a Good Keen Butcher Knife?

Well, call on the Ironmonger and get one. He has them to sell that are fully guaranteed. If then by chance you should get a poor one, he will give you two for it. Isn't that fair?

Has something new in that line, also. A sanitary knife. No wood about it. Handle of aluminum, fastened to blade so that there are no seams or creases to fill with—well, microbes, bacteria or other agitators.

JURY OUT 48 HOURS
11 FOR CONVICTION

vote was six for each side, but the jury was not confirmed and only resulted in doubling the guard in the hall leading to the jury room.

Jury Room Famous.

In five minutes after Judge Wolverton had concluded his instructions, Bailiffs Hamilton, Jack Kerrigan and Joe Hoeg conducted the jurors to the room on the top floor of the Federal building which has been heretofore occupied by the office force of Attorney Henry. In that same room juries have decided the fates of many prominent Oregonians. John H. Mitchell, I. N. Williamson, Pierre Mays, Henry Meldrum, S. A. D. Pater, McKinley and Tarpley waited anxiously for the end of deliberations there.

A delegation of prominent residents of Roseburg reached the city on a morning train and remained in the vicinity of the court room during the afternoon. Among them were Frank Alley, E. L. Parrott, Joe Mitchell, K. L. Miller, Lin Caton, H. Marks, Joe Pleisticker and A. C. Marsters.

With the close of the Hermann trial the chief counsel for the defense Attorney A. S. Worthington, of Washington, D. C., will retire from the practice of criminal law.

"It will positively be my last appearance in a criminal court," said Attorney Worthington. "There are of course a few small cases to clean up, which will have my attention. When this case ends I am practically out of that branch of law. Such cases impose much worry on an attorney."

Asked if he proposed to abandon all branches of law, Mr. Worthington declined to be quoted. "I might change my mind," he said.

Intent Must be Shown.

The essential points of Judge Wolverton's charge to the jury were that the conspiracy must have been formed within three years of February 13, 1905, when the indictment was returned, but if they found that a conspiracy had been formed before that they could still hold the defendants responsible if an overt act had been done within those three years. The judge said a person might enter without evil purpose or illegal intent a conspiracy, but after he was in it having knowledge of its illegal purpose joined therein then he became a party. That Hermann did not benefit from the conspiracy is not essential.

The court said the commissioners' duty was to conserve the public lands and to protect the government from depletion of its public lands. Regarding intent, the court said that circumstantial evidence could be used to prove it only when such evidence could have no other reasonable hypothesis than that of guilt placed upon it.
