JUST FISHERMAN'S LUCK.

Another Version of That Boating Party's Plight.

In the statement made of the accident on the South Umpqua, in which the Church brothers, Mr. Colt, Carl Schwartz and Mark Alexander participated, it seems that there has been a misstatement of facts.

When the correct version of the affair came to light it appears that instead of Mark acting as propeller of the craft, he was acting in the official capacity of coxswain, and Milton Church acted as the oarsman. Everybody knows what a husky athlete Milton is!

The boat being heavily loaded, it did not act exactly as Milton expected it being a little hard on the bit, the ultimate result was a collision with the coffer dam of the center pier of the Alexander Bridge, and only the jamming of the boat saved the party from a swim in the raging Umpqua.

Milton claims that with a little practice he will guarantee to take a party fully two thirds of the way across without an accident, providing he is allowed to use broad paddles, as he thinks he will be more efficient with them than oars.

If it hadn't been for the heroic efforts of laughter at our predicament, indulged in by Gilmore and his crew, the men at work on the bridge, they might have rendered some assistance and saved us the mortification of going home with wet trousers and water-logged shoes.

Horse Collars

Are To Be Made In Roseburg

Mr. H. Pearce, who recently bought Long & Sons harness store, will start to making horse collars in about eight weeks, or just as soon as the necessary machinery comes from Cincinnati. Mr. Pearce has made a big change in his harness shop and is now able to turn out work that Roseburg has been unable to get before. Mr. James Donahue, who has been head man for the Askin Harness Co., of Kansas City, Mo., several years, has just arrived to charge of the manufacture of the harness department.

Mr. Pearce expects to employ three or four men in his shop. Having done a good business this spring he intends to go in on a larger scale in the near future and supply Roseburg and the surrounding country with a good grade of leather goods and at as good prices as can be obtained on the Pacific coast.
