"NON-PARTISAN" JUDGES.

A correspondent from McMinnville, Or., writing to the Portland Oregonian has the following to say in reference to "non-partisan" judges and judges "endorsed" by the bar:

McMINNVILLE, Or., June 23.—(To the Editor.)—I have been much interested in the action of the Multnomah Bar Association relative to a non-partisan judiciary. If I thought that the courts of Oregon had become so thoroughly imbued with the spirit of politics as is being now manifested by the above bar association, I would gladly sanction its movement, but I fail to see the need of all this clamor at the present time. I have always believed that our courts have kept free from politics. Why spend all this energy to eradicate an evil that we do not know exists? The bar association will do an everlasting good, if it will devise some method of legal procedure whereby a person can begin an action at law and see its termination before it time to pass to "gates beyond." All of this non-partisanism business smacks of cheap politics. In fact, there is strong indication that the Multnomah lawyers are being led astray by a few "Chamberlain Republicans," and that the real purpose back of this movement is to keep King and Slater where Chamberlain put them. However, there are those of the opinion that the voter will have some say, when it comes to the matter of selecting judges. It seems to me that the common people ought to be as much interested in this matter as any select body of lawyers. Who is the most vitally interested? In view of the fact that some of the very best judges on the bench now are popular with the majority of lawyers, I doubt whether the average lawyer is any better qualified to make the selection than the average citizen. As the Oregon has often said, "great is humbug."

CITIZEN.

The McMinnville correspondent has spoken well. Such actions "smack" of cheap politics, and invariably come from judges of the minority party, who either think they ought to have office, or have served their terms allotted and have outlived their usefulness, but still have an insatiable desire to hold on, and therefore must resort to such cheap politics. Republicans have learned that non-partisanism is an illusion and a snare. That it does not exist in fact, and cannot exist in name for personal political gain. The judiciary is one of the three co-ordinate branches of our government, and politics does and will enter into the selection of our officers in this branch of government. Our best interests demand that there should be more than one party represented in this highest branch of government. If party lines are eliminated in the selection of judges and the non-partisan theory invoked, the people have lost all control over the selection of the judiciary. The court has so abused their powers, prolonged litigation and obeyed corporate power to such an extent that the people have lost the high respect, that honest judiciary is entitled to. Judges who resort to such methods have an axe to grind, and you always find the minority party candidates using this device. Republicans have learned by sad experience to support their own men for all offices and at all times. Non-partisan "dope" will fall upon deaf ears, as it should.

As an illustration of what a little personal "boosting" can do. The Oregonian has quite an interview in its columns yesterday, which can not fail to result in good to this community. The gentleman interviewed, Mr. R. R. Carr, is president of the National Farmers' Association of Chicago. In writing to the Commercial Club, he says, "I recently had the pleasure of meeting the Rev. C. D. Gifford of your place, while on a steamer bound for San Diego, and his description of the wonderful agricultural and fruit possibilities of your portion of Oregon, and the enterprise exhibited by your community in particular, induces me to stop on way to Portland. We have throughout the Middle West hundreds of thousands of prosperous farmers and husky, healthy, industrious farmers' sons, anxious to find new homes in desirable localities, who are simply waiting to be shown." Mr. Carr calls himself the "father of the farmer's elevator" and through the National Farmers' Association is in touch with hundreds of thousands of farmers. His position is influential, and when he speaks of Roseburg as he does, it is impossible to tell how far reaching the influence of his good opinion may be. In speaking of Roseburg he says: "At Roseburg I spent a day and night, and saw the famous apple pear, peach and cherry orchards. Those far and away exceed my most sanguine expectations. In reality the cherries here are so large that two bites are necessary to eat one. General farming conditions in this section seem to be unusually prosperous. I saw corn which will average 75 bushels to the acre and oats and other small grains relatively prolific. Not only to Rev. Gifford is credit due, but the real estate men as well, who took the trouble to show Mr. Carr around. These gentlemen, by loyalty to Roseburg, have made for Roseburg a friend well worth having, and one who probably will not hesitate to recommend this particular part of Oregon to many thousands of prosperous people in the Middle States."

Mrs. Addie Short preached at the Soldiers' Home last Sunday to a large and attentive audience. She will preach for them again the third Sunday in July.

USE AN OIL STOVE The New Perfection Oil Stove is admitted by dealers who handle other makes to be the best. It is the best of all oil stoves. Oil is always safer and better than gasoline or alcohol, therefore this is the stove you need. It is the easiest to clean, heats the quickest (after one minute) and gives off the least heat (practically none.) The new Perfection costs less than wood or coal because it uses the Blue Flame, which affords the most perfect combustion. Besides this, this stove makes summer cooking incomparably lighter and more comfortable than the oil wood or coal fire. Many a meal in Roseburg has been cooked in twenty minutes. If you have not seen this stove, let us demonstrate. B. W. STRONG The Furniture Man
