success in the dairy business. Get out of the old rut and start right. Go to work now and build up your herd. The chances are that 50 per cent of those who read this paragraph have a lot of cows that are hardly paying for their keep. But by breeding to the right sort of a sire, and keeping the better calves from only the best milkers, and feeding intelligently, any man who reads this can have a herd of 300-pound producing cows in five years.—Missouri Dairyman.

NEW DIVORCE DISEASE.

A medical, social and judicial question has been raised at San Francisco in the divorcing of Mrs. Anita Coover from David Coover on other grounds than those set up in the complaint and testified to by Mrs. Coover while on the witness stand. This disparity between the lines of testimony and the nature of the decree might be less significant than it is did not the decree make a wide departure from precedent in making a disease not named on the statute a cause of divorce. The disease singled out in this way is hookworm, recently brought into great prominence through the Rockefeller donation for its eradication. Wherefore the proceedings in the court at San Francisco are made of national if not of world-wide interest.

Mrs. Coover, while on the stand, according to the full and, we presume, veracious press report, said: "My husband was dull, stupid, lazy, languid and slow." It would seem that out of such a long list of faults, not to say vices, any court would be able to find one on which to base a decree of divorce. Of course, many of the terms used by Mrs. Coover in drawing a mental picture of her husband are really synonymous. A man who is dull cannot well escape being stupid, and one who is languid and lazy, must, by force of natural law, be slow. But, after pooling the issues, and making a merger of David Coover's habits of mind and body and reducing them to their last ultimate definitions, the residuum would be found enough to govern the action of the court either for or against the prayer of the wife's petition.

Judge Graham took another view—"he must have been a victim of the hookworm," said the Judge. Mrs. Coover could not concur in this view. She thought her husband was just an ordinary good-for-nothing, lazy and shiftless person, and that the diagnosis of Judge Graham was wholly wrong. The experts in medicine, as well as in jurisprudence, insist that the qualities found in David Coover are symptoms of hook-worm, while the plain people and the common people, inexpert as Mrs. Coover was, but watchful of the habits of such men as Mrs. Coover's former husband, stick to it that it is nothing more than laziness, carrying with it all the other qualities which Mrs. Coover described to her husband. The experts have the richest man in the world on their side, and he is spending his money in million-dollar installments to carry out their theories. The action of the San Francisco court, if it can be interpreted as a judicial recognition not only of hookworm as a disease, but as a disease constituting sufficient grounds for divorce of the life partner of the victim, would seem to be a recognition of the value of the Rockefeller bequest, and the necessity for mere like it as a means of fighting the divorce evil. On the other hand, it may result in a flood of divorce petitions alleging the symptoms of hookworm either in the plaintiff or defendant, thus making a more prolific source of divorce disease than even "incompatibility"—the symptoms of which are so often indicated.
