MONDAY, AUGUST 1, 1910.

Harmony prevails in the republican ranks and all the "non-partisan" schemes of the opponents are cast to the winds.

The gentlemen recommended for the various offices of this county by the republicans last Saturday will come before the voters at the primary election just as any other man or set of men. The ticket has been selected by representative men from the various precincts of the county, not as a "slate" as some would have you believe, but men in whom it is known will fill the places of trust in a way that will reflect credit upon themselves and those giving them their support.

When the result was declared at the republican assembly Saturday for a suitable candidate for sheriff, Wm. Vinson and George Quine being the two nominated for this office, the latter receiving the endorsement, Mr. Vinson, the veteran republican, walked to the front of the hall and in an appropriate speech moved that the assembly make the nomination unanimous. He then called Mr. Quine to the front, took him by the hand and promised his (Vinson's) loyal support during the campaign and remarked, "gentlemen of this assembly look upon the next sheriff of Douglas county." Mr. Vinson is one of those true and tried republicans who holds no ill feeling against any good republican candidate, even though he may have been his opponent prior to the nomination.

The gentlemen recommended to the voters at the coming primary election by the republicans last Saturday are acknowledged, not only by the republicans but the democrats as well, to be the strongest set of men ever to come before the people of this county. Led by Hon. J. C. Fullerton, one of Douglas county's best known and most progressive pioneers, the ticket in its entirety is one that the people will have a just pride in supporting. A cleaner and better line-up, from top to bottom, has never before been placed before the voters of Douglas county. Every man thereon has a record for the strictest business integrity and is inspired with that progressive spirit which will advance old Douglas county to the on-going column. No better recommendations could be made to fill the different offices in this county than those selected Saturday and The News predicts the nomination of each one at the primary election, and their success at the polls at the regular election is assured.

Monarch Perfect Cooker

This Range Won First Honors on Technical Superiority as well.

The Monarch Malleable range won first honors for its technical construction, the material and demonstrations and tests in the Portland and Seattle world's fairs, these tests proved that the range was best of all, providing that it fit the local conditions.

During the last three or years the Monarch has shown in Roseburg homes that it is a perfect baker and cooker in every respect. Not only does it bake evenly and thoroughly, but the wood consumption is unusually small. From the first this range burns little fuel, but it is after a year of use that the Monarch works most perfectly. The reason of this is the remarkable construction, malleable iron, three thicknesses of walls around the fire-box, and asbestos lining which concentrates heat where it is needed and prevents waste.

Besides the Monarch has a duplex draft, one in front and one behind, that consumes the wood or coal more thoroughly than any other draft. This range is for sale only by B. W. Strong.
