HUNTERS CAUTIONED

The Deer Season Opens Next Monday

YONCALLANEWSINBRIEF

Local Happenings Chronicled By Hustling Correspondent—Many People Enjoying Outing—Social Events.

With the ushering in of the month of August come the open season for killing male deer. The sportsman who has long awaited the opening rushes into the forest and elsewhere in quest of game, anxious and eager to gratify the desire which has long throbbed within his breast. He hopes to be the first of the party, or army of nimrods to bring down an antlered monarch. He pauses at every rustle and murmur of the wind and fancies that each and every nook and corner shelters game and that each and every sound is that of game bent on making its escape. So certain is he of it that he peers through the woods on catching a glimpse of some object as it moves through the underbrush brings his rifle to bear upon it, while at the same time he congratulates himself upon being the first of the party to secure meat, there is a flash, a report, a cry of pain and the would-be hero finds to his sorrow, that instead of bagging a deer he has mortally wounded one of his fellow sportsmen and that all the coveted pomp and glory of a few moments before have vanished and in their stead is naught but sorrow, shame, regret and suffering. The hunt has reached an abrupt end and all that remains to be done is to carry the remains of the poor unfortunate back to waiting loved ones, who little suspect the dire disaster which has so suddenly swept father, son or brother from this sphere of existence, leaving the family probably without a bread winner. It is to be hoped that no such experience will fall to the lot of anyone but with each and every season many men are mistaken for game of different kinds and accordingly meet death at the hands of their fellow sportsmen. Surely those men who make the awful mistake of shooting men for game cannot expect to be considered as law abiding, for the law plainly states that no deer shall be killed other than bucks that have reached the age of one year. Yet the so-called law-abiding hunter goes into the woods and the first object or shake of a bush to meet his eager gaze, all law and caution are fleeing aside and Mr. Hunter is almost in the act of firing upon a supposed deer, when a man steps into view just in time to accept another lease on life; no fault of the other that he escaped death. No man who fires upon an object without knowing exactly what he is shooting at cannot be considered as law-abiding for such a man would bag any kind of a deer, regardless of sex, size or other conditions and would in all probability fire upon any moving object without every stopping to consider its true nature, be it man or beast. Men and boys, don't be over anxious to bag game, but if you would obey the law, don't shoot on suspicion but wait until the game has been positively identified, then you will neither violate the law or kill your fellow man.
