INMAN ON LOVE.

Can "Go Some" But is Not a "Woman Chaser".

Editor News:—In yesterday's Daily News I read an account of my suit of yesterday against Wm. Clay and my wife, Pearl, where I am accused of being a "free lover"; which is correct, but not to be inferred as a "free luster" or "woman chaser" as some call it.

I claim to be the greatest free lover who ever lived, lives now or perhaps ever will live, and can back it on earth and in Heaven. Love must be free to be love—who ever heard of bond love.

Now, my child and children, I do not claim to be the analyst or could possibly be one equal to the great Spencer, yet allow me, if you please, to have a few words on love.

The term never has been, or perhaps will be fully understood, therefore, fully appreciated until, as Talmage used to say: "The clock of Time has struck its last hour." What I know about love (and I claim to know as much about it as any man on any continent) is that love is the Divine essence of our being. It flows, or should flow, from soul to soul. Love cheers and comforts the dreariest hours of life. In love all are summers. It was the great brained Shakespeare who said: "Time may reach the wrinkled brow, the sunken eye, the hollow cheek, but it cannot quite reach love".

I am a descendant of the famous city of brotherly love and if all the people of the nation were as good as the Quakers there would not be a gunboat or firearm for war on this planet. I love the whole world and all the nature included, its sunshine, air, water, landscapes, beasts, birds, insects, flowers blossoms and fruit of every conceivable variety. "God is Love" says the book and I thoroughly believe that much of it and many other things it contains, but not all. I say vigorously and fearlessly that where love is, whether on earth, in Heaven or the Orthodox of Hell, (the hell of ignorance and its consequent superstition) there you find God.

"Better is a dinner of herbs where love is" said the proverb man, "than a stuffed ox and hatred therewith." It is not said, it is inferred that one of the man made numerous Gods so loved the world that he made up his mind to damn the most of us. According to Calvinism the nine-tenths go to hell. Modern Presbyterianism and Methodism and many other religions are not so hard on "we mortals". Now (and the word implies euphony) I so love the world that I have long since made up my mind that men shall be saved, and when I say men I mean mankind, which includes people of both sexes. And I claim that this is an improvement on orthodox dogmatism.

Yesterday I was introduced to Mr. Rowerman, candidate for governor on the assembly plan. And while in friendly conversation with him, I made the remark that it mattered little to me what his ideas were concerning international doctrines, as for myself that there is not a man with skin so yellow or black but that I could with soul extend the right hand of friendship.

In self defense, said Wm. Clay (who claims to be a son of the illustrious Cassius M. Clay, once Ambassador to Russia), in his evidence that my wife told him that I had been a candidate for the presidency on the socialist ticket, and that I am crazy. Her saying is simply a draft upon her imagination or willfully made from whole cloth.

My writings for the public press throughout my long life which are known on several continents, and my letter writings, do not indicate that I am crazy.

I do not take a back seat with Taft, Roosevelt or a Supreme Justice, on any question of national or international importance, especially would it be on constitutional or international law. Lately, I handed to Mr. Fiekle, the telegrapher, telegrams to President Taft and Ex-President Roosevelt, and after counting the number of words it contained said that it would cost me $12.50 night rates, and that it might not appear in the public press, so I took the telegram across the street as advised by my friend Fiekle, to the Review office and requested that it be published, and told the renowned editor that when he did so, I would give him $10 for the space it would occupy. So it is up to the editor of the Daily and Twice-a-Week Review to publish the intended telegram.

The coming trial will show that I have been very lenient with my wife.

Picture Bargains at Strong's Store

Biggest Display of Iron Beds is Also There.

Thirty-five different kinds of metal beds are on display in Strong's Furniture store. In stock are 150 iron beds, and thirty-five wooden ones if you happen to want that kind. The prices are the lowest and at the same time the beds are the best that Strong has ever displayed.

Another little feature offered this week is a lot of pictures, mostly unframed. Fifty cent pictures of Roosevelt are offered for 25c. Other pictures are reduced 50 per cent or more below former prices. This means a loss to us, of course, but we want to sell them.

An offer of 20 per cent reduction on all framing for the plain pictures is made.

and it would not be only injustice but a crime to her and her newly made paramour to offer a falsehood in my testimony against them. No, to give a true concept of my heart and brain, I had rather that the sun in all its brightness, light and life-giving would be forever darkened, and the moon cease to shed its light and all the stars be blotted out than in the intense dungeon we would all die in a few moments and living that short life with a clear conscience, than for the sun, moon and stars continue on and on, giving light, electricity, warmth and life and all earth be rosy and gay and, I to live a life allotted driven to despair with a guilty conscience.

If kisses alone, the natural token of friendship and love, I would not make a complaint against anyone, but when further action between sexes out of wedlock is surprised, then kisses bestowed by either party is considered of bad form. Respectfully Submitted,
JAMES INMAN.

LOCAL NEWS.

Latest things in hair rolls and turbans—Roseburg Beauty Parlors.

It was erroneously stated in yesterday's News that James Inman was a candidate on the socialist ticket some years ago for president. Mr. Inman has never had any official connection with the party referred to, but on the contrary made his run as an independent candidate.

A special meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Roseburg Commercial Club will be held Monday evening. A number of important matters are scheduled for consideration and it is hoped that every member of the organization will be in attendance. The meeting will be held at the commercial club rooms and will consume less than an hour.

A telegram was received here late today from Seattle conveying the sad intelligence that Paul Barlike, a member of the local militia company, is dangerously ill at that city with little chance of recovery. The patient worked at the Guest bakery prior to going to American Lake, Washington, where he was taken ill. Upon being removed to Seattle his case was pronounced typhoid fever, but not until yesterday did the attending physicians deem his condition serious. His father is at his side, and in the event of death, will bring the remains to this city.
