Our Representatives will explain our methods of handling this work.

ROSEBURGS NECESSITY

"From whatever point of the compass we make our exit from the city, we pass through gateways which open into expansive valleys rich in their fertile fields of fruit and grain, while on either side are the low rolling hills upon which abundant pasture is found for thousands of herds. The view presented to the eye through these gateways gives us a picture of transcendent beauty and opens to our vision acres of unrivalled opportunity for development.

Our Climate.
Our climate easily surpasses the climate of any city in the state. It is remarkable for its superiority over the climate of our neighboring cities, Cottage Grove and Eugene on the north; Ashland, Medford and Grants Pass on the south. This is largely due to our lower elevation and the soft warm ocean breezes which are wafted to us over the low passes through the Coast range of mountains made by the Coquille and Umpqua rivers.

Necessity of Knowledge Based on Facts.

If one desires in the highest degree to appreciate his own city and county, and be at his best as a benefactor, he must have a definite knowledge of its sectional advantages and defects. With this knowledge he will be able to state the facts to home-seekers and win them to be enthusiastic supporters of the country. In order to do this one should study the contour maps, make an occasional visit to different sections, an opportunity may be afforded; give of his financial means to every worthy effort made in presenting the facts to home-seekers and visitors. If he lives within the city or its environs he should first carefully survey this ground and then in following the instruction of David go round about her, that is, on the outside.

Right here let me say I think that business men's excursions properly conducted may be conducive to great good, both in giving information, inspiration and mutual helpfulness both to hosts and guests.

Internal Inspection.

"I wish to call attention especially this morning to our own city's needs and future prospects. Let us make a careful survey of its streets, buildings, commercial, social and religious interests. Let us not confine our walk to the paved districts alone, but let us go from them to the outskirts of the city; let us take in our survey the back streets and alleys, as well as the main thoroughfares; let us inspect our sawage, our barns, straw piles, sheds, rubbish heaps, etc., as well as our stores, disused windows and front yard lawns. Having done this, I think you will agree with me that it would be a good and practical thing if some organization with prestige and empowered with authority from the city, would endow a white wash brigade, with an abundance of brushes and white water paint, and hire men to paint every unpainted house, barn, shed, fence and tree trunk, where the owner was either unable or unwilling to do the same. We need to literally paint the town white, making it the symbol of purity and sanitation. Then have another brigade called the rubbish and tin can brigade, to clean up the streets and back yards. We can all readily see the advantage of such improvements to our city.

Moral Improvement Needed.

Let us never forget that the moral tone of the community should have first place in attention, for 'except God buildeth the city, he that buildeth it, buildeth in vain.' Morally, I believe our city is far above the average city of its size, but notwithstanding this we have some things that are like festering sores to our moral health and well-being.

"Many organizations and social functions are provided for our people, some of which are greatly in need of renovation, or I had better say obliteration. Their demoralizing influence may be evidenced by their bacchanalian feasts, where light is made of the most holy and sacred things. Imagine living in a city like this where a crowd of men in drunken revelry will make parodies on hymns that we use at our altars of prayer, hymns under the influence of which many souls have been brought from darkness into light. Such hymns as 'Happy Day' and 'At the Cross.' It is a wonder that God does not again appear as he did in the days of Belsazzar, king of Babylon, and declare their doom by his handwriting on the wall. A respectable citizen some time ago refused to pay any more dues into a noted organization, giving as his reason, that it was against his principles to contribute his money to help pay a bartender.

Summing up some of our our greatest needs, I will say: We need a higher standard of morality, more good men, stronger churches, more generous and devoted Christians, concerted and harmonious action on the part of its citizens along all lines of commercial civic and religious endeavor. Our slogan should be: 'Knock everything that is evil; boost everything that is good.'

"The thing we need most, however, is an old fashioned revival of religion that will manifest itself in true repentance and the forsaking of sin.

Roseburg's Future Prospects.

Having had in brief outline a survey of our city and county needs, and with the inspiration of our remarkable resources and opportunities, let us look down the vista of time with prophetic vision as to Roseburg's future. Great things have been accomplished in the past two years, and we have grounds for faith that greater things will be done in the future. In a few years we will have industries which will provide abundant labor for men of humble and honest toil, hence a large payroll for the city's good. Many palatial residences will adorn our prominent streets and places of eminence; rose trellises, flower gardens and lawns will be enjoyed by nearly every home. Our street pavement will extend to the suburbs of our city.

By special ordinance of the city and council, and the vigilance of law enforcement, the near-beer joints and blind pigs will be a thing of history only. By an everlasting injunction on the brewery by the county court for selling real beer its operation will cease and its machinery grow rusty.

Every unrighteous social function will receive a strong moral taboo. Large, commodious stone and brick churches will adorn their present sites, where will assemble large audiences of God-fearing men and women. There will be such a change in the moral tone of the city that its chief business men and politicians will be compelled to recognize every movement for moral reform if not to identify themselves with the same in order to have the prestige and gain the respect of a large majority of its citizens.

With all these things brought to pass, to live in Roseburg will be to live in a veritable Eden itself. A word from Longfellow in conclusion: 'All common things, each day's events,

That with the hour begin and end, Our pleasures and our discontents, Are rounds by which we may ascend.

"The low desire, the base design, That makes another's virtues less; The revel of the ruddy wine, And all occasions of excess.

"The longing for ignoble things, The strife for triumph more than truth, The hardening of the heart that brings Irreverence for the dreams of youth.

"All thoughts of ill; all evil deeds, That have their root in thoughts of ill,

Whatever hinders or impedes The action of the nobler will.

All these must first be trampled down

Beneath our feet, if we would gain In the bright fields of fair renown The right of eminent domain.

Christian Church.

Rev. J. N. McConnell, pastor of the Christian church, in treating the subject of 'Roseburg, Her Present Needs and Future Prospects,' delivered an able address, which was received with great interest by the congregation and the following is a brief synopsis of his remarks:

The speaker told of Paul when in Athens, 'his spirit was stirred' because of certain things. Something in every town stirs people who go there. Factory whistles, busy streets, splendid schools, churches, cleanliness of streets and alleys and homes.

Roseburg has great natural advantages and unlimited resources of timber, coal, water power, fertile land. It is unsurpassed in pleasant, healthy climate. Roseburg will be a city of 10,000 before long. We need more people of the right classes, namely, industrious, studious, unselfish. Newcomers ask about the following mainly: Health, climate, business, schools, churches. We are warranted in telling them that this is a safe place to come from all these standpoints. We should make our city beautiful to look upon, clean in every way and a place where the young may develop into men and women with healthy bodies, strong minds and good consciences.

We should do everything possible to keep away evils, but we must also warn the young that they will never be in a place while living that will be entirely free from evil, so we must fortify against it with the religion of Jesus. The love of God must be planted deeply in the human heart to be on safe ground in Roseburg or any other place.
